On Being Human

I write this today, not as the editor of the Tulean Dispatch, but just as a plain resident of Tule Lake.

Ever since I’ve been evacuated from Sacramento on May 15, it has been my feeling that we are in the same boat and that we should do nothing to tip the balance of this boat; and that we must do the best we can under the circumstances to keep this boat going.

From that moment on, I’ve decided to discard all of my personal feeling, likes and dislikes; I’ve tried to educate myself and my wife and children to see everything in the light of the happiness of the community as a whole. In other words, to make myself a rigid socialistic being.

It is true that I was bitter at times because we had to sell our thriving business for about 45 cents on a dollar and no further income from the operation of the business; because I had to sell my Chrysler, almost a family heirloom, for seven dollars and fiftynine cents ($7.50), and because some newspaper columnists called us “skibbies” and “dirt-cayed, pint-sized, jaundiced, bow-legged Japs” and other hurtful derogatory names; and because I’ve seen relatives, who wouldn’t even care for us, picked up by F.B.I. as “potentially dangerous allons.”

But after all is said and done, I cannot forget that the fact that some of my Caucasian friends certainly did their utmost to ease the pain in our hearts. I cannot forget their “good wishes” and tears when we shock heads for the last time, well aware of our condition. After all is done, it has been my contention that our economic and social setup as we knew it in the past has been uprooted from its foundation by the military order, and that therefore we must look forward to tomorrow for our security and a better life as human beings.

It is my personal observation that the War Relocation Authority, as an agent of the civil government of the United States, is sincerely interested in the welfare of the Japanese evacuees who have been relocated within its centers or those who intend to be resettled permanently outside of its centers. And it is also my profound belief that the majority of the personnel in the administrative capacity of the War Relocation Authority will be of sincere interest in furthering the WRA program. I’m not mindful of the fact that the officials in charge of the administration are also human beings with complicated human emotions and human temptations.

Such being the case, I maintain it is well for us to go more than half way on our part to cooperate with the administration to iron out the difficult problems of feeding, housing, and educating hundred thousand persons of diverse ages, sex and social, economic, and educational backgrounds. The problems facing us in the Center are profoundly deep and gigantic, to say the least.

I, for one, am vitally concerned over the physical and mental well-being of my wife and three small children. I want them to be happy. Just as much as you would wish yours to be happy. I want my children to be fed properly and get the best possible education with what limited facilities we have on hand. I want my children to learn human decency; what is good and what is beautiful.

But on the other hand, I would do anything to see other men’s wives and their children in a healthy frame of minds. I would not hesitate to work for them and right for them.

Everyone of us must do his share of work to achieve this end in the kind of socialistic boat we are

NYSSA RESOLUTION

Governor Chase A. Clark of Idaho and Governor Charles A. Sprague of Oregon.

After narrating that there is an urgent need for labor in the seven counties represented at the meeting to harvest the winter crops and the desire of the Japanese evacuees to prove their loyalty to the Nation by working on the farms, it was resolved:

"That it is the sentiment of this meeting that immediate assurance be given to those Japanese evacuees who are still living in War Relocation Centers, and to those who have already volunteered for farm service or other essential work which is found to be in harmony with the spirit and letter of the aims of the relocation program, that they are needed and urged to accept employment where up; and

"That we will continue to strive to promote a better understanding between these evacuees and the permanent residents of our respective counties and of our state as a whole."

HI SCHOOL BUSINESS COURSES REORGANIZED

All typing classes in the local high school will be reorganized into Business English classes, disclosed Superintendent of Schools K. M. Harkness.

Due to the fact that the government has frozen all rental typewriters, as well as new ones, it has been impossible for the schools to obtain them. Because of this regulation, those who had registered for typing classes for the first part of the year are being organized into classes in Business English and advanced Business English. This is being done in order to keep the classes intact so that if and when the typewriters are received, the classes can be organized without undue disturbance of the school program.

According to the Placement Office thorough knowledge of Business English is one of the greatest needs of the office workers. These training courses are expected to do much toward establishing a solid foundation for correct business English.

TWO SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS MADE BY YPCC

With 650 Christians registered for the first Young People's Christian Conference to be held in a WRA Center, The Tule Lake YPCC, theme-lined "Christ For the World," was held last Saturday and Sunday.

THANKS TO WALLER
We, the members of the Community Activities staff wish to take this opportunity to thank Ted Waller, our supervisor who will very shortly enter our country's armed service. Mr. Waller has been a most sincere friend and worker, and during his brief stay here has, in spite of all the handicaps, accomplished a great deal toward the betterment of our community. His departure will be a loss, not only to our department but also to the project but our country's needs come foremost. Someday we hope to renew our friendship, perhaps under better circumstances. Looking forward to that day, we wish Ted and his wife, Lucy, good luck and success for the future.
Signed: COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES STAFF MEMBERS

SUNDAY GAME WITH GOOD RECORD
In one of the outstanding exhibition games of the post season series, the powerful Tacoma Busseis will cross bats with the up and coming Mountaineers. Tacoma's pride and joy, the Busseis, have come through in grand style after the start of the championship playoffs, which they covered. Pleasure's surprise team, Mountaineers, has been undefeated this year, except for the setback in a practice game with the powerful Rec outfit. They easily dropped the class B title and is classed as the outstanding younger boys' team.

With both teams having set back the Tule Lake champions, this series 40, the game is expected to be a tightly fought, hard slugging affair. The Busseis will rely on their heavy stickling, while the Mountain lads will rely on their star chucker George Goto, who has an average of 13 strikeouts per gone in the regular league season. Last week he subdued 7 out of the 9 Rec batters to face him via the strikeout route.

The starting lineup has been disclosed as:

PINE PONG MATCH
MARYSVILLE IN EASY WIN
Marysville paddle-pusher trounced Sacramento last Monday night by topping four out of five single matches.

In spite of the fact that the match itself was one-sided, however, most of the games scores were very close with the points running into double figures. A rematch will be played sometime next week.

Lawrence Nakano, Robert Nakanishi, and James Osuge won their matches in two straight games over Joe Otaga, Yoshina Igarashi, and Edward Yoshikawa, respectively, while F. A. Shibata was forced to a full two out of three win over Sam Koshiba. James Osuge took the only match for the Sacramentans when he defeated Harry Ota 2-1.

In an exhibition match, Lawrence Nakano, Marysville, crossed paddles with Ruth Hibino, Tule Lake women's champ, with the former taking a close victory.
