Worship Held Sunday
TULELAKE REVEREND GEORGE ALMOND

With the Reverend George Almond in attendance, Tulelake colonists held their first interdenominational Sunday morning worship service in a temporary chapel, Recreation Hall 420 at 9:50 a.m.

The postoffice, in Building 201, which will house both the branch of the United States postoffice and the War Relocation postoffice will be in full operation within a very short period of time, according to Mr. Gilbert Niesse, Chief of Administrative Division.

Miss Afton Fujimoto, formerly of Portland, left the hospital yesterday. Upon being interviewed she remarked, "Life in the hospital is simply swell." After three days in antiseptic splendor, she reluctantly left her private room.

Spending her birthday (Feb 3rd) with a sore throat, she visited the hospital, thus escaping this unfortunate, or rather, fortunate incident.

Master George Kobayashi, four years old, is still confined to his hospital quarters. At present, he is receiving all the attention of the nurses.

Tom Ohabe of Seattle was the presiding chairman. Chie Aoki, also of Seattle, accompanied the congregation in singing the hymns. The scripture, II Kings, Chapter 5, verse 8 to 15, was read by Mrs. Kazue Naito.

Reverend Almond of the Tulelake Presbyterian Church gave a sermon based on the scripture readings.

A contest is being sponsored to select a suitable name and insignia for the colony publication. Our present title, "Information Bulletin" seems inadequate.

In conjunction with this contest the wardens would like to have various armband designs submitted.

I had a dream last night and—well—that is why I feel so good this morning. It seemed I had been struggling through storms, tornadoes and cyclones and at times even through hurricanes when suddenly I found myself. The restlessness was gone, the pain of uncertain ness that gnawed was gone. For wasn't the sun shining now, and waters stilled for the first time since hateful December 7th?

We had arrived—for better or for worse—at a phase in our lives which may seem doleful to some and a challenge to others.

I had a dream last night, and I saw a white sailboat against a yellow moon drifting lazily down a peaceful lagoon. A gentle breeze rippled the waters and guided the boat toward an almost perfect cone-shaped silver peak at the end of the lagoon. The peak almost seemed to reach heaven itself.

Then calmly—the breeze changed and the sailboat drifted shoreward. And in that minute before destruction against the rocks the sails swung and set themselves rightly against the crosswind.

It was only a dream, but I woke this morning determined more than ever that, though adverse winds may blow, the set of my sails will always be toward that peak that almost reaches heaven.
