KEEPING UP WITH THE ALUMNI

1956 - 57 ANNUAL FUND DONORS

HOMEcoming AHEAD

Alumni homecoming for 1957, Saturday, October 19, is billed as Pacific's 100th Homecoming.

Whether or not there have been organized reunions in every year since Pacific's first graduates received diplomas in 1858, some former students — individually or in groups — must have revisited the campus annually, according to Alumni Executive Manager Mel Nickerson. Hence the centennial tag for '57.

General chairman for the roundup is Sherwood Norton, class of 1941. Highlights of the program include the student-faculty barbecue on Friday night, October 18, the gigantic bonfire that traditionally and strikingly silhouettes the campus skyline and a rally in Pacific Auditorium.

The 10:30 a.m. Homecoming Parade on Pacific Avenue, luncheons and receptions for campus living groups in the afternoon, four class reunion banquets and a general Alumni Barbecue and Rally at the Outdoor Theatre in the early evening, all precede the Saturday night grid game, Pacific versus Idaho.

Class of 1927 meets in the Anderson Y Center, Class of 1932 at The Reef in Lincoln Village, Class of 1937 at Hotel Stockton, and Class of 1947 at the House of Murphy.

After the game, alumni are invited to dance in the Joaquin Room of Hotel Stockton to the music of alumnus Pete Davanis and his "Tiger Town Five." The big week-end will be capped by the traditional Homecoming devotional service in Morris Chapel on Sunday morning, October 20.

Complete announcements and instructions are mailed separately to all alumni on mailing lists. All information is available by addressing the Alumni Office, College of the Pacific, Stockton 4, California.

ALUMNI REUNION

Alumni of Rhizomia (Rho Lambda Phi) will hold a reunion luncheon Homecoming day, October 19, on the campus at the fraternity house.

Members of the old line C.O.P. society will lay plans for the centennial celebration in 1958 of its founding, and will discuss prospects for the reactivation of the order, now languishing under a three-year suspension. In the May issue, the Review erroneously announced the centennial observance for 1957.

Reservations and requests for information may be addressed to Joe Hodson, 5911 N. Claremont St., Stockton.

MOVING?

Send your new address to the Alumni Association office. It's a never ending job, involving hundreds of changes annually, to keep the mailing list corrected. If we do not have your present address, please send it. For many alumni we have no current address. The Pacific Review goes free to every alumnus we can reach.

The CAMPUS NEWS Front

by ART FAREY

FIRST BRICK: President Robert E. Burns, with an assist from Valerie White, class of 1961, lays the first brick for the big new girls dormitory where the frosh coed will live next year. She is the daughter of C.O.P. alumnus Glenn White, '35, Shell Chemical executive in New York.

ENROLLMENT AT NEW PEAK

Pacific welcomed more than 350 freshmen on September 8, largest class in its history which now spans 106 years. Total registration of full time students had passed 1300 at Review press time, also a new high.

Campus housing was swamped out. Dormitories are at maximum capacity, all available space in fraternity and sorority houses is occupied by "term-ites." Withdrawn from student married couples, Manor Hall is a regular girls dormitory, and the married ones must arrange their own housing. Off-campus rooms for nearly a hundred more non-resident students was also sought by Director of Residence Catherine Davis.

Newcomers and returnees found the new 400 capacity dormitory-dining hall for women nearly 25 per cent completed and will watch its progress during the school year. Including furnishings and equipment, it is a $1,300,000 plus project, largest building ever erected at Pacific.

100TH GRADUATION

Another highlight in the continued story of Pacific came on June ninth with the observance of the 100th commencement exercises.

Pacific's first degrees were awarded on precisely the same date, 1858. Fittingly, the latest graduates were addressed by the Governor of the state which had granted to Pacific—during the first year of statehood—the first charter for a college within the boundaries of the commonwealth. Said Mr. Knight to the class of '56, "A college diploma is a passport to a better, fuller, more satisfactory life than would otherwise be possible, but it does not guarantee an easier, more tranquil existence."

The ceremonies also were marked by an unprecedented downpour which dumped a quarter of an inch of rain into Baxter Stadium in ten minutes, beginning precisely at 7 p.m. with the academic procession poised for the stately march into the arena. Instead, spectators and participants joined in a disorganized retreat to Pacific Auditorium where the exercises got underway some forty minutes later. Some relatives and friends as well as many of the general audience could not find places; the faculty was dismissed to help make room for more than 300 degree winners themselves.

Quipped President Robert E. Burns, "we all knew the Governor was plagued with water problems, but we certainly didn't expect him to bring them here tonight."

Governor Knight was one of five recipients of honorary degrees. He was cited by Dr. Burns for his friendship and loyalty to the people of the commonwealth and the College, and hooded by Chancellor Knoles as the degree Doctor of Laws was awarded.

Others similarly honored were alumnus D. Clifford Crummey, minister of Grace Methodist Church, Stockton, Doctor of Divinity; Frank Webber of Mill Valley, treasurer of the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church, Doctor of Business Administration; William John Burkhard, superintendent of the Sacramento School System, Doctor of Pedagogy; and S. Douglas Walters, Superintendent of the Long Beach District of the Methodist Church, Doctor of Divinity.

The only graduating senior to win highest academic honors was listed in the program as Deborah Brooks (of Davis), but twenty-four hours earlier she had become Mrs. Arthur Corra, wife of Pacific's band director.

NEW OFFICERS NAMED

On June 15, the Pacific Board of Trustees made two significant announcements: the appointment of Robert Winterberg, Pacific graduate of 1951, as Business Manager of the College, and the establishment of a School of Engineering at Pacific headed by Dean Adelbert Diefendorf.

Winterberg succeeded Dr. Alfred Dale, professor of business administration, who filled the management post on an interim term following the resignation of James Blair in 1954. Dr. Dale continued full time teaching. Winterberg, who had been on the business office staff originally under Mr. O. H. Ritter, returned to the campus a year ago after extensive military service and training in the administration of military finance.

Raising of the former department of engineering to school status marks the broadening of work in this field, increase in the faculty, and occupation of a newly remodeled and equipped building and laboratories. The new dean is former chairman of the department of engineering at the University of Utah. Dr. Felix Wallace, chairman of the former C.O.P. department since 1947, continues as chairman of the Civil and Management Engineering

Departments in the new school. Appropriately, in the same announcement the new engineering building was designated Baun Hall, named for Ted F. Baun of Fresno, Pacific engineering graduate now President of the Board of Trustees and principal donor to the recent advance of engineering at Pacific.

THREE TRUSTEES ELECTED

At the same June meeting the Pacific governing board named three new members: J. E. Countryman, San Francisco, Vice-President of the California Packing Corporation; C. Vernon Hansen, Sacramento, operator of the Crystal Creameries and KCRA-TV; and Dr. Elliott Fisher, San Jose, a District Superintendent of the Methodist Church.

CHURCH HIKES COLLEGE AID

The annual session of the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church concluded June 17 on the campus. The budget adopted included $32,000 for Pacific—up $8,000 from the past year, a cue that the church is giving serious attention to a national, quadrennial emphasis of Methodism on the support of its systems of related colleges, universities, and seminaries.

SUMMER SESSIONS GROWING

In these days, Pacific plunges from the annual conference into a complex summer season involving two five-week sessions on the Stockton campus and at the Pacific Marine Station (Marin County), a seven-week summer drama season at the Fallon House

PROGRESS: On August 19, Pacific's big new dormitory looked like this, the camera shooting from east to west.

Theatre in Columbia State Park, and three weeks of the Philosophy Institute at Lake Tahoe.

The first session enrolled 1110 and the second 843—for gains of three and nine per cent, respectively—while the institute enrolled 389. Stacked on top of these were the Pacific Music Camp and Pacific Folk Dance Camp, two summer sessions for Methodist ministers and a week of instruction for Methodist women's groups.

PACIFIC FACULTY EXPANDING

New faculty appointments, not previously announced in the Review:

Joel W. Hedgpeth, Ph.D., Professor of Zoology and resident Director of the Pacific Marine Station, from the Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

Donald Y. Barker, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Pharmacy, from University of Manitoba.

Lawrence F. Conant, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Education and Psychology, from University of Oregon.

Arner E. Gustafson, A.B., Assistant Professor of Health and Physical Education, from New Mexico A and M College.

Clifford J. Hand, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of English, from University of Chicago.

Kenneth L. Lewis, M.F.A., Assistant Professor of Education, from University of Oklahoma.

Ronald E. Santoni, M.A., Assistant Professor of Philosophy, from Fulbright study in Europe.

Gordon C. Zimmerman, A.M., Assistant Professor of Speech, from University of Michigan

New instructors include Dr. Lewis M. Barber, hospital pharmacy; Wilbert O. Crockett, English; Curtis Ennen, speech and theatre; Lola Johnson, English; Mrs. Cisco Kihara, pharmacy; and Stanley Volbrecht, geology.

Donald Ranstead, B.L.S., is new Reference Librarian, from Northwestern University.

Robert H. Dann, Visiting Professor of Sociology, is retired from Oregon State College, and Philip N. Iloff, Visiting Professor of Mathematics, is retired from Chico State College.

BERTHOLF IN NEW POST

Not previously announced in the Review is the advancement of Dean Lloyd M. Bertholf to the new post of Academic Vice-President of the College.

The move, approved by the Board of Trustees in May, reflects the changed academic structure of Pacific, a college of liberal arts in which there are grounded five professional or graduate level schools: music, education, Asian Studies (in San Francisco), pharmacy, and engineering. Dr. Bertholf will continue to oversee the work of the college of liberal arts, and will coordinate the program of the various schools, as well as directing general academic aspects of college life. He was first appointed to the Pacific faculty as Dean in 1947.

TEAMMATES

The 95th birthday of Amos Alonzo Stagg on August 16 stimulated a tremendous amount of feature writing and broadcasting across the nation about "Mr. Football," Pacific's coach from 1933 to 1946.

Grateful that the most famous and beloved of amateur sportsmen and Mrs. Stagg have kept their home in Stockton and maintained their neighborly place in the Pacific family ever since, Pacific folks staged a banquet for them on August 10. The date came just after Stella Stagg's 82nd birthday, just before Amos Stagg's 95th, and exactly one month ahead of their 63rd wedding anniversary.

The heartwarming Pacific event, planned for both of them and featuring a special biographical-pictorial production titled Teammates, was attended by 200. Guests included some 40 of his former C.O.P. players, representing every one of his 14 Tiger teams.

Principal speaker was William "Bill" Becker, one of Stagg's Pacific boys who followed him from Chicago to enroll at Pacific and play football for him. Now of the New York Times staff, the journalist flew out especially for this occasion.

Said Becker, "No tribute would be complete without mentioning the influence Mr. Stagg has had on our times. The game he built is forever indelibly impressed in the warp and woof of American life." The summary remark followed fascinating anecdotal material in which the speaker illustrated Stagg's skill and strategy, concern for his players, his humility, and high principles of sportsmanship.

Said Mr. Stagg, "It's beautiful getting together like this. Belonging! Belonging! It's a great thing to belong. It gets hold of your heart and soul. There is nothing like it. We all belong to one another, and it will always be that way.

"You treated us as one of your own. We came from Chicago but you took us into your hearts and we have

TEAMMATES:

Stella and Amos Stagg received from master of ceremonies Tully C. Knoles a "Pacific Family" anniversary greeting at an August 10 campus banquet for the famed football pair.

GREETINGS: From his native city of West Orange, New Jersey, the congratulatory document of Mayor A. Quinn and his Board of Commissioners was delivered to Mr. Stagg by Bill Becker, '39, "New York Times" reporter, and speaker for the Pacific banquet honoring Mr. and Mrs. Stagg.

called it home ever since. We haven't wanted to move away at any time. I don't know how long it will go on. I want to live long enough to take care of Stella, and Stella wants to live long enough to take care of me. We're in love with one another. That is sufficient."

Mr. Stagg paid tender tribute to Stella, his lifelong teammate whom he met at the University of Chicago where she enrolled with the first class to enter the University in 1892. He individually acknowledged the presence of each of his Pacific players at the gathering.

Said Mrs. Stagg, "I want to thank you all," probably the longest public speech delivered by the American woman best informed on football, and certainly the most sincere and successful dodger of personal publicity the game has ever known.

The Stagg's have not retired. Working on the field with the Stockton College Mustangs, and assisting coach Don Hall—one of his former C.O.P. centers—Mr. Stagg installs and supervises kicking and passing formations for this top junior college squad, conference champs and Potato Bowl winners last year. And Mrs. Stagg still keeps things going at home including extensive correspondence, note taking, and record keeping.

COP FACULTY GOES TV

The past six months have seen several C.O.P. faculty members appear on the Sunday afternoon TV program on international affairs, "No Man Is An Island," on Sacramento Station KCRA-TV, Channel 3, at 3:30 p.m. Dr. Alonzo Baker, Professor of Political Science and International Relations, is the moderator. Those who have appeared recently are President Robert E. Burns and Dr. Malcolm Eiselen on present day Russia, Chancellor Tully C. Knoles on the Khrushchev policies, Dr. Edwin Ding on Chiang Kai-shek and Formosa, Dr. Harold Jacoby on Japan, Dr. Arthur Beckwith and Dr. Fred Aden on Argentina, Elliott Taylor on Yugoslavia, Dr. Willis Potter on Syria, and Dr. Malcolm Moule on East Africa.

Burns Reports on Russia

President Robert E. Burns made his second address before the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco in August. He replaced U.S. Senator William F. Knowland who had to cancel his speaking engagement because of the delay in the adjournment of congress. As a pinch hitter, Dr. Burns scored a home run, winning a standing ovation for his address on Russia.

Just returned from a tour of the Soviet, his second in 14 months, he is one of a very few Americans to have visited Russia twice since World War II.

In his address he called for more instruction on the Russian language and culture in this country's schools.

"The Russian people and their Communist government will continue to pose the number one problem to the United States for many years," Doctor Burns said. "We must get more courses into our schools to learn what makes these people tick."

President Burns told Commonwealth Club members that Russia is becoming "one of the best educated nations in the world" and predicted that by 1975 more than 75 per cent of the Russian children would be taking English courses in school.

He added two observations—one pessimistic and one optimistic.

"Religion in its present form in Russia," he said, "won't last long. It is passing away with the death of the older generation because the Soviet state does not allow a system of Sunday schools for children."

"But the extent of education in Russia," Doctor Burns commented, "may be the basis for our hope for an enlightened Russia in the brotherhood of nations. The Communist dictators may very well be educating themselves out of their jobs."

Among the members of the tour which Dr. Burns conducted were Ted F. Baun, President of the Pacific board of trustees, Mrs. Baun, Pacific Associate and Mrs. Frank McKeegan of Stockton and his sister, Mrs. Josephine Tompkins of Atlanta, Georgia; Pacific alumnus Rudolph Ferguson of Newman, Dr. J. F. O'Donnell and Anne Raggio of Stockton; William Peters of Manteca, Fedora Ross of San Anselmo, Mrs. Myrtle Showler of Sacramento, Grace Pickard of San Francisco, Dorothy David and Roxy Alexander of Vallejo, and Mr. and Mrs. Carroll H. Baird of Fresno.

New High For Knoles

Forty-five years ago Tully C. Knoles operated a cattle ranch in the Owens Valley of Inyo County from which he many times saw the crest of Mount Whitney, highest elevation in the United States. But not until July 30, 1957 at age 81 did he ascend the peak. As anyone acquainted with Dr. Knoles and his career would readily conclude, he did it on horseback.

Chancellor Knoles' daughter, Edith, who is a Beverly Hills High School teacher, and two mountain trail packing company representatives, Mrs. Barbara Jefferson and wrangler "Rusty" Criner, accompanied the educator on the ride from Whitney Portals to the 14,502 feet summit and return. The party camped out two nights.

The determination of Dr. Knoles to ride to the top of the majestic mountain stems from a thesis, A History of Mount Whitney, presented by Crispin Melton Wood for a master of arts degree in history at Pacific in 1955. A member of the thesis committee, Knoles was intrigued by the description, history, geology, discovery, explorations, and the scientific uses of Mount Whitney as developed in the research paper.

Knoles also found himself in the treatise. A chapter titled Mount Whitney Meets the Aeroplane relates how on June 25, 1914, from Lone Pine, one Silas Christofferson flew over the mountain in a 100 horsepower, tractor bi-plane at an elevation of 15,725 feet, or 1225 feet above the summit. The achievement was carefully authenticated by a Board of Observation which prepared an official statement, among the signators to which is Tully C. Knoles, A.M., Pastor, M.E. Church. Until appraised of the fact by Dr. Knoles himself author Wood had no idea that the Tully Knoles of his research and of his thesis committee, is the same person.

The residence of Dr. Knoles and his family in Inyo County at the time of the spectacular flight was brought about by what appeared to be a disastrous interruption in his distinguished academic career. He was chairman of the department of history at the University of Southern California in 1912 when he suffered a physical collapse. Physicians gave him no assurance he could ever regain his health. One said, "You're through." Another suggested he might borrow a little time by living in the open. But the three-year interlude of rugged outdoor ranch life, with some local preaching and teaching added, redeveloped a remarkable stamina. Nearly a half century later, the man who was "through" at thirty-six was to stand on the peak of the mountain which had shadowed the valley of his travail—and triumph.

From the summit, where his party lingered for two hours, Dr. Knoles could see almost all of the Owens Valley where his ranch was located, the White mountains and the Inyo Range beyond it, as well as "innumerable snow covered peaks to the north, south, and west." Of the climbing feat itself Dr. Knoles said, "to tell you the unvarnished truth, it was not as difficult as you would imagine,"

Lectureship In Religious Education Set

TOP NATIONAL LEADERS WILL SPEAK AT PACIFIC

The fourth in a group of annual educational lectureships at Pacific will be inaugurated on December 2, 3, and 4, 1957, announced as the C.O.P. Lectureship Foundation in Religious Education, Group Work, and Recreation.

Previously established are the Knoles Lectures in Philosophy (1950), the Faculty Research Lectures (1951), and the Tippet Lectures in Religious Perspective in Higher Education (1956).

A project of the Department of Bible and Religious Education, and particularly of its advisory group of Pacific Associates, the new lectureship will bring distinguished leadership to the campus for the inaugural program on the theme of the fine arts.

Harold Ehrensperger of Boston University, national leader in the religious use of drama; Ruth St. Denis, one of the greatest names in dance and creator of sacred dances; Natalie Robinson Cole, expert on classroom use of the arts; and Augustus D. Zanzig, recreational music authority, will be presented in a series of lectures, demonstrations, workshops and seminars.

Dr. George H. Colliver, founder and chairman of the sponsoring department, says the objective of the lectureship is to provide a new opportunity for study, fellowship, and inspiration to all people engaged in the work of Christian character development through the home, church, school, and the various group work and youth agencies.

Representative, statewide, interdenominational committees have collaborated in organizing the lectureship. A complete formal announcement listing committees and sponsors is available by addressing Dr. Colliver. Enrollment in the inaugural lectures may also be arranged through his office.

modest appraisal of a rugged if not extremely dangerous undertaking. The altitude, he declared, caused him no discomfort whatsoever. He praised the carefully graded modern trail with 120 "cutbacks" that leads from Whitney Portals to the final ascent up a sometimes very narrow granite ridge and along the famous "chimneys" of Mount Whitney.

Dr. Knoles is also full of praise for Wood's thesis which he re-read after his return to Stockton. The writer now is a teacher in Oregon.

Blackfield Projects Booming

William Blackfield, home builder extraordinary, broke ground July 19 in Hawaii, for a $10,000,000 construction development that will raise 570 new, modern dwellings in Windward Oahu for suburban Honolulu commuters.

The C.O.P. political science and economics student of the middle thirties first built a house in Stockton with $300 cash, and credit from a lumber company. Since then the William Blackfield Organization, and various subsidiaries, have built more than 8000 in Northern California. One of his first mass-produced designs, featured at Rex Manor, Concord, won the National Association of Home Builders top award for 1951.

In 1955, Blackfield entered the Hawaiian development picture, putting up 112 homes in the Piikoi Subdivision. He was recently elected a Vice-President and Director of Hawaiian Juice Industries, and is President of the Suburban Development Company which operates the Pali Palms Hotel in Kailua.

The rapidly rising ex-Pacificite was born in Stockton, where his parents had settled after fleeing Rumania before World War I. At Pacific he was a member of Amos Alonzo Stagg's first squad. The engineer-lawyer-contractor was a project engineer with the Bechtel Corporation during World War II, and became Assistant Chief Engineer of Marin Shipbuilding Corporation before entering the home building field.

He first aimed to build expensive houses. "But I saw it was not helping the great mass of people and I embarked on a program of low-cost, well constructed homes," he says.

Blackfield has a philosophy about it, as well as skill and know-how that has startled the building industry. "Under communism people lose their homes. Every American who owns a home has a share in his country, an investment. That is why every American should own a home, no matter what his income bracket. You don't raise communists in happy homes.

FOUNDATION GAINS INDUSTRY AID

Pacific President Robert E. Burns is now president also of two principal area collegiate organizations: The Western College Association and the California Independent Colleges Foundation.

The former is a long established academic union of 48 California and Hawaii colleges and universities which functions as the regional accrediting agency for higher education. The latter is a Northern California group of eight privately endowed institutions, a development organization aimed at encouraging business and industrial financial support for colleges, and now in its third year.

After two years devoted mostly to organizing work, the Foundation is emerging as an important finance factor in the life of Pacific and the schools associated with it. First year gifts totaled $4,725, the 1956 income was $34,600, while 1957 had already produced $98,000 on September 15, with more than three months to go.

After operating expenses are paid, Sixty per cent of the Foundation income is divided equally among eight member colleges. The remaining forty per cent is distributed on the basis of enrollment. The members are Pacific, University of San Francisco, Dominican College of San Rafael, Santa Clara University, College of Holy Names (Oakland), College of Notre Dame (Belmont), San Francisco College for Women, and St. Mary's College.

One of many similar regional development groups organized during the past decade throughout the U.S., the Independent Colleges Foundation is opening up the participation of industry in a way not possible for individual schools, President Burns declares. Private industry, he believes, is becoming more and more aware of its obligation to private education as a prime source of leadership personnel.

The Foundation gives industry a chance to help the whole private college structure. At the same time, any concern is free to make other direct gifts to individual colleges of its choice.

The California Independent Colleges Foundation operates an office at 742 Market Street, San Francisco, under the management of Miss Mary Murphy, Executive Secretary, a graduate of the College of Holy Names.

PLENTY OF OPTIONS: Quarterback Tom Flores, No. 50, with fullback Tom Green, 59, blocking, has four eligible pass receivers in the open, a demonstration of why Pacific has an effective passing game.

by CARROLL R. DOTY
ATHLETIC NEWS DIRECTOR

By the time classes at the College opened on September 12 there were 46 football players on the Bengal squad ready to tackle the 1957 grid schedule. Of the 46, 13 are seniors, 13 are juniors and 20 are sophomores.

A mere examination of those figures shows that Coach Jack Myers has the problem of experience to face throughout the fall season.

There are starters at six positions from the 1951 crew—Left end Farrell Funston, right tackle Bill Striegel, right end Bob Denton, quarterback

Myers has very little to worry about at those positions because those seven players are the Bengal nucleus and have proven they can do the job. He even has good depth behind them, with Ola Murchison and Chuck Lander at left end, Wayne Hawkins and Harlin Payton at right tackle, Ed Sowash and Bill Fowler at right end, Chuck Filice and Gary Hubb at quarterback, Ken Uselton and Ed Schwartz at fullback, and Roger Metoyer and Henry Wallace at left half.

But the other five spots, four in the forward wall, are where the success or failure of the season may well hang.

TIGERS LOSE BASS

Dick Bass, nationally heralded C.O.P. halfback, broke his right leg in an intra squad practice game at Sacramento, September 14, and was out for the season—before the season began.

Injury has plagued the college career of Northern California's most publicized high school star. After a dazzling freshman record at Pacific, Bass played four games as a sophomore and was the nation's leading ground gainer when a knee injury sidelined him for most of the balance of the schedule. Corrective surgery had cleared up this difficulty and Bass was apparently ready for a great 1957 showing. Wait till next year!

John Williams, a letterman guard last fall, has been shifted to left tackle. Carl Kammerer from Stockton College, and Larry Jones and Ed Wallace from the Frosh, give the Tigers four players taking their first fling at the position in college ball.

Ken Castles from Stockton College, Joe Malpasuto from Pierce JC and Stan Swanson (back from service after lettering in 1953) comprise the left guards.

Lettermen centers Roland Rutter and Mich Yamamoto, along with letterman tackle Adrian Vera who was shifted to the pivot, are battling for that job.

Bob Sartwell, a non-letterman, and Floyd Weaver, a letterman, along with sophomore Sal Siino, are manning right guard.

At right half no lettermen are in evidence with seniors Chuck Chatfield and Joe Golenor, junior Bob Coronado and sophomore Norman Bass all going for the job.

The 17 players listed above at the five positions have size, speed and athletic ability, but only three of them earned letters at those positions in 1956 and none were starting players.

The Tigers are presenting their wide-open offense once again, featuring the T formation with the left end split and the right halfback flanked outside.

Highlighted by the passing of Flores, the receiving of Funston and Denton, and the running of Bass and Larscheid, that offense pushed the Bengals into a fourth ranking nationally in total offense last fall. With the same "horses" back, plus some added pass catching and running strength, Pacific may well be able to up its ranking in total offense a notch or two.

The Tigers are certain to be one of the nation's most entertaining teams to watch.

In Memory

CAREER ENDED: Dr. J. William Harris, Dean Emeritus of the School of Education, died on August 31.

Dr. J. William Harris, founder and dean emeritus of the College of the Pacific School of Education, died at his home near the campus on August 31 after several years of failing health. He was 79.

His remarkable teaching career spanned a half century. Appointed to the Pacific faculty at San Jose in 1910 he taught thousands of Pacific students, more than 1700 of whom are estimated to have entered teaching. He last appeared in the classroom in 1954 after having served under five Pacific presidents.

Dr. Harris' organization of the state accredited School of Education in 1924, when the College occupied the Stockton campus, began one of the great academic expansions in Pacific's history and laid the foundation for the growing Division of Graduate Studies. A distinguished leader in the emergence of educational psychology and mental health education he was stimulated in his earlier years by G.

Stanley Hall under whom he studied and taught at Clark University, Connecticut, where he earned his doctorate. He was a native of Ashland and a graduate of Union College, Kentucky.

The thousands of Pacific students who will cherish always their memories of Dr. Harris, can fully appreciate the estimate expressed by Chancellor Tully C. Knoles when he called him "one of the five greatest teachers I have ever known, with the greatest ability to transmit the love of teaching and the mastery of education."

Dr. Harris is survived by two sisters, Anna Elizabeth Harris who continues in residence at the Stockton home she shared with him many years, and Mrs. George Waldeck of Huntington, West Virginia. Mrs. Daniel Stone of Palo Alto, (the former Alice Crouse, class of '31) is a second cousin.

James E. Hugin, District Superintendent of the McCloud Union School District, has a biography of Dr. Harris in progress to be presented as the dissertation for a doctoral degree for which he is a candidate at Pacific. In June, 1944 issue, the Review published a feature story on the Harris career on the occasion of his being named dean emeritus of the school of Education when Dr. J. Marc Jantzen was named to the active post.

Pacific will continue to build the Harris Chair Fund, begun several years ago, an endowment which will eventually sustain a professorship to perpetuate the name of J. William Harris in the life of Pacific.

She was a member of the pioneer Grover family which had been in California for more than a century and held extensive lumber interests around Santa Cruz. She was a former high school teacher and vice-principal, and was active in the Methodist Church while living in Santa Cruz.

Bessie J. Mayne, 93, teacher and preceptress at Pacific from 1895 to 1914, died in Berkeley in July. She had retired in 1938 from the faculty of Willard Junior High School in Berkeley after teaching there twenty-four years. She was educated at the old San Jose Normal School and Stanford University.

Donald J. Zumwalt, a student at Pacific in the early 1890's, and former city engineer of Klamath Falls, Oregon, died there in July. He is survived by his wife, the former Julia Kinsey, graduate with the class of 1903. He was a cousin of Pacific historian Dr. Rockwell Dennis Hunt.

Loraine L. Soucie, an alumna of the class of 1954, died August 14.

"NO ROOM! NO ROOM!" cried the Mad Hatter. "There's plenty of room" replied Alice indignantly.

. . . a bit of dialogue adapted from Alice in Wonderland which parallels the feelings of the mad editors of Pacific Review on the one hand, and its readers on the other.

With all the things that are in, you'd think there would be room also for the familiar sections listing alumni weddings, engagements, and births, to say nothing of Pacific Faculty Asides. But we just couldn't make it.

We have notes on more than sixty marriage ceremonies, dozens of betrothals, many births, a lot of good stories about Pacific professors, and other feature material, waiting, unfortunately, until the December issue.

The Rev. Irvin E. Grubbs, class of 1939, former football tackle, died August 25 in Stockton at age 42. He was a Baptist missionary in India for the past nine years. His most spectacular gridiron achievement came in 1938 against the University of Chicago when he intercepted a pass and ran 83 yards for a touchdown. Rev. Grubbs is survived by his wife, classmate Nell Vickroy, and five daughters, Carol, Jane, Martha, Betty Jo, and Marilyn.

Mrs. E. F. Saecker of Bakersfield, mother of Alice Saecker, class of 1943 and secretary to President Robert E. Burns, passed away in July. A memorial book fund has been established in Mrs. Saecker's honor to be used for books in the religious education field.

Kenneth B. Thomas, 47, formerly of Palo Alto, who attended Pacific from 1928 to 1930, died July 24 in Santa Cruz. He worked as an accountant in the Bay Area until 1946 when he joined the merchant marine.

Gurine Louise Flaa, a former house mother and library assistant at Pacific, died June 1 in Fresno. She was graduated from Sacramento High School and the old San Jose Normal. Prior to teaching in Sacramento High School, she conducted classes at Weinstock-Lubin Company. She was a counselor and teacher for 17 years, retiring in 1947. She was employed by the State Board of Equalization before coming to Pacific.

Mrs. J. Winter Smith, the former Florence E. Thompson, class of 1909 of San Jose, died December 4, 1956. Mrs. Smith was an English and drama major while at Pacific. She is survived by her husband, a retired civil engineer of San Jose.

ANNUAL FUND AT NEW HIGH

During the twelve months ending August 31, the following donors—alumni, church constituency and other friends of Pacific generally—contributed $32,210.55 to the current expenses operations of the College through the Pacific Annual Fund, according to the report of Helen Evans, director of the fund.

Members of the Century Club who give $100 annually, and of the Quartias Club, $25 annually, are included in this list. The list does not include many other donors whose gifts were directed to various special projects or were received through other organized appeals of the College.

Measured in terms of endowment, the income from the fund is approximately equivalent to a four per cent return on $800,000. Encouraged by this generosity, committees planning the Annual Fund Operation have pushed the 1957-58 target to $40,000, or about $1,000,000 of "living endowment."
