THE FACULTY

ACADEMIC VICE-PRESIDENT APPOINTED

Dr. SAMUEL LEWIS MEYER

Dr. Samuel Lewis Meyer, dean of Central College, Fayette, Missouri, will become academic vice-president of the College of the Pacific on June 15, Pacific President Robert E. Burns announced February 22.

The new officer succeeds Dr. Lloyd M. Bertholf whose election to the presidency of Illinois Wesleyan University was announced in October. As Dr. Meyer takes over academic administration of Pacific the school is organized as a college of liberal arts with 20 departments, plus five professional and graduate schools in music, education, Asian studies, pharmacy and engineering.

An outstanding biological scientist, Dr. Meyer headed the departments of botany at the University of Tennessee and Florida State University before going to his present post in 1955. A graduate of Central College in 1930, the new vice-president earned a master of science degree at Vanderbilt University and his doctor of philosophy at the University of Virginia. He taught for all three of the institutions before World War II.

During the war he served two years in the Medical Department of the United States Army in the Canal Zone. Until 1954 he held a reserve commission as a major. He reentered biology teaching at Emory University, Georgia, in 1945, then became botany department head at Tennessee serving for five years. From 1951 until he went to his present position, Dr. Meyer held the department chairmanship at Florida State except for one year in Washington, D.C. when he was executive secretary of the biology division of the National Research Council. He was a delegate of the council to the eighth international Botanical Congress in Paris in 1954.

More than 70 scientific articles by Dr. Meyer have been published in technical journals, and his biographical sketches appear in both "Who's Who In America" and "American Men of Science." During his career he has won numerous scholarships, fellowships and prizes for his research studies, many in his special field of plant physiology. He belongs to Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, and several other learned and professional societies. He was chairman of the general section of the Botanical Society of America in 1950, and has served as president of the Southeastern Association of Biologists.

Dr. Meyer is an active Methodist churchman, serving now on the Missouri Conference Board of Education. He is a Rotarian. His wife is the former Martha Roberts, Vanderbilt graduate, and former college teacher. They have two sons, Samuel Lewis Meyer III, 13, and James Barton Meyer, 7.

Two new appointments to departmental chairmanships were announced in December: Dr. Frank H. Lindhorst now heads the Department of Religious Education replacing Dr. George H. Colliver, founder and chairman for 37 years, who died December 6; and Professor Gordon L. Harrison was moved up to the chairmanship of the Department of Civil Engineering when Dr. Felix A. Wallace accepted a new post at the Cooper Union in New York City.

Dr. Lindhorst joined the Pacific faculty in 1945 to head and develop the Christian Community Administration project. Harrison has served as Associate Professor of Engineering since 1948.

Not previously announced in the Review, Dr. Wallace's new appointment makes him Professor of Civil Engineering and Administrative Assistant to the Dean of the School of Engineering at the noted New York institution. In his years at Pacific he reorganized engineering studies and guided development of Baun Hall as a new building for the department, given school status in 1957 when Dr. Adelbert Diefendorf was named Dean.

Two new faculty members, Mr. and Mrs. Marc S. Nomikos, began their work at Pacific with the start of the spring semester, February 3. He is Assistant Professor of Engineering while his wife, Eugenia, is Instructor in History. Both are natives of Greece and both have advanced degrees from Stanford University.

FOUNDERS' DAY INAUGURATED

To commemorate the principal founders of California's first college, and their original founding action taken January 7, 1851, at San Jose, Pacific instituted the observance of Founders' Day, January 24, 1958.

Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of Washington, D.C., President-designate of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church and a former president of both the National and World Council of Churches, addressed a formal academic convocation, speaking on "What the Church and the College Should Expect of Each Other." Declared the Bishop:

GOLD STRIKE:

Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, native of Sonora, receives a gold nugget from his home town, presented by C.O.P. Associate Stuart Gibbons of Stockton.

"The church expects its educational institutions to be educational institutions in fact, to maintain the highest of educational standards, and to be subjected to the scrutiny of properly qualified standardizing bodies.

"The Christian school ought to be the first to insist upon the civil liberties that are essential to the search for truth . . . Freedom of the pulpit and freedom of the classroom are a common piece, and both rest on political liberty.

"But it is not enough to maintain an educational institution of the highest standards. The church expects more . . . There is a faith and there are values that must be taught and lived.

"Some churchmen expect too much of the church schools. The Christian College is neither a rescue mission nor a social settlement, nor is it designed to be a psychiatric couch or the healing service of a revival meeting.

"We do expect our educational leaders to maintain upon the campus a society in which the free mind is free to search for the truth that in turn frees . . . Fundamentally, the Christian college requires a Christian faculty.

"This means that the church must back its schools, must support them not only financially but spiritually and in such fashion as to protect them. It is upon the campus that the issue of freedom will be determined. Freedom depends ultimately on faith."

Dr. Oxnam's address featured a service of Rededication lead by resident Bishop Donald H. Tippet of the San Francisco Area. It followed a banquet meeting when Bishop Tippet, Dr.

TRUSTEES STUDY AT PACIFIC

Pacific was host, January 25, to the first West Coast Conference of Church College Trustees which brought 75 representatives of 23 California, Oregon, Washington, and Utah institutions to a research program for guardians of Christian higher education. The event was managed by officers of the Commission on Christian Higher Education of the Methodist Church, Dr. John O. Gross, Director; Dr. D. D. Holt, Director of Financial Promotion; and Dr. William E. Clark, Associate Director, all of national Methodist headquarters at Nashville. Other national business and education leaders headed the various workshop meetings.

Addressing the final session, Dr. Ernest C. Colwell, president of the Southern California School of Theology, asserted that "while colleges will be under pressure to put more science into degree requirements, church-related education should reaffirm its real objective—well rounded liberal education."

"Because of this very emphasis (on the liberal arts) in the past, these small, independent church colleges have produced far more than their fair numerical share of our outstanding scientists. It takes more than laboratories and cyclotrons, and the church colleges have what it takes."

To contribute their bit to the community Heart Fund drive in Stockton, student operators of the campus limited radio station, KCVN, stayed on the air for 66 consecutive hours plugging for donations, produced $66.66 for the fund.

Dr. Inder Sen Gupta, senior lecturer from Panjab University, India; Jerzy Michalowski, permanent delegate of the Polish Peoples Republic to the United Nations; Herbert Minard, Executive of the Jerusalem YMCA.

Pacific President Robert E. Burns, was elected president of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church at conferences of the organization in Miami Beach, January 7. The Association includes 135 institutions—colleges, universities, junior colleges, and schools of theology . . . which enroll nearly ten per cent of the college students of America.

Dr. Burns is also President of the Western College Association, the official accrediting agency in the southwest region of the United States.

WESTERNER'S FOUNDATION ANNOUNCED

11th MISSION TOUR

"WESTERNER" LELAND CASE
of Chicago
Editor of Methodism's Big Magazine
"TOGETHER"

Added to the already established Pacific sponsored and unique historical organizations—the California History Foundation and the Jedediah Smith Society—is a third venture announced by President Robert E. Burns. Pacific will become headquarters for the Westerner's Foundation. Dr. Burns explained the new project in the February issue of the Pacific Historian, bulletin of the California History Foundation as follows:

The Westerners first was conceived in March, 1943, when a group of Chicagoans interested in Western Americana met in a private home to discuss a book that had just come from the press. About a year later, much the same group under the prodding of Leland Case met again. Organization was discussed with the name Westerners finally being adopted, and the first chapter was called the Chicago Corral. Later the Brand Book was published and continues to be the official organ of the group. Subsequently Corrals have been established at Denver, Los Angeles, New York, Washington, Spokane, Kansas City, Tucson, the Black Hills, St. Louis, Paris and London. A number of new Corrals are in the process of formation, not only in this country, but abroad as well. A publication venture, This Is The West, under the auspices of the Chicago Corral, has been eminently successful.

Recently certain founding members of the Chicago Corral have had a desire to help provide for this organization a purpose, a growth plan and a standing that is more in keeping with the importance of the activity today. Hence, the specific proposal was the establishment of a Westerner's Foundation at the College of the Pacific which through its demonstrated activities in this field, would provide a suitable home. This work would parallel that of the California History Foundation, The California Conference of Historical Societies, and the Jedediah Smith Society.

At a meeting in Chicago on January 12, the Foundation was established with $30,000 underwritten as a beginning. Necessary headquarters space will be provided by the College where an Executive Secretary will be located. Activities will include such projects as organizing more Corrals, collecting historical materials relating to the West, publishing a magazine periodically, administering a national speakers service on the western topics providing scholarships and fellowships for Western research and the preparation of bibliographies. Not the least will be several publishing ventures financed by the resources of the Foundation.

This new venture bids fair to be a new milestone for the Westerners as well as the College. Both cooperating together will add luster to an era in American history which must be perpetuated at all costs.

This is the West, a recent Signet Book copyrighted 1957 By The Westerners Chicago Corral, contains a chapter on "The Mountain Men" written by Reginald R. Stuart, in which he describes the contribution of Jedediah Strong Smith to the West, the "door opener" for all Americans who came overland to California, and by many considered to be the typical "mountain man." From a Penfield newspaper clipping of January 3 received by Mrs. Schroven's parents, the B. I. Van Gilders of Stockton, it read, after commenting on the winner, "If you think only the men were named, you're mistaken. Several women were named, including the names of five mothers cited for fine family guidance and community leadership. One name stood out in the list of women and that was the name of Mrs. Victor Schroven, cited for the quality of leadership she displayed as Chairman of the Penfield Fall Festival held last October for the benefit of the local library. The gist of comments regarding Marian Schro-ven pointed up the feeling that the Festival, in fact, was of as much benefit to the town as to the library. It served to bring together all of the organizations in the town in a spirit of true community service."

New York Times REPORTER

Not me, it didn't. Some have it thrust upon them. I'm one of those. The ice down here is crawling, literally, with would-be explorer types. Include me out.

Still, the frozen continent has a certain fascination. Penguins, seals, snow-capped volcanoes, and the most gorgeous sunset effects this side of California. "Effects" is the word because actually the sun never sets this time of year.

There are a lot of fine people down here, plus a lot of people who came down here to get away from something—and found things a lot worse. It's a curious amalgam of scientists and Navy, and withal quite amazing that everything runs as smoothly as it does.

This is probably because of the Navy's fine VX6 experimental aero squadron, as fine a group of pilots as exists. These boys fly the McMurdo Sound-Little America side of the continent in some of the most unpredictable weather known to man—and in aircraft that is, to be polite, slightly outmoded.

As of the week before Christmas, this reporter had flown nearly 13,000 miles in Antarctica with only one near mishap. That was a one-ski, one-engine landing in an R4D (the Navy version of the DC-3) at Little America. In this case, thanks to Cmdr. Jack Coley, a Cal man, by the way, 50 per cent and 50 per cent added up to a 100 per cent perfect landing.

Thus far, your roving Pacificite has visited three other U.S. stations—Byrd, Hallett and the South Pole where I enjoyed a ten-day stay at Christmas All the Way Under—along with three other correspondents. Quite an experience and privilege.

We are earning our keep by digging in the snow mine to help keep up the water supply. Melted snow is the only source. Also have rolled a lot of 55-gallon fuel oil barrels into place for winter use. This brought back memories of a lot of muscles I hadn't used much since football days for A. A. Stagg.

Perhaps I will visit our Wilkes Station and the Russian station at Mirny later. Subject, of course, to approval of the commissars. The only American station that appears out of reach is Ellsworth, 'way over on the Atlantic side of the continent.

HUNT FETED AT 90

267 YEARS OF YOUTH: Left to right, A. A. Stagg, 95; R. D. Hunt, 90; T. C. Knoles, 82; at a campus Faculty Club party for "Mr. California" February 14.

At least three times Rockwell Dennis Hunt has "retired," but the status doesn't stick. After all, how could "Mr. California" quit?

The publication of his 17th major book, California Firsts, and his prize-winning ($500) essay, Inauguration of an Economy of Plenty, were merely highlights of his 90th year—a typically busy, highly productive year capped by a beautiful birthday party at Glendale where, surrounded by some 250 relatives and friends of his unique years, Dr. Hunt gracefully accepted nonagenarian standing.

The essay award he places among the highest professional citations of his extended career. Along with 47 other papers turning on the most important economic problems to be faced by the United States in the next twenty years, and authored by a most distinguished group of leaders in the field, Dr. Hunt's thesis was published by the committee for Economic Development, New York City. While he is widely known as California's first great native son historian, Dr. Hunt's years as Chairman of the Department of Economics at the University of Southern California are less publicized.

Born in Sacramento, graduate of old Napa College, teacher at Pacific before the turn of the century, principal of San Jose High School, thirty-seven years at the University of Southern California where he became the first Dean of the Graduate School, organizer and first director of the California History Foundation at Pacific, and first president of the Conference of California Historical Societies, Dr. Hunt found representatives of nearly all phases of his all-Californian career at the grand party on his 90th anniversary, February third at Glendale's Oakmont Country Club. The meticulously appointed and perfectly managed event was staged by Dr. Hunt's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hunt of Pasadena.

Fletcher Bowron, former mayor of Los Angeles, delivered the greetings of Governor Goodwin Knight, who three years ago bestowed on Dr. Hunt the "Mr. California" title. Then the honored guest set the pace for five after-dinner speakers to follow, with a crisp, optimistic, humorous, heart-warming "address" of four minutes. "A once-in-a-lifetime occasion," he called it, but added, "I serve notice now, this is not a funeral . . . I wish my retirement day to be the day of my death . . . I wish not merely to add years to my life, but life to my years . . . I bid each of you an affectionate welcome, my dear friends. Rejoice with me—I am the owner of the spheres . . . I love you all . . . I salute you all."

Said Rufus Von Kleinsmid, former Chancellor of the University of Southern California, "He is not only a native son, he is California for most of us."

Pacific Chancellor Tully C. Knoles, a U.S.C. colleague, recounted the coming to the faculty there of Dr. Hunt "to profoundly influence the destiny of the University."

Mary C. Crawford, Dean of Women Emeritus of U.S.C., declared that Dr. Hunt's whole teaching and administrative career stood out against the "escalator" idea of education—"lifting large masses of people without effort on their part."

Vierling Kersey, one time student of Dr. Hunt who became State Superintendent of Public Instruction—"This is the first time I have known Dr. Hunt to be only 90 percent of 100 . . . he gave an exactness to the humanities . . . magnificent Christian living brought right into the classroom . . ."

Emory Borgardus, U.S.C. colleague and a successor in the Graduate School, recalled world travels with Dr. Hunt and read an original 56-line verse, On Becoming a Nonagenarian.

Greetings from the only member of the Pacific family older than Dr. Hunt were read by Chancellor Knoles—"Welcome, Dr. Hunt, to the gay nineties,"—Amos Alonzo Stagg.

HUNT'S BOOKS

Several of the popular books on California history subjects by Rockwell Dennis Hunt are on sale through the College of the Pacific Office of Public Relations.

Titles available include California's Stately Hall of Fame ($5.00), California in the Making ($6.00), the autobiography, "Mr. California" ($5.75), and California Firsts ($5.50).

As a "90th birthday special" mail orders for "Mr. California" will be accepted for just $2.50, a drastic reduction made possible by Dr. Hunt's generosity, and for the other titles at a discount of 20 per cent from the list prices above. Add sales tax for the net amount.

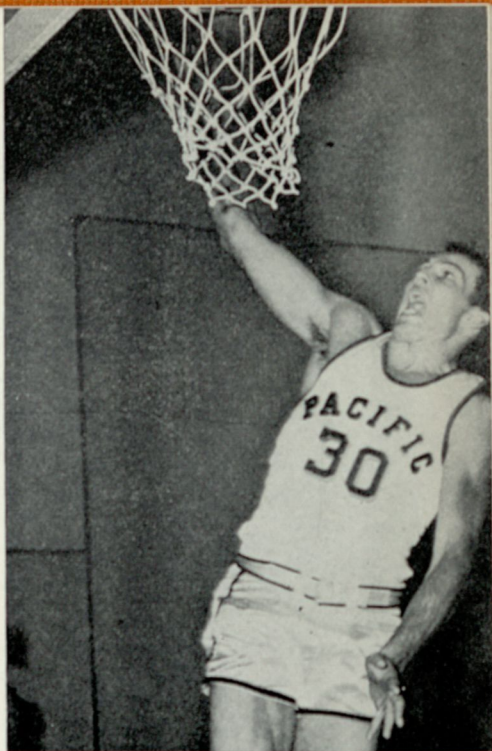

Both authoritative and highly entertaining, Dr. Hunt's books will give hours of the most engaging reading. They are excellent and sought for gift items for book lovers and notably for collectors of Californiana.

ASSISTANT ATHLETIC NEWS DIRECTOR

SCORING LEADER: Ken Flaig, only senior on Pacific's emerging basketball power house which won five straight contests in the late season to clinch third place in the WCAC.

Basketball season is going into its last swing with the College of the Pacific forces showing steady improvement under the tutelage of Coach Van Sweet. The sophomore-dominated squad (8 out of 11 men) has been hampered by lack of experience throughout the season and has lost more than it has won in the tough West Coast Athletic Conference, playing the likes of USF, St. Mary's and San Jose State.

Led by Captain Ken Flaig, the only senior on the team, the Tigers have outscored and out-rebounded their opponents for the overall season record but have lost many close ball games which could have been won by a little more experience. Flaig is pacing the scoring average with 15 per game and is second only to the "All-Everything" nominee, Leroy Wright, in rebounding average. The Lodi senior holds the individual single-game scoring honors this season by virtue of his 32 points against Loyola.

With 6 games remaining on the Bengal schedule, the fabulous Wright was just 26 rebounds short of the all-time C.O.P. record of 326 set in 1956 by John Thomas. With the improvement he has shown in recent games, "Leaping Leroy" may set a new record with one game. He broke the single game record of 22 by capturing 27 rebounds earlier in the year. The old record was set in the 1954 season by Nick Romanoff. Already rated by

NEW COACH: George Dickson, above Notre Dame '50, and Don "Tiny" Campora are the new members of the C.O.P. grid staff, along with John Rohde and head coach Jack Myers. Campora is a former Tiger line star of the undefeated '49 team.

Coach Sweet as the greatest player he has ever coached, the towering sophomore will surely be in line for All-American honors before he graduates two seasons hence.

Running a close third behind Flaig and junior guard Dave Klurman for scoring honors, Wright has been breaking into double figures on a regular basis of late. He possesses a good hook shot and hits well from the outside on a jumper. Always a forward in high school basketball, Wright is just learning the fundamentals of the pivot position.

The ball club was hurt by the three-week absence of Klurman in the middle of the season when the fast-moving junior suffered a torn ankle ligament. Klurman was leading the Bengals in scoring with a 16 point average when he was knocked out of action. As of this writing he is trailing Flaig by just a few percentage points.

With the exception of Flaig, Coach Sweet gets back the entire team for next season's action. Returnees include: Junior guards Klurman and Sid Smith; sophomore guards Gary Kaufman, Paul Kaufman, Bob Downum and Maurice Jones; sophomore forwards Neil Stafford, Dick Walsh and Ron Weibust, and sophomore center Wright.

Flaig is counted on to continue his sports activities on the baseball diamond for the Bengals. One of the Tigers' leading hitters last season, Flaig roams the left field position.

Sweet and Sid Hall will coach the Bengal baseballers.

"Do-Everything" Ola Murchinson will again lead the Tiger track and field team. "Olie" ran the sprints, high-jumped and broad-jumped for last year's team. He soared over 6'-5" in the high jump for a new school record and was clocked in 21.2 for the 220 which tied the old school record. He was also clocked in 09.8 for the 100 yard dash. Former Tiger Bill Gott has been retained by the College to direct the track and field operations this spring.

Chris Kjeldsen's swimming team and Mel Moretti's tennis team will also be swinging into action with inexperienced groups.

1958 Tippett Lecture Announced

Dean BERNHARD W. ANDERSON
Class of 1936

A distinguished Pacific alumnus will return to the campus April 19 to deliver the third annual Bishop Donald H. Tippett Lectures in Religious Perspective in Higher Education. He is Dr. Bernhard W. Anderson, class of 1936, and Dean of the School of Theology at Drew University, Madison, New Jersey, since 1954.

His theological study at Pacific School of Religion and Yale University was followed by pastorates in the California-Nevada Conference at Pittsburg, Sunnysvale, and Millbrae. In 1946 he entered teaching at Colgate University, and before coming to his present administrative post held professorships at University of North Carolina and the Colgate Rochester Divinity School.

A foremost Old Testament scholar, he is the author of three widely used books: Rediscovering The Bible, The Unfolding Drama of the Bible, and Understanding The Old Testament. He is a contributor to the Interpreters Bible.

Especially pertinent to the Tippett lectureship, the speaker is an active youth leader, participating frequently in conferences sponsored by the YMCA, YWCA, and Christian Youth Movement. He is a fellow of the National Council on Religion in Higher Education.

Sponsored by the Faculty Christian Fellowship at Pacific the lecture schedule calls for Dr. Anderson's formal address at 10:30 a.m. followed by a luncheon and a discussion period. The event is open to the public without charge. A complete brochure will be forwarded on request to the campus office of Public Relations.

A remarkable documentation of Pacific Theatre Director DeMarcus Brown's contribution to the lively art of drama written by another of his former Pacific players, and reprinted by permission of the Stockton Record.

Mr. Brown Goes To Broadway

by GAIL SCHEERE GOTT
STOCKTON RECORD STAFF

"The proof of the pudding" came about, figuratively speaking, for Mr. De Marcus Brown, director of the College of the Pacific's Theatre, during his recent flying trip to New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown not only attended more than 14 plays, but enjoyed reunions with a number of his former theatre students.

The main triumph for the Browns was witnessing Jo Van Fleet (Mrs. William Bales) in her remarkable portrayal as the mother in Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward Angel" and their visits with the current toast of Broadway. Miss Van Fleet has gained prominence not only as a dramatic actress on the legitimate stage, but won an Oscar for her first in a series of motion picture roles. She has several other awards and trophies for her work on Broadway. According to Mr. Brown, she is "the most exciting and talked about star in New York."

The Browns also saw another former Pacificite, Toni Rifberg (Mrs. Robert Mann) who is appearing in her first Broadway role in "Auntie Mame." Miss Rifberg uses the stage name Ann Summers and enjoyed considerable success in television before her stage debut.

Roger Starr, another of Mr. Brown's former students, was seen in the Shakespeare Playwrights production of "Julius Caesar" in an off-Broadway show that has run three years. He has also just released an album of folk songs, attesting to his versatility.

Richard Briggs greeted the Browns on their trip and described his work as studio supervisor for the American Broadcasting Company's television activities. Mr. Briggs, a former popular comedian at Pacific, is married to a dance instructor.

Another on the list of former Stockton coeds visited was Barbara Baxley, who is on her way to Hollywood for a series of television films and who recently appeared on Shirley Temple's "Beauty and the Beast" production.

Dick Schneider, a staff director for the National Broadcasting Co., who has a long list of major television productions behind him, was also greeted on the Browns' tour.

A familiar name to Stocktonians is that of Lois Wheeler, now Mrs. Edgar Snow, who is appearing in "The Trial of Dimitri," an off-Broadway production. Miss Wheeler, now the mother of two children, is also seen frequently in television.

Another dramatic actress of the past few years, Claribelle Coffman who uses the name Clare Justice, is busy in New York. She spends her summers playing with stock companies.

Ken Leedom is director for the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences and responsible for the awarding of the coveted Emmie.

Doris Blum is an assistant to Paul Morrison, designer and producer, and has as a major job the stage managing of the annual lavish shows produced at Jones Beach.

Jerry DeBono of Stockton is stashed away, still busy with his writing career, the Browns discovered.

Marty Battilana, now Mrs. Gordon Weisenborn, also effected a reunion with Mr. and Mrs. Brown. She is now a homemaker with three children, but loves to recall her former theatrical experiences.

Bruce King is a dancer and teacher and a member of the Merce Cunningham Dance Co.

Tom Rosqui has just arrived back on the West Coast after leaving the Henry Miller Theatre in Milwaukee, Wis.

Jack DeVoe, another former Stocktonian, is completely occupied with a public relations job in television.

James Starbuck has done the choreography for "Oh, Captain," and is busy with several television programs performing the same interesting work.

Bill Strom, Mr. Brown's former right-hand-man in set design and execution, is currently waiting to take the set designers' examination which will qualify him to perform his work at the professional level. He was busy during the summer in stock.

Richard Armbruster, who was well known in Stockton for his singing ability, has enjoyed unusual success. He spent the summer with the Music Circus, works in oratorio and small concert groups, and is polishing his acting with Sanford Meisner's professional acting class.

Joe Cardinale is also studying at the Neighborhood Playhouse.

Other of Mr. Brown's former students who are busy on the East Coast are Betty Van Hooser, who is with the Theatre Wing after spending a year with the Neighborhood Playhouse, and Ken Kerschival, who graduated from the Neighborhood Playhouse, has enjoyed experience in summer stock and has some excellent television prospects.

Among the plays and musicals the Browns attended were "Look Homeward Angel," "The Music Man," "Long Day's Journey Into Night," "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs," "Auntie Mame," "The Country Wife," "The Cave Dwellers," "Look Back in Anger," "Compulsion," "The Rope Dancers," "Time Remembered," "The Bells are Ringing," "West Side Story," and the New York City Ballet.

On their return flight Mr. and Mrs. Brown stopped over in New Orleans, La., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Fullmer. Mr. Fullmer is director of the La Petite Theatre de Viex Carre in New Orleans for the past seven years. He plans to return to California in the near future, however.

Book Shelf

I Believe, a 96-page book by Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles Area of the Methodist Church, was off of the Abingdon Press, Nashville, Tennessee, January 6. The ten brief chapters set forth clearly and simply the great affirmations of the Christian faith. The book is an inspirational statement of the author's own creed, in language that can be understood by persons with little or no background in theology. The contents answers questions about what we can believe and why.

The book is the first in the "Know Your Faith" series, designed to answer every person's questions about his beliefs and to aid in strengthening his faith.

California Through the Ages, the geological story of a great state, is the latest book from the prolific pen of Dr. William John Miller, B.S. 1900 and M.S. 1902 from Pacific, and professor emeritus of geology of the University of California at Los Angeles since 1948. The complete and definitive book is from the Westernlore Press at Eagle Rock. Dr. Miller, who now lives in Claremont, received his Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins. He has served as field assistant to the U.S. Geological Survey and as field geologist for the New York State Museum. His professorship in geology also included posts at Johns Hopkins, Hamilton College, Smith College, and the University of North Carolina. Among his works are a number of nationally used textbooks.

The California Story, off the Fearon Press this past summer, authored by Dr. Richard Coke Wood and Leon George Bush, is a high school and junior college text, the first in this field since 1934. Dr. Wood, who has written three other books on California history, is a history teacher at Pacific and Stockton College and executive secretary of the statewide Conference of California Historical Societies. He conducted a TV class on California History twice a week during the fall session. Bush is a Stockton College teacher. Illustrations are from the noted collection of Covert Martin, retired photographer and official in state historical societies.

Coarse Gold Gulch, a book for young people published last year by Doubleday, soon will be followed by a fifth book by the same author, Mrs. Marion Garthwaite. Already accepted for publication, the new contribution by the well known story teller deals with a career for teenagers with a story telling background. Mrs. Garthwaite, children's librarian, San Mateo County Free Library, has been a visiting summer session faculty member at Pacific for the past four years.

Toots and Poochie, a story for children about a doll and a dog, by the late Lillie Walker (Aurilla Johnson) '96, is being published by the Comet Press, New York, according to Claudia Walker of San Francisco, daughter of the author. ## TV PROGRAM CAMPAIGN

To steer a "last chance" campaign aimed at financing an educational television station for the north central valley area, Pacific has loaned its radio-television director John C. Crabbe to the Central California Educational Television Corporation for several months.

Crabbe began his special assignment in a 15 county area in January, and on February 15 was able to announce that a $50,000 goal required by that date had been reached. This keeps alive a grant of $100,000 pending from the Fund for Adult Education of New York. By March 31, the cash fund subscribed in the area must hit $100,000, plus pledges in an equal amount to guarantee a second year of operation.

Commercial television stations are supporting the fund. Channel 10 (KBET, Sacramento) has offered program production facilities. The proposed new transmitter will operate on Channel 6, VHF, available to all TV listeners in the area. It is expected to serve the valley and Mother Lode area from Chico to Atwater. If the
