OUTSTANDING SUMMER SCHOOL
TEACHING STAFF ASSEMBLED
VARIED COURSES FOR ADULTS PLANNED

Drawing on personnel of leading educational institutions, the Adult Education Department has assembled an outstanding summer school staff.

From University of Nevada, in Reno, comes Professor Alice B. March who holds a master's degree in home economics and in education. Mrs. March has had extensive experience in the organization and management of food processing enterprises and in institutional management.

Mrs. March will offer courses here in waitress training and housekeeping for upgrade project workers, and to aid those wishing to prepare for vocationai opportunities outside. The first opportunities will be presented to workers already working in these fields.

If needed equipment can be assured, Mrs. March will also assist in supervising the Agricultural Division's canning or project produce. In that event, OSYA canning class will be scheduled. Successful

A carload of scrap tin, conforming to the government's specifications, of 23,000 cans in Fairbanks, it has been sent from this Project to the government's scrap metal dump at South Nome, has 30,000 lbs., has been received at Nome.

First prize in the Relocation Center Art Exhibit at Cambridge, Mass., was awarded to Professor Chiura Obata, of Topaz, for his painting, "New Moon," according to a Dispatch report. Special competition, the artist on the Tule Lake Center will be held for residents.

Mr. C. E. Marr, principal of the Modoc Adult High School, will offer a new service in bi-lingual meetings devoted to "Understanding America," in Marian Francis announced.

Until recently, the War Department prohibited teaching in Japanese; but the ban has been finally lifted. Courses such as "Understanding America," in which current news will be briefly summarized and during which important topics for consultation with the class will be undertaken will clear up many misunderstandings.

Colonists' participation in the discussion will be welcomed. Interpretative possibilities for non-Japanese speaking residents to express themselves as well as to ask questions so that they may fully understand what is being said. Schedule of meetings will be announced later.

TULE LAKE FIRST TO HAVE HOG FARM, SLAUGHTERHOUSE

Tule Lake Project was the first among all the centers to have a hog raising farm and a slaughterhouse. The hog farm and the slaughterhouse are combined under Agriculture Marketing.

Heading the slaughterhouse crew is Kai Kinoshita, foreman, with Tani Tani as head of the herd crew, and Mickey Takagi, assistant foreman. There are approximately 20 other workers, most of whom had experience in butchering before.

An average of 50 hogs per week are slaughtered for Project.

After the hogs are killed and cleaned, then they are cut into bacon, loins, hams, shoulders, and ribs. The bacon is salted and smoked by Tani Tani as head of the lard have been slaughtered.

FLOWER CLASS
A Banke Morihana-ru class will start Wednesday, June 9, at 5708 with Miss Aiko Yokota in charge and classes will be held thereafter at 2-4 p.m. every Wednesday. Registration will be taken at the opening class.

WANTED: Workers for the Dispatch office is in need of help. Workers can apply at the Co-op office at 717-A.

S.F.'s FORMER JAPANESE TOWN WAS SHABBY, SAYS MASHIHARA

John Mashihara, #433-A, who was in San Francisco for a period of eight days to prosecute a civil lawsuit, returned to the Project Monday. Mashihara apparently won the case and is being settled outside the court.

Mashihara said that he went unnoticed on the city streets. "Probably they thought I was a Chinese," he remarked. "When they did find out that I was a Japanese first thing I was asked was not what I was doing in the Prohibited Area but what a certain Ito or a Sato who ran a store down the street was doing. Were they in the same camp as I am?"

The former Hayward nurseryman said that the San Francisco's former Japanese town was shabby and dirty. Brudkars are littering on the streets. Photo picture of Mashihara testifying in the court was used to accompany one of the series of articles in the S.F. Chronicle written by Milton Silverman.

LOST: A red tricycle with chromium finish around Canteen No. 1. Please return to 706-D.

OUR EDITOR LEAVES TOMORROW

Teiya Nakanakara, intimately known as Toots among his friends, has been the editor and member of the editorial board of THE DISPATCH for the last months. As a quiet, assuring and efficient editor, his sound editorial judgments successfully bridged the gap between the administration and the Evanses.

Nakamura's sincerity and earnestness has won the respect of the staff members. A political science major at U.W., he is a veteran of journalism.

Prior to his transfer here, he was connected with the Logger. He was one of the few veterans left on the DISPATCH.
