Pacific Inaugurates President At 90th Commencement

The Honorable Earl Warren, Governor of California, has accepted the invitation of the College of the Pacific to attend the inauguration of Robert Edward Burns as President of the College at observances coincident with the 90th Commencement. The significant academic event is set for Monday, June 16 at 10:30 a. m. in Baxter Stadium. Governor Warren, who has always demonstrated genuine interest in California's first college, delivered the commencement address for the class of 1943.

President Burns, in his first turn in this academic function, will confer about 270 bachelor and master degrees of art and music, nearly twice as many as have ever been previously awarded in a Pacific commencement. The Class of 1947 is by a wide margin the largest in Pacific's near-century history. The President's inaugural speech will be the commencement address.

More than a thousand American colleges and universities have received invitations to send an official representative to the occasion, and scores have already accepted at this writing. The result will be a colorful academic procession of delegates and honored guests added to the regular faculty processional.

The eyes of the educational world will be on this event. The class of '47 will be a part of a rare and meaningful event. They are the 90th graduating class, the inauguration is the first such occasion at Pacific in twenty-seven years, the youngest college president in the West will officially take office at California's oldest college, and the observances will be a springboard toward a great centennial celebration and an era of service and expansion for the College of the Pacific undreamed of by its founders.

Christian Community Administration

—a phrase coined by Pacific President Robert E. Burns, and given significant content by Frank A. Lindhorst, director of this new project in training for social leadership with a Christian emphasis.

By ART FAREY

A challenging opportunity for the creation of new, postwar educational projects was laid before Methodist related colleges in 1944.

War's end did not find Methodism totally unprepared. The committee of 21 formulated the Crusade for Christ, the first step of which was the securing of twenty-five million dollars for postwar work at home and abroad. Of this vast sum, the Board of Education of the Church received an allotment which it in turn allocated to theological schools, colleges and universities.

The unique qualification required of the colleges to secure apportionments was the development of distinctly new educational projects. No funds were to be granted for the extension of already established work. Beyond this, the institution applying was obligated to match the Board of Education grant from its own resources.

This was the opportunity and task that Robert E. Burns, then assistant to the President, so ably grasped. He quickly demonstrated both the business acumen to take advantage of a $33,000 grant to his institution and the educational vision to propose one of the most significant projects stimulated by the Crusade for Christ apportionment to the great Methodist associated educational system.

In the shifting California post-war scene, Burns saw emerging a critical need for Christian social and educational leadership. California's war-swollen population was not to return to normal. It was clearly destined to grow even more. An official state estimate predicted, that in twenty years, more people would live in the great interior San Joaquin-Sacramento Valley empire than resided in the entire state on V-J Day.

This broad low valley, roughly 500 miles long and 150 miles wide, is Pacific's area. Think of it teeming in two decades, with eight million people! Probably not in the Twentieth Century will California be able to catch up with the demand for skilled leadership to accomplish both the physical and social engineering job necessary to make California livable for these new millions.

Out of the back lash of the war itself and out of the increasing congestion, vast social problems are emerging. The Christian needs of this area are critical. New churches and Sunday schools will have to be organized; there is a shortage of pastors and religious educators for this task.

Our failure to absorb an appalling number of our juveniles in creative social activity is critical. At the same time every youth, character building and social service organization is begging for leadership—real trained and devoted leadership.

California protestantism has a tenuous hold on perhaps the most significant opportunity ever granted it, week-day, released time, religious education of public school students. Its success or failure is still in the balance. Only teachers and administrators with training, ability and compensation matching that of the public teaching profession will ultimately win this opportunity.

The official Area College of the Methodist Church, and the only fully-accredited protestant college in that area, Pacific must provide religious and social leadership for California. This, said Burns, is our project.

Just completed at that time, the beautiful Morris Chapel and the Christian Education unit was ready to house such a program as well as the long-established academic Department of Religious Education, of which Dr. George H. Colliver is chairman. The Student Christian Association, housed in a new unit of Anderson Hall, was ready to aid in the campus social side of such a project. After thorough collaboration with President Knoles, and Dr. Colliver, whose careful development of the Department of Religious Education gave the proposed plan a solid academic foundation, Burns was ready to act.

To the Board of Education, Pacific submitted its proposed project: A comprehensive attack on this problem of California leadership through a specific, two-fold training pattern embracing (1) a fully rounded college course in the liberal arts and religious education, and (2) continuous, living-laboratory experience in actual community projects. This was the plan. It was accepted. The grant was made.

The results? Already in its second year, the project has put many students into field assignments where they are giving new impetus to many types of church and social activity, and preparing in these "living laboratories" for careers in social service, or avocational skills that will serve in the years ahead.

In a community twenty-five miles away there is now an active church youth group because of the understanding leadership of a Christian Community Administration trainee, capable of attacking a difficult community situation and accomplishing parent-youth adjustments to make a program possible. Better still, a leadership training program for future church school teachers has been started.

One CCA student has organized an Interracial Club which embraces representatives of six nationalities and members from six different churches. Here is a realistic accomplishment, pointing toward the intercultural appreciation and understanding that will be absolutely vital to a united America in the generations before us.

Pacific boomed into the Spring semester on a note of optimism. A new president was in the saddle, a new football coach had been chosen, and progress was being made toward the construction of the long-awaited Student Union Building.

The Pacific Student Association started things off with a bang when it sponsored a Frosh Welcome Hop in the Stockton Armory. Thyra June Jeffrey was general chairman. PSA Prexy Paul Berger announced at the start of the term that student body card holders would be admitted to a total of 78 athletic contests, plus all PSA sponsored social affairs.

The first Thursday assembly of the new term was presented by David Farley on February 20, entitled "Half an Hour's Worth," a fantasy based on college life. Sally Howen and Charles Holst had the leading roles. On the same evening Zeta Phi sorority held formal initiation and installation of officers at the home of Miss Ellen Deering, with Leola Brown presiding.

"Twelfth Night" was presented in the Pacific Studio Theatre, featuring Robert Nichols and Marcia Lou Brown. Standing room only was the order of the evening for all four performances.

Dr. Frank Oppenheimer, member of the radiation laboratory staff of the University of California, spoke on atomic energy to a large group in the Pacific Auditorium on Thursday night, February 13. On February 10, formal initiation of Pi Kappa Delta officers was held. Evelyn Brown was installed as president for the Spring term. Bruce Coleman, elected editor of the Pacific Weekly, left school before he had a chance to publish one edition. Carroll Doty was appointed by the Publications Committee to replace Coleman. Don Dickey was appointed by the Executive Committee to the chairmanship of the annual Mardi Gras, scheduled for April 17 through 20.

A "fun night" mixer dance was held on Friday night, February 21, in the SCA Building with Lois Talcott, Nancy Jones, and Gordon Dalbeck in charge of the affair. With Hazel Collier as general chairman, the annual Big-Little Sister Party was held, complete with fashion show and refreshments, in the SCA Building on Wednesday evening, February 19. Tau Kappa Kappa held open house on Friday evening, February 14, carrying out a Valentine theme. Lorraine Hock was committee chairman. On February 17, Marian Combes was installed as president of South Hall. Other officers included Gladys Stoven, Elizabeth Kauka, and Nan Cornwell.

George Washington was the theme of Alpha Theta Tau's open house on Saturday, February 22. Robin Hermansen was general chairman. Pacific's "All-American Girl," Helen Graham, announced her engagement to Don Hall of Stockton, center on the 1946 Pacific football team. "King Edward II," directed by Monty Rensberger, was presented in the Studio Theatre opening February 20, featuring Gene McCabe, Shirley Frost, and Bert Trulsson. Nanci Rinehart was elected to the chairmanship of the Publications Committee on February 24, succeeding Dean Simpson, former Weekly editor, who had resigned to accept a position with KWG, Stockton. Nancy Deming, first-term Weekly editor, was appointed to the committee to fill the vacancy left by Simpson's resignation and Miss Rinehart's elevation.

John Baird, Mary Spanos, and Manuel Furtado won high honors in the Southern Association debate tournament Pasadena on February 21 and 22. Don Dickey announced on February 25 his Mardi Gras committeemen. They included: Tom Sprague, publicity; Nancie Harrold, bids; Lynn O'Brien, patrons and patronesses; Larry Mason, band; Connie Nitson, decorations; Hal Mucke, refreshments; Dick Patton, parade; George Carter, elections; Helen Graham, open house, and George Tomajan, rally.

Charles Stobener was elected president of North Hall for the Spring semester on February 24. On February 18 the Quonset Huts elected social representatives. Those chosen were: Bill Harker, Ralph Guild, Paul Petrie, Hal Bronfin, Hal Barrett, Ernie Vona-sek, James Ross, Robert Holmes, Wells Peterson, and Bill Ashbury.

A "Let's Get Associated" mixer was held in the SCA Building on February 28, with Al Teicheira in charge of the affair. On February 29 the World Student Service Fund held a benefit dance and carnival in the Stockton Auditorium. Al Teicheira was chairman of the WSSF drive.

Eddy Fitzpatrick's band was announced to play for the annual Mardi Gras ball. Senior class president Tom Clark started taking orders for the first Pacific class rings. Doris Blum took over as Rally Committee chairman, replacing Bob Nichols, who left school to study drama in England.

On March 13 the Junior class presented a fun-for-all assembly, featuring Daren McGavren, Patty Lou Peters, Julio Harris, Bill To-biasson, and George Tomajan. Byron Meyer was program chairman. Dr. John E. Baker, noted educator and for many years an instructor in the California College in China, spoke at a forum and tea in the SCA Building on Thursday afternoon, March 13.

Formal installation of East Hall officers was held on Thursday evening, March 6. Jean Nave accepted the president's gavel, and Helen Little, Yvonne Armaston, entering freshmen, Food Processors Foundation short courses in laboratory control work for immediate employment, and education courses of all types for the professional advancement of teachers and emergency credential holders are among the special contributions of the Pacific Summer Sessions.

For inquiries, applications, and Summer bulletins address, J. Marc Jantzen, Dean of the Summer Sessions.

Engineering Major Announced

The reestablishment of a major department in engineering at the College of the Pacific has been announced by President Robert E. Burns. Courses building toward a fully accredited curriculum leading to the Bachelor of Science degree with a major in civil engineering will be introduced in the fall term. Applications for admission to the department will now be received by the registrar's office.

Engineering studies, first established at Pacific with the occupation of the Stockton campus in 1924, were discontinued in 1942 when the war emergency period preoccupied the institution with other fields and the Navy V-12 curriculum. Engineering graduates throughout the pre-war period established a fine record of continuous employment and outstanding service.

In citing the need for engineering training, the president declared that 30 per cent of qualified students now seeking entrance to college departments and schools of engineering in the West must be denied admission because of capacity enrollments. Northern California, he believes, will require more engineers in the next 25 years than California schools can possibly supply.

The industrial committee of the Stockton Chamber of Commerce, and the Stockton Engineering Club are cooperating with the College in obtaining the proper equipment to establish three modern engineering laboratories in electricity, hydraulics, and materials testing. Burns is also working on plans to provide the department with a staff of top flight instructors, but has no immediate announcement of personnel. As soon as possible, the College will seek accreditation for its course from the Engineers Council for Professional Development which would give the department recognized standing with the American Society of Civil Engineering.

Lower division, pre-engineering studies will be offered by the Stockton Junior College, articulated with upper division work in the senior college. Pacific will establish the junior year curriculum this fall and the senior course a year later.

Pacific Debaters Win National Tourney

Pacific's debating team, consisting of John Baird, Manuel Furtado, Patricia Corwin, and Mary Spanos, returned from Bowling Green University, Ohio, laden with honors from the Pi Kappa Delta National Debate Tournament held in the Buckeye state April 4 to 8.

COP's squad, accompanied on the trip by Dean of Men, and Forensics Director Edward S. Betz, scored a total of 44 points out of a possible 50, to take top team honors, nosing out Augustana College of South Dakota by one point.

In men's extemporaneous speaking, Manuel Furtado was given superior rating. John Baird rated superior in oratory and good discussion. As a debating team, Baird and Furtado rated superior, and won the Sweepstakes trophy.

Pat Corwin was ranked excellent in both oratory and discussion and Mary Spanos rated superior in women's extemporaneous speaking. The two girls rated superior in team debating and tied for the Sweepstakes award in their division.

Topics used in the debate by both men and women were "Should Labor Have a Share in the Management of Industry" and "Threats to World Peace."

Dean Betz did more than advise his team. At the twelfth biennial convention of Pi Kappa Delta he was elected national president of the Forensic fraternity.

Pacific's squad stopped enroute to the tournament at the University of Denver, where they spent a day debating and discussing labor problems with Colorado teams. Further along the line at Lincoln, Nebraska, the team debated before a businessmen's luncheon, and for students at the University of Nebraska.

In Chicago, the team interviewed personnel managers of both Hart, Schaffner and Marx, and Saks Fifth Avenue stores. Continuing on to Bowling Green, they stayed the five days in campus dormitories during the tournament.

In winning the national honors, Pacific's debate team defeated the cream of the crop of the nation, representing 180 colleges and universities entered in the five days of debating.

Upon returning to the Pacific campus, Dean Betz was notified that his team had been invited to debate in the National Invitational Tournament, to be held at West Point, N. Y. on May 2. At this tournament the nation is divided into eight divisions, with California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico comprising the western area. Pacific, Redlands, University of Southern California, and University of Utah were the four schools invited from this area.

Dean Betz has stated that as much as he would like to take his team East again, it is impossible at the present time, due to lack of funds.

Pacific Veterans to Place Memorial

The Pacific Veterans Club will install a bronze plaque in the Morris Chapel at Memorial Day observances in memory of 71 Pacific Student Association members whose lives were lost in World War II. The appropriate memorial was planned entirely by the veterans group, and the plaque designed in the Pacific Department of Art.

McCall Goes to University of Oregon

Director of the Pacific Speech Clinic and chairman of the Department of Speech at Pacific since 1936, Dr. Roy C. McCall has accepted the chairmanship of the Department of Speech and Drama at the University of Oregon where he will take up his new administrative duties before the fall term opening.

A graduate of the University of Redlands, McCall won his doctorate at the State University of Iowa. He came to Pacific from Willamette University and both he and Mrs. McCall joined the Pacific teaching staff. Mrs. McCall has served as associate professor of education and acted as director of student teaching.

Under McCall's leadership the Pacific speech department has expanded rapidly and currently has enrolled the third largest group of major students, topped only by music and business administration. Five specific majors are now available to speech students: dramatic art, public speaking, radio broadcasting, speech correction, and a general speech major.

The development of speech correction training and services has been the most publicized of Dr. McCall's contributions. Pacific's summer Speech Correction Center is unique in the Western College world and will reach a new peak of activity in 1947. Hundreds of persons of all ages, handicapped with speech disorders of all types, have been definitely aided by clinical services of the center. Many case histories reveal dramatic stories of new social adjustments accomplished through speech correction. At the same time many correction experts and clinicians have been placed in professional situations.

McCall has been continually sought for in public speaking engagements during his years at Pacific and rendered valuable community and church leadership. His many former students and Pacific friends will regret his leaving the Pacific staff. His new appointment well reflects the standing he has gained in the academic and speech world.

LT. ROBERT N. VANCE, 7th Marine Corps Battalion of North China visited the campus the week of March 7-21. He is arranging to compete his work for graduation. He plans to return to North China by air.

ARTHUR LE CLERT finished his studies at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration on the 31st of January 1947, and received the degree of Master of Business Administration.

Pacific House Mother Honored

"California Mother for 1947" is the honor recently announced for Mrs. Lucy Forkner, Pacific Co-op House Mother since 1945. The citation was made on April 12 by the American Mothers Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation in New York. She was selected by both state and national committees.

Mother of three outstandingly successful sons, Mrs. Forkner has also spent many years working in the field of racial relations and has taught in a Pieping, China, school.

Annual Mardi Gras

Mardis Gras ruled supreme once more on the Pacific campus the weekend of April 18-19. Tau Kappa Kappa and Rhizomia walked off with the two top prizes, for queen and best float, and everyone agreed it was just about the best one ever.

Gerry Moffat of Colusa, representing Tee Kay in competition with girls from eight other campus living groups and organizations, was elected Queen of Mardi Gras, 1947, and crowned by last year's queen, Alpha Theta Tau's Marge Hiers, at the annual Ball held in Stockton's Civic Auditorium.

Guest of honor at the dance was Janet Leigh, former COP student, who is now making movies in Hollywood. Queen Gerry was congratulated by both Miss Leigh and band-leader Eddy Fitzpatrick, who played for the dance.

The parade was outstanding. Rhizomia's float, which consisted of an old-time horse drawn fire wagon, won out by a gnat's eyelash over South Hall's clever "bucking horse".

Most original costume at the Mardi Gras Ball was worn by Byron Meyer and Ann Slaughter, dressed as the wall and the flower. Fernando Hinojosa and Wilma Mast, appearing as the apple and the worm, won the best matched couple award along with Bernard Winkle and Corrine MacDonald, who came as the telephone and the receiver.

Alpha Theta Tau's jumping frogs were given the award for being the best women's stunt in the parade. Pledges who were the frogs were Pat Smith, Pat Nassoiiy, Charla Lyons, and Lynette Towne. The best men's stunt award went to Omega Phi Alpha, which presented a two-man horse in the person of Bob Walters and Jack Padaroco.

Five year old Janet Jo Hutchinson added some spice and life to the queen elections when she was put up as a write-in candidate by North Hall shortly before the elections. So many students wrote little Janet Jo's name in that she was made Crown Princess of the affair and a re-vote had to be taken. She stayed at the right hand of the queen all through the coronation ceremonies.

Corson Goes to New Post

Pacific lost a straight-forward, good-hearted, jovial, and competent friend when Dean James H. Corson departed from the college on April 15 to take up his new duties as Superintendent of Schools in Modesto.

Jim, as he liked to be called, regretfully left the college he had served for 18 years only because his new post gave him the opportunity to do more widespread work in his field and come into contact with larger groups of students.

Dean of Men at the college since 1934, Corson only this year was elevated to the post of Dean of Personnel of the College of the Pacific and Vice-Principal of Stockton Junior College. As yet the Administration has made no announcement about the reorganization of Corson's work.

Dean Corson graduated from Pacific in 1927 with a degree in philosophy. He then pursued higher achievements and received his Master's degree from the University of Southern California in 1928. During that time he studied under Dr. Kunkel at the Pacific School of Religion and also did a summer of graduate work at the University of California.

In 1928 Dean Corson returned to the San Joaquin Valley, to assume the post of physical education instructor at Modesto Junior College.

Pacific called in 1929, and Jim returned to his Alma Mater to stay for the next 18 years. He started out as varsity track coach, freshman football coach, and counsellor for freshmen. In 1931 he had worked his way up to Director of Athletics, teaching upper division of theory courses in the field, and serving as Assistant Dean of Men. It was just three years later that he became Dean of Men.

It was in 1935 that College of the Pacific became a three-year institution, offering junior, senior, and graduate courses only, and the Stockton Junior College was founded. At that time Dean of Men Corson became also Dean of Students for SJC.

In that capacity he served as liaison officer between the two institutions occupying the same campus, helped to reorganize students of both schools into one association, served as faculty athletic representative to the conference for both institutions, was in charge of housing, fraternity affairs, advisor to student government, and director of the counseling and guidance program for both schools.

Dean Corson has been an active leader in many Stockton civic groups. He has been at different times co-organized and first president of the Stockton Youth and coordinating council, president of the Community Chest, and retires from the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of the board of directors of the YMCA and the Boy Scouts, and director of the campaign for a new YMCA building, which raised over $300,000.

Jim is a past-president of the Pacific Coast Dean of Men's Association and has served as a member of the Methodist Church Area Board of Education. He was active in the work of that denomination in relation to young people's activities.

During the war years he kept in contact with the thousands of former Pacificites by means of a mimeographed letter sent often to the far corners of the world, wherever former Pacific students were. In that letter he kept all of his friends up to date on campus doings in everything from social activities to sports.

Dean Corson is married and his wife has her Master's degree in the field of English. He has four children, ranging in age from 7 to 16.

Perhaps Jim's leaving was best summed up in a letter in the Pacific Weekly by President Burns. It said, "... we rejoice in the advancement that has come to him. However, his place will be a difficult one to fill. . . ."

Alumni College at Los Angeles

Saturday, April 26, was the date for the Annual Alumni College scheduled by members of the Los Angeles Alumni Club. This year's meeting was held at the George Pepperdine College with four members of the COP staff as speakers: Mr. O. H. Ritter—"World Finance," Mr. John Crabbe—"Expanding Vistas in Radio", Dr. George Collier—"Religion in World Conflict", Dr. Harold Jacoby—"Social Trends".

Music Therapy New Pacific Major

The establishment of a major study curriculum in the field of music therapy at the College of the Pacific in Stockton has been announced jointly by President Robert E. Burns and Conservatory Dean John Gilchrist Elliott.

The work will be organized within the Conservatory and Music Department under the direction of Wilhelmina K. Harbert, associate professor of music. Mrs. Harbert declares the new course will be the first organized major in this specialized field to be offered on a Western campus. Career opportunities are rapidly expanding, she believes, and the Pacific course will qualify for such positions as music workers in hospitals, music therapists to work with home-bound children, therapists to work in speech clinics and orthopedic hospitals and other institutions where music can be used as a therapy. Demand for such workers today has for the most part not been met.

Mrs. Harbert has been studying, experimenting, and rendering outstanding service in music therapy for several years and her work has attracted widespread attention among music educators and hospital administrations. She traces her first interest in the field to World War I when she worked in military field hospitals in France.

During World War II she worked with music groups at Hammond Military Hospital, and for several years has conducted music therapy experiments at Stockton State Hospital. Stockton is the only one of the nine state hospitals that have such a program today, Mrs. Harbert reveals, but a move is underway to include a state budget item for such work in the entire system of hospitals.

The curriculum of the new Pacific major features music, education, and psychology department studies as well as the specialized therapy classes. The first therapy classes will be offered during the summer term beginning June 24.

East Bay Pacific Men Active

Fifty East Bay Area Pacific men have enjoyed a series of dinner meetings during the spring. On March 18, at the Claremont Hotel, President Robert E. Burns spoke on the many advancing academic and building projects at Pacific. He parried questions for an hour, indicative of the keen interest of the group in Pacific's policy and future.

Russell Aitken presided. Roger Jacoby is president of the group.

Pacific Sports

By CARROLL DOTY

Pacific gained its first championship in its new athletic affiliation when blonde, smiling Chris Kjeldsen led his Tiger basketball team to the California Collegiate Athletic Association title, winning ten conference games in a row. Individual honors were well distributed.

Towering Jack Toomay, 6' 6" Bengal center, was chosen by the United Press as an All-Coast forward, in company with such illustrious cage personalities as UCLA's Don Barksdale and Davage Minor, OSC's "Red" Rocha, and Nevada's Bob O'Shaughnessy.

Toomay and team-captain Grant Dunlap were placed on the official all-CCAA team, and the San Diego Tribune-Sun placed Dunlap and guard Al Levy on its all-league team.

Returning from an all-victorious 1,000-mile road trip, in which they toppled Santa Barbara, Cal Poly, and San Diego State to run their string of league wins to four straight, the Tigers ran smack into the high-flying San Jose State Spartans in the Pacific gym for their fifth CCAA test. Before a jam-packed crowd of 1,300, the Pacifics eked out a 44-43 win. Earlier in the week the Bengals had trounced San Francisco State in a warm-up game, 70-50.

During the between semesters vacation, Coach Kjeldsen took his cagers to Reno for a two-game series with the University of Nevada. The Wolves came out on top, 60-54 in the opener, but dropped a close to the Tigers the next evening, 47-45. Both games were termed by Pacific players as "extremely rough." Returning to school for the Spring term, the Tigers kept up their merry chase for the league crown, this time at the expense of Fresno State and Santa Barbara College. On February 7, the Bulldogs took it on the chin, 51-37, and the next evening it was the Gaucho's turn to play dead, 51-45.

Favored Santa Clara and Pacific battled it out before over 3,000 Stockton fans in the Civic Auditorium on February 14, with the Broncos putting the Bengals on the road to a two-game losing streak. Paced by forward Sam Alaimo, who tanked 20 points, S. C. won out, 57-50. Toomay was high-point man with 21 digits. The following night a lightly regarded Chico State squad upset the apple cart in Chico with a 64-61 over Pacific.

The Tigers got back on the road to victory on February 21 when they shallacked Cal Poly 83-53,, wrapping up the CCAA crown. With the pressure off, Kjeldsen's men journeyed to Fresno the next night, wrapping up the Bulldogs, 59-53, and then finished off the CCAA season in San Jose, dumping the Spartans, 59-48, to make it ten straight conference wins. The 1947 season ended on a 16 won, 8 lost note on February 28, when the California Aggies went down.

High scorers for the seasons were: Jack Toomay, 363; Grant Dunlap, 217; Hank Pfister, 191; Lou Franz, 134; Ed Cerf, 119; Bud Proulx, 116, and Al Levy, 97. Altogether, the Tigers put through 1,414 points for the season, a new record.

With the basketball nets taken down for the season, Pacific embarked on an ambitious Spring sports program, which included tennis, swimming, baseball, and track. A group of netsters, namely George Druliner, Art Larsen, Hank Pfister, Ted Collins, and Chet Covey, under Coach Phil Garlington, gave Pacific stock a terrific lift when they mopped up the rest of the competition at the first Northern California Intercollegiate Championships in Berkeley, from March 27 to April 4. Lefty Larsen, seeded number three in the tourney, won the singles title, downing team-mate George Druliner, seeded number two, in an all-Pacific final, 6-2, 9-11, 6-2. Larsen and Druliner teamed to beat California's Bill Beale and Ralph Gish, 6-3, 8-6, for the double tilt. And Pacific racked up 13 points to take the team title, making it a clean sweep. Hank Pfister pulled the upset of the tournament in the quarter-finals when he defeated first seed Harry Likas of USF, 0-6, 6-4, 6-4.

On April 5, Stanford's netsters came to Stockton and the Pacific roundly spanked them, six matches to three. Larsen, Druliner, Pfister and Covey won singles matches while Druliner and Pfister and Larsen and Collins teamed to win doubles matches. It was sweet revenge, for Stanford handed the 1946 tennis team two of its three defeats.

The Olympic Club of San Francisco mermen handed the Tiger swimming team its first defeat of the season, on opening day and since then the Pacifics have been invincible, winning from St. Marys, 66 to 9, Cal Poly, 65 to 10, and San Jose State, 44-31, the first time in history a Tiger swimming team had sunk the Spartans. On May 10 in Fresno the CCAA title will be decided, at the conference swimming meet. Jack Toomay, Ken Mork, and Don Driggs have been pacing the Tiger water-abbies.

Bengal baseballers opened their season against the Oakland PCL entry, putting on a creditable showing before bowing, 10-3. Then followed a 12-7 thumping at the hands of St. Marys and Herman Wedemeyer, a 17-4 loss to Santa Clara, and a defeat by California, 6-0, before the league season started. When it did, the Pacifics kept right on with their losing ways, opening the league season with 3-0 and 3-2 losses to Cal Poly, and dropping one, 10-9, to Santa Barbara, before winning one, 6-5, from the Gauchos. The win streak went to two straight when the Tigers dropped highly regarded Pepperdine, 10-4.

Lou Bronzan pitched both Pacific victories, while Jerry Haines, Jim Enos, and Bill McFarland were tagged with the three conference losses. Heavy stick-work for the Tigers was done by Short-stop Grant Dunlap, Catcher Glenn Billyeu, Center Fielder Bud Klein, and First Sacker Sonny Adkins.

As the Review goes to press, Pacific has dropped a close dual meet to powerful Fresno State, 70 to 63. No intercollegiate track meets have been held. Omega Phi Alpha showed plenty of power in winning the annual Intramural meet with 58 points, 11 points ahead of its nearest rival, North Town. Bob Heck, Pacific's sprint man, was individual high scorer, with 11½ points.

Meet records were broken right and left. Heck set new 100-yard and 220-yard dash times of 9.9 and 22.1, respectively. Bill Snyder set a new broadjump record of 21 feet 4½ inches. Bill Stokes set a new 220 low hurdle record of 26.2, and the Omega Phi 880-relay team of Heck, footballer

Bruce Orvis, Stan Johnson, and Snyder set a new mark of 1:33.1.

Official scoring of the meet was: Omega Phi, 58; North Town, 47 1/3; South Town, 22 2/3; North Hall, 20½; Quonset No. 2, 7½, and Quonset No. 1, 6. Rhizomia and Archania did not enter the meet.

Stefan Authors Musical Comedy

"GI Bill", musical comedy satirizing the life of veterans in college, written by BUD STEFAN, ex '43 now doing graduate work in drama at the University of Southern California, was selected as the annual Varsity Show to be produced there.

Pacificites of Stefan's C.O.P. generation will remember his performances in such plays as "Heaven Can Wait", "Sing A New Song", and "The Man Who Came to Dinner". His radio work included "Tic-Tic-Ticket" and the popular "Friday Frolic" broadcasts.

His timely vehicle, "GI Bill", performed May 7, 8, and 9th, depicts the problems facing veterans in college, standing in long lines, red tape of the Veterans Administration, crowded classes, the housing shortage, and inflation in the campus cafeteria which is applicable to almost any institution at this time. Significant of the merit of the show is that it is the first in a number of years to be thoroughly scouted by Hollywood producer DeMille.

Commenting on the show, Stefan said, "A budget of three thousand dollars has been extended to back the production. It calls for a large cast and includes two acts of five scenes each with sixteen good tunes."

Along the radio lines, Bud has been recently successful in writing scripts for station KFWB in Los Angeles, covering war reliefs. Feature broadcasts included the stellar names of Katina Paxinou, on a Greek War Relief airing, and George Murphy for Italian Relief.

At the present writing Stefans is working on a television show at Paramount.

Summer Session Coast-to-Coast

Plans have been completed for the forty-three day Summer Session tour which leaves Stockton by train on June 27th. The first stop is at Carlsbad Caverns. Other points of interest will include New Orleans, Williamsburg, the restored colonial capital of Virginia, Washington, Philadelphia, New York City, Boston, Montreal and Quebec. An outstanding feature of the trip will be a motor trip around the Gaspe' Peninsula with its intriguing old world atmosphere.

Other points to be visited are Prince Edward Island, the birth place of the Dominion of Canada, Niagara Falls, Chicago and the beautiful Banff and Lake Louise areas in the Canadian Rockies, returning via Victoria and Seattle.

A number of typical industries will be visited among which are Radio City, Kimble Glass Company, Bausch and Lomb Optical Company, and Eastman Kodak Company.

Since the party is limited to thirty, it is expected that the quota will be filled rapidly. For information write to Professor J. H. Jonte, College of the Pacific, Stockton 27, California.

and Audrey Beam assumed other offices. "March Madness," Tau Gamma's Spring dance, was supplied by Irv Corren's band, with Patty Lou Peters. Joy Allen was committee chairman.

"The Barretts of Wimpole Street," final Pacific Little Theatre play of the season, opened on Friday night, March 14, and played three more evenings. The popular team of Tony Reid and June Wilde portrayed the love interest roles of Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett, with Robert English turning in a sterling performance as the dominating father. Others in the cast were Monty Rensberger, Byron Meyer, Shirley Reid, Gene McCabe, Marcia Lou Brown, and Nancy Deming. "Calico Capers," Frosh class dance, was held in the Pacific gymnasium on Friday night, March 14. Art Nielsen and his orchestra furnished the music and decorations included bales of hay, scarecrows and livestock caricatures. Ann Slaughter and Bill Snyder were co-chairmen of the dance.

The Pacific Weekly published an exclusive interview with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who spoke under the auspices of the Pacific Lecture Series in the Stockton High School Auditorium on March 12. West Hall installed officers for the Spring term on March 20. Barbara Jones was the new president, with Catherine Knox, Nellie Cooper, and Winifred Ragus taking over other offices. "Your Childhood Desire" was the theme of the Zeta Phi pledge party held in the SCA Building on March 13. Doren Chapelle was general chairman. Monty Rensberger and Bert Trulsson, PLT stars, announced their engagement on March 14

On March 8 Omega Phi Alpha held a dance at the Stockton Rod and Gun Club to the music of Wayne Morrill's orchestra. Bulldog Bounce was the theme, and committee members were Dick House, Frank Jeans, George Segale, and Aubrey Brown. Blossom Time was the theme of the AWS "girl-ask-boy" Spring formal dance, held in the Pacific gym on Saturday, March 22. Irv Corren, with Patty Lou Peters, was on hand with his band. Rita Starangio was chairman.

An open house and tea was given by West Hall on Sunday afternoon, March 9. Stella Pojunas, world's champion typist, gave a demonstration of fast typing in the Administration Building on Thursday, March 20. Miss Ellen Deering, College Registrar, released figures showing that veterans are accumulating a 1.41 average this year at Pacific. Civilian figures showed an average of 1.6. The college A Capella Choir left on March 21 on a 14-day tour in which they sang 17 times. The group journeyed from Stockton via Greyhound to the bay area and then through Northern California to Reno and Salt Lake City, where they appeared before the conference of Western Music Educators and in the famed Mormon Tabernacle before 8,000 people.

Bodley conducts triumphant tour

Returning to California, they broadcast Easter services from Yosemite.

March 21 was the start of International Week on campus, under the guidance of a group of students and professors who banded together to discuss international relations. "The Shoemaker's Holiday," directed by Jack DeVoe, opened March 26 in the Studio Theatre. Dixie Mealer and Art Venable had the leads. George Ker, Pacific football tackle, and Wilma Talboy announced their engagement on March 21.

Alpha Kappa Phi sponsored a Shamrock Dance on March 15, with dancing to music furnished by Campus Station KAEO.

South Hall used Easter as the theme on their formal dance, with Gladys Stoven as general chairman.

Results of a campus survey on Compulsory Military Training revealed that Pacificites, to the tune of 2 to 1, were in favor of it. Death Valley, here we come, was the cry of 280 people, including many Pacific students, who embarked on March 29 for an eight-day sojourn into the southland desert. The caravan included 54 automobiles and two trucks and was the largest in the project's 11-year history, according to Dr. A. T. Bawden and Professor J. H. Jonte, co-director of the trip.

Gamma Eta Kappa, a pre-war town fraternity, was re-activated in March. Laurance Brown was elected first post-war president. Shirley Arthur, pledged to Epsilon, was chosen Belle of Archania on Thursday evening, March 24. Tau Kappa's Pat Corwin was elected president of the Associated Women's Students on March 20.

Nine Mardi Gras Queen candidates were chosen, to be elected by the PSA on Thursday, April 17. The winner was announced at the Ball in the Auditorium on Saturday, April 19. Nominated were Arlien Skaggs, Pacific Co-op; Lola Galli, Tau Gamma; Cecelia Casey, Zeta Phi; Loretta Walker, South Hall; Gerry Moffatt, Tee Kay; Margie Marks, East Hall; Irene Kaiser, Epsilon; Barbara Accornero, West Hall, and Robin Hermansen, Alpha Thete. Marge Hiers was last year's Queen.

Dean of Personnel James H. Corson resigned from the college effective April 15, to take up duties as Superintendent of Schools in Modesto. He had been a member of the administration for 18 years. Directed by Marilyn Dow, the sixth Studio Theatre play of the season, "The Duchess of Malfi," opened April 12. Shirley Frost played the title role. Leslie Baxter was elected president of Nu Alpha Kappa, Sophomore Women's Honorary Society, on March 26. Jean Hicok and Robert Zink announced their engagement during Easter vacation in Colusa. Jean is a Zeta Phi pledge and Zink is affiliated with Archania. Willie Bovarski and Dottie Adams were married on March 30 in Morris Chapel, followed by a reception at Alpha Thete.

President Robert E. Burns announced that he expected the first unit of the new Student Union building to be completed by next fall. Station KAEO installed a United Press teletype machine in their studios, bringing to the campus late news almost as it happens.

Pacificites In Social Administration

Several former Pacificites had a chance to talk about old times when they met at the National Conference of Social Welfare held in April in San Francisco. Word has been received about the following: BURTA BEERS TAYLOR '29, teaching pre-professional social work at Fresno State.

KATERINE KINSEY '32, performing medical social service at a veteran's hospital in the East Bay.

LOUISA ADAMS '28, in the State Department of Social Welfare in Sacramento.

PATRICIA SEEVERS '40, with the Catholic Charities Orphanage, San Francisco.

REID BULLOCK '37, as Child Welfare and Attendance Officer in Vallejo.

JACK PARSONS '35, assistant professor of Sociology at the University of Oregon.

College of the Pacific Professor Harold Jacoby '28 was elected regional vice-president of the California Conference of Social Welfare at their meeting in San Francisco.

A YMCA has older high school boys club and an athletic director for girls clubs, an Episcopalian Sunday School organized in a community housing project area now has the added staff necessary to operate a modern, graded school and to handle an enrollment increase of over fifty per cent—these just to sample the service training program which today has twenty-two major students in accredited field assignments. A working arrangement for cooperative supervision of these students has been established with the various community agencies to which they are assigned.

Academically, the Christian Community Administration students have access to four major curricula.

(1) A general major in Religious Education for prospective ministers and others not included among the following.

(2) A major in Christian Community Administration, designed for those who intend to direct the program in local churches or social agencies.

(3) A major in Church Recreation.

Pacific In Theatrical News

Former Pacific Little Theatre players are increasingly prominent in theatrical news. LOIS WHEELER of Stockton is now starred on Broadway in "All My Sons", the great success which was recently named winner of the annual New York Drama Critics Circle Award.

JOSEPHINE VAN FLEET recently opened in a Broadway play, while JOHN PIERCE (JACK HOLMES) stepped out of the big musical hit "Annie Get Your Gun" after fifteen months without missing a performance (eight per week). He will work with a Los Angeles production group during the summer.

BARBARA BAXLEY, one of the latest group of De Marcus Brown players to storm New York, is completing her training at the Neighborhood Playhouse. LITAFRANCES DARWIN is also a Playhouse student, while LELIA (CASEY) RUGGERI is studying at the American Academy of Dramatic Art. ROBERT NICHOLS recently arrived in England to enter the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

lation with other established departments. Christian Community Administration Curriculum will be kept in no air tight cell, but will enjoy complete collaboration with all departments toward curriculum building for the CCA trainees.

The department of business administration is helping to construct a course leading to Goodwill Industry management work. The School of Education, alert to Pacific's church relationships, as well as the department of speech are cooperating in the development of audio-visual training.

But the field work becomes the heart of the curriculum since it affords the organization experience to which the student can relate the various theoretical and practical studies he is taking. Studies lead to the bachelor of arts degree, and a series of graduate studies for the various majors will lead on to the master of arts degree.

Key to the initial success of Pacific's training center for Christian service careers is the director of Christian Community Administration, and the fine type of student this challenging organization has attracted to the Pacific campus. Frank A. Lindhorst, appointed to the new post in 1945, combined a rich background of christian education experience with an adventurous foreground and a willingness to experiment.

A product of Methodist-related education, Lindhorst won degrees at De Pauw University and Boston University School of Theology. At Harvard and the University of Chicago he has pursued graduate studies. He became a Boy Scout executive in Arizona, served as a chaplain in World War I, returned to scouting administration in Nebraska, and then entered the very new field of religious education.

He began as director for a church, and then entered the same work for the Wilmington Conference in Delaware. Later he became Associate in Field Work for the Board of Education, and then director of Christian Education for the Midwest Region embracing Iowa, Illinois and Missouri. He came to the College of the Pacific from the position of Executive Secretary and Counselor in Christian Education for the Des Moines area of the Methodist Church.

With direction of this caliber, backed by a college president committed to the strengthening of the church relationships of the College, and with fine physical facilities reserved for it, the project in Christian Community Administration will be permanent and productive. No hap-hazard or stop-gap training device, it is maintained on the highest academic standard. Christian career training on this level will catch the attention of qualified youth throughout the west and earn the serious consideration of responsible counselors of youth in both church and school.

Already it is commanding the interest of our best church leadership. President Burns has announced the conditional gift of $30,000 by Mr. and Mrs. Osro Sears of Bakersfield, which with about $15,000 added accessions will meet the qualification of the donor and provide sufficient funds to add a north wing to the Morris Chapel Building. This will give Christian Community Administration growing room and space for specialized work, particularly in the area of modern audio-visual teaching techniques. The college hopes for quick response for the added funds required to make the Sear's gift effective.

Christian Community Administration has a staff of five instructors including the director and the chairman of the religious education department. The others are church recreation expert Lawton Harris, the director of the Stockton "released times" schools, Clarence E. Reynolds, and literature professor Irving Goleman.

The appointment of Lola Hazelwood from the Des Moines Area commission on Christian education, will augment the staff beginning in the fall term. She will teach childrens' work techniques and church school curriculum, as well as directing laboratory projects in various churches.

Classes in audio-visual education are now in the production process of a film strip with sound, to tell the story of the program for the training of Christian leaders at the College of the Pacific. When available for exhibit, it will demonstrate, in a manner better than any but an extended visit to the campus, that Christian Community Administration is a name to conjure with in higher education.
