The Last Is First

The Class of 1932 will go forth from the campus the 13th of next month. It will do so with new distinctions. Not only is it Pacific's latest and largest, but it is also the first to join unanimously the Pacific Alumni Association.

This year, a precedent will be set whereby every graduate in years to come will become in truth and in fact one of Pacific's Alumni. Former fellow students wherever dispersed will henceforth keep in touch with each other and with the College as not all have done before. The credit for being the first to vote for this enduring affiliation is due to the Class of '32.

THE COLLEGE OF THE PACIFIC, the first educational institution of its kind chartered by the State of California, celebrates this year its Diamond Anniversary Commencement. The year 1858 marked the first graduation exercises of the University of the Pacific. Five young men received their Bachelor degrees. The same number of young ladies completed the required courses in the "Female Collegiate Institute."

Pacific was originally chartered July 10, 1851, under the name of California Wesleyan University. The change of name to University of the Pacific was authorized March 29, 1852. The Central Missionary Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, with headquarters in New York, in 1848 commissioned Rev. Isaac Owen missionary to California and named as his assistant Rev. William Taylor. The names

Owen and Taylor are inseparably connected with early Christian educational work in California. Bishop William Taylor became known as "one of the grandest figures that has walked across the pages of Methodist history."

Three additional missionaries, S. D. Simonds, M. C. Briggs, and Edward Bannister, came to California in 1850. An educational convention was held in the Methodist Church at Pueblo de San Jose January 6, 1851, and this date is regarded as the natal day of what is now the College of the Pacific. Professor Bannister was chosen secretary of the convention and took charge of "the school of higher grade than any in existence in California at that time." Mrs. Bannister assisted her husband in establishing the institution with an enrollment of approximately fifty within the first year.

A Medical School was opened in San Francisco as one of the departments of the University of Pacific in 1859. It later became the Cooper Medical School.

In 1871, the University was moved to College Park in San Jose. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees that year, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved that we elect a President of the University to conduct the Institution for the academic year next ensuing, to meet all of the expenses out of his own funds, paying the taxes on buildings and campus, and keeping the property insured to the present amount of policies, and to conduct the institution without subjecting the Board of Trustees to any expenses whatsoever." Dr. Thomas H. Sinex undertook the task on those conditions. His spirit was typical of the presidents who have served Pacific before and since his term.

The Conservatory of Music, established in 1878, has developed consistently in the number of courses, registration, thoroughness and standing. Although it is considered a department of the College, it is a definite organization which aims to prepare talented students for professional work in the field of music. It is a charter member of the American Association of Schools of Music.

Departments of the Conservatory include Piano, Organ, Voice, Stringed Instruments, Theory, and Public School Music. The courses offered lead to the degrees Bachelor of Music, Bachelor of Arts, Master of Music, Master of Arts, and the State Special Credential in Music. The minimum time required for baccalaureate degrees and credential is four years and that for master's degrees is five years.

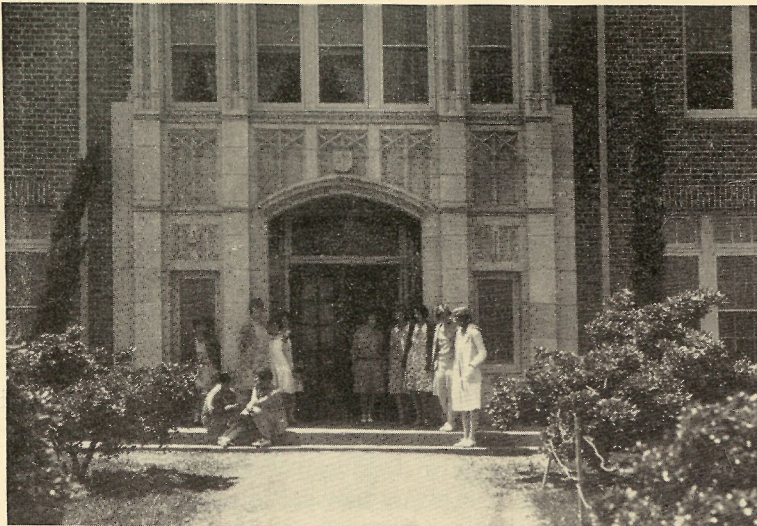

Napa Callege, which had been organized by the Methodists in 1870, was consolidated with Pacific in 1896. Dr. J. M. Beard, who had served as president at Napa since 1887, was elected first president of the consolidated University of the Pacific.

The name "College of the Pacific" was officially adopted in 1911. Courses are offered in Art, Ancient and Modern Languages, English, Engineering, Economics and Sociology, History, Political Science, Education, Speech, Physical Education, Philosophy, Religious Education, Biological Sciences, Chemistry, Physics, and Geology. Besides the degree of Bachelor of Arts, that of Master of Arts can be secured for satisfactory work in the Graduate School.

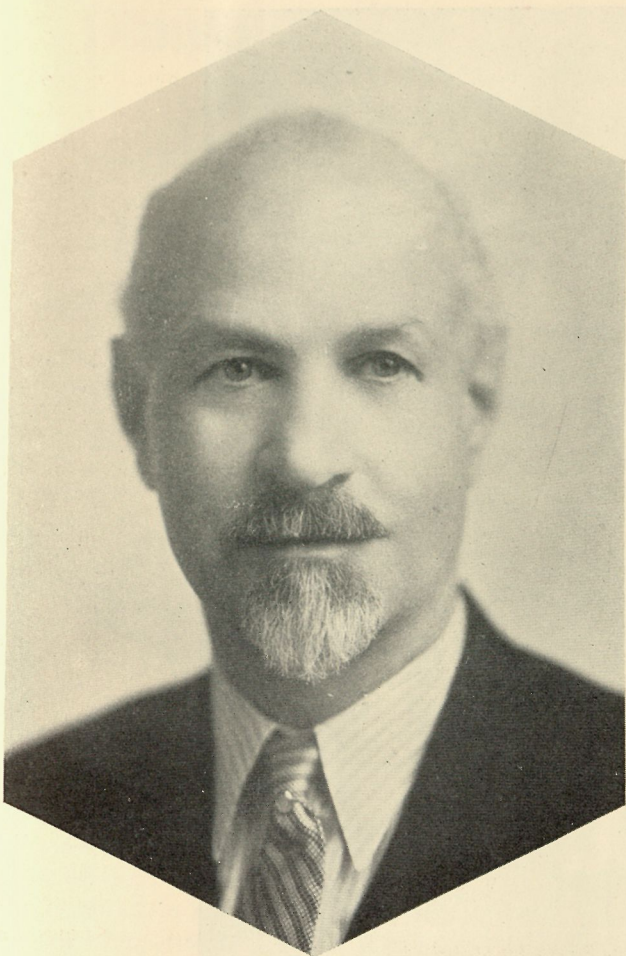

The wisdom of the removal of the College to Stockton has already been amply proven. The accomplishments of the years elapsed since 1924 and those to come bespeak the far-sightedness of President Tully C. Knoles, the members of the Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1921, the Board of Trustees of the College, and all who participated in the forward step.

On April 14, 1924, the first brick was laid on the new Harriet M. Smith Memorial Campus, a forty-acre tract adjoining the City of Stockton given by the J. C. Smith Company, and in September of that year the college opened its fall semester on new ground, in new buildings and with new equipment.

A characteristic of the new campus which contributes to its beauty

Women's Hall

President Tully C. Knoles

is the homogeneity of all of its buildings. The architecture is Collegiate Gothic, a comparatively recent adaptation of the old Gothic style which came into prominence with the fine old cathedrals of Europe. The new buildings include the Administration building, Weber Memorial Hall, the Conservatory, West Memorial Infirmary, Women's and Men's Halls, Anderson Dining and Social Hall, the Gymnasium, and the President's Home. There are also three sorority and three fraternity houses all conforming to the style of the other campus edifices. Pacific's Stadium, named in honor of Thomas F. Baxter, President of the Board of Trustees, who gave $25,00 toward its erection, is situated at the west end of the campus.

The College is a member of the Association of American Colleges and is included on the accredited list of the Association of American Universities. It is also on the accredited list of the American Association of University Women which entitles all women graduates of the College to active membership in the organization.

The State Board of Education of California recognizes the School of Education, the purpose of which is to direct the work of students who are expecting to qualify for any one of the several types of teaching credentials. The ranking of graduates in the teaching profession is such that it continually arouses favorable comment on the training received at Pacific. Since the College located in Stockton in 1924, the student body has grown from 467 to almost 900. The graduating class in 1924 numbered 52; this year 153 seniors and graduate students are eligible to receive Bachelors and Masters degrees.

ANDERSON HALL

where Alumni and friends will assemble Commencement Day for the reunion luncheon.

Diamond Anniversary Commencement

Dr. R. A. Millikan

Approximately one hundred and fifty people will receive degrees under the floodlights of Baxter Stadium at Pacific's first outdoor commencement exercises on the evening of June 13. Elaborate plans are being made for the occasion which will celebrate the seventy-fifth Commencement of the College. The program is scheduled to begin at 7 o'clock.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, Chairman of the Administrative Council of the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena and known throughout the world for his contributions to the realm of science, has accepted the invitation of President Knoles to deliver the commencement address. Dr. Millikan holds many honorary degrees from universities throughout the world, and in 1923, won the Nobel prize in physics for his success in measuring the fundamental or ultimate, unit of electricity, the electron.

He was associated with the department of physics at the University of Chicago for twenty-five years, leaving his chair there in 1921 to become director of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics at the Pasadena Technical Institute. During the World War, Dr. Millikan was vice-chairman of the National Research Council at Washington, serving as lieutenant-colonel in the Signal Corps and holding the same rank in the United States Reserves today.

AUGMENTED CHOIR

An augmented A Cappella Choir under the direction of Dean Charles M. Dennis will be one of the special features of the program. About seventy-five alumni, former members of the choir, will sing with the present choir. There will also be music by the College band and orchestra.

The degrees, which will be conferred by President Knoles, will include Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Music, Master of Arts, and Honorary. When Dr. Knoles has awarded one half of these degrees, he will have conferred as many degrees on Pacific graduates in thirteen years as all of his fifteen predecessors had over a period of sixty-one years. This is a real indication of Pacific's growth.

More than 350 people are members of the several committees sponsoring the affair. Everett Stark '29 is chairman of the alumni group which includes a representative from each class. Other committees include prominent business and professional men of Northern California, outstanding educators, ministers of several denominations, and officers of Stockton clubs. The Trustees of the College will be hosts to the Commemoration committees at a dinner in Anderson Hall preceding the Commencement exercises.

ALUMNI LUNCHEON

The alumni reunion luncheon will be held at 12 o'clock in Anderson Hall, Commencement Day. President Henry G. Turner '84 will preside at the meeting when members of the class of 1932 will be formally welcomed into the Association and new officers will be introduced. Harold Chastain '29 will be toastmaster. Graduates and former students of Napa College are being invited especially by Judge Charles Shurtleff '79 to attend the luncheon and to meet at a Napa Reunion.

Other events of the Commencement week program include the Concert at 8 p. m., June 10 in the College auditorium; the Art Exhibit in Weber Memorial Hall; President and Mrs. Knoles' reception at 8:30 p. m., June 11; and the Baccalaureate Services at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of June 12.

Drama - Deputations - Radio

DeMarcus Brown '23

An international program of plays representing six countries made this year's Pacific Little Theatre season distinctive and unique. The plays were Beggar on Horseback, a modern American travesty; The Inspector General, a Russian farce; Death Takes a Holiday, a gripping story from the Italians; The Whiteheaded Boy, a comedy from the Irish Theatre; The Cradle Song, representing the drama of Spain; and the ever-popular Alice In Wonderland, an English play.

From the homely, everyday atmosphere of Irish peasant life in the Whiteheaded Boy to the delicate fanciful air of Alice In Wonderland, all details were carried out with the artistic excellence that characterizes the work of DeMarcus Brown '23, Director of the Little Theatre. Mr. Brown's artistry is apparent at all times in his productions, not only in his ability as a director, but also in the very real beauty which distinguishes the sets and costumes of his plays. Audiences hoping to see a polished production are never disappointed in the presentations of the Little Theatre, for finish is the keynote of his efforts.

Finances involving more than $4,000 in expenses were capably handled by Tully Knoles, Jr. '32, Business Manager for the Theatre. The $880 paid for royalties shows the high standard of productions selected. The performances have been well attended this year, not only by students and townsfolk, but by alumni and others living at a distance.

Alice In Wonderland played before capacity audiences three nights and a special Saturday matinee for children. It represented one of the most difficult undertakings of the season, and was considered by many as the most outstanding.

An innovation this year was the presenting of one of the plays off the campus. With a company of twelve student players, "The White-headed Boy" played to appreciative audiences in six communities in Northern California. The tour was sponsored by the Deputations Committee and the Pacific Bureau of Public Relations.

Arthur Farey '29, former star of the Pacific stage, has been Assistant Director of the Little Theatre and Chairman of the Deputations Committee this year. Under his direction, more than seventy-five programs have been presented by Pacific students before high school and junior college assemblies, service clubs, and other gatherings. Alumni will be glad to know that Mr. Farey will also be Business Manager of the Theatre next year. He will continue in charge of the half-hour programs which are broadcast from Pacific by remote control over KGDM each Tuesday afternoon at 1:15. This radio hook-up, installed at the College April 5, makes it possible to broadcast concerts, one-act plays, speeches, athletic events, and other student and faculty programs.
