Alumni Fund Growing

Support for the Pacific educational program through the Alumni Annual Fund is running ahead of last year, both in dollar total and number of participants, according to Donald G. Smiley, Executive Director of the Fund.

"Last call" letters for gifts to the 1957-58 fund are now in the mails. The annual tabulation ends August 31. In October, the Pacific Review will carry a complete list of all donors to the Fund, together with the total raised. Increasing of faculty salaries is the current objective of the Fund.

The Pacific Alumni Association is among hundreds of members of the American Alumni Council. Total reports of the giving of all these associations to their colleges and universities will now also list the Pacific Annual Alumni Fund. Percentage of alumni participating and the average alumni gift for each school is published. "Let's make Pacific look good in the national picture," Smiley urges.

STOCKTON'S BIGGEST: As measured by its 90,000 square feet of floor space, the new three-story Pacific dormitory and dining hall for women, is the biggest building for human use in Stockton. More than 80 per cent complete it will be opened for the fall semester. Weber Hall of Science is seen in the background.

101st COMMENCEMENT

A foreign speaker will address a Pacific graduating class for the first time when Fuad Sarruf, vice-president and secretary in charge of public relations for the American University of Beirut, Lebanon, speaks for the 101st commencement ceremonies Sunday, June 8 at 7:00 p.m. in Baxter Stadium.

The distinguished Middle East author, journalist, broadcaster, and educator is in America during a sabbatical leave studying the public relations practice of U.S. colleges and universities, under a Rockefeller Foundation grant. He is a former editor of Al Abram (The Pyramids), leading newspaper of Egypt. In 1935 he introduced the first university grade journalism instruction at American University, Cairo, from which has developed the top school of journalism in the Middle East today.

Following his address, approximately 340 degrees — baccalaureate, masters, and doctoral — will be conferred by President Robert E. Burns. This includes the largest total ever of graduate degrees. (See page 8.)

A forty-year tradition will remain unbroken when Chancellor Tully C. Knoles gives the annual baccalaureate sermon at the 10:30 a.m. services the same day in Pacific Auditorium.

Other public events of the degree granting season include the Commencement Concert of the Pacific Conservatory, Friday, June 6, at 8:30 p.m., featuring selected senior soloists in a program of concertos and arias with the Pacific Orchestra, and the 10th annual Tully Cleon Knoles lectures in Philosophy beginning at 10:00 a.m. Saturday, June 7, to be delivered by Dr. Arturo Fallico of San Jose State College (See page 19.)

Before the opening of summer sessions on Tuesday, June 17, the campus will be well occupied for a week by nearly 1000 pastoral and lay delegates to the annual sessions of the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church. Bishop Donald Harvey Tippet will preside. Featured speaker for the conference is Dr. Willis Tate, president of Southern Methodist University of Dallas.

SUMMER SESSIONS

Divided into two five-week periods, the summer offerings directed by Dean J. Marc Jantzen, cover twenty academic departments from freshman to graduate levels, and include several special workshop sessions: Family Life Education, Social Studies Curriculum, Understanding of Business and Industry, Educational Television Laboratory, Related Art in the Home, College Registrar's Workshop, Elementary Education Laboratory, and Kindergarten Curriculum and Methods.

Now the second largest enterprise of its type in America, Pacific Music Camp presents its 13th annual season June 22 to July 27. No American music camp assembles a more impressive group of professional conductors under whom talented musical youth from all the western states study and perform.

The 11th annual Folk Dance Camp is scheduled from July 28 to August 9, another great western regional roundup of group leaders. They study all phases of folk dance instruction with a staff of international experts.

Principal off-campus summer features include biological study at the Pacific Marine Station, Dillon Beach, Marin County; drama study and performance at the antique Fallon House Theatre in Columbia State Park, Tuolumne County; and the Pacific Philosophy Institute sessions at White Sulphur Springs, Napa County.

Space is still available in all sections of summer season activity. Inquiries to the Dean of Summer Sessions or the directors of the various special enterprises will bring general catalogs and special brochures describing each of the activities.

ANNUAL ELECTION

W. Sherwood Norton of Stockton was elected president of the College of the Pacific Alumni Association April

26 at the annual Alumni College banquet and Mr. and Mrs. Ted F. Baun of Fresno were cited as "the Alumni of the Year."

The new leader of the statewide organization will take office on July 1, succeeding William R. Fox of Concord who presided at the banquet program.

A Pacific graduate of 1941, Norton now is vice-president of the Security Title Insurance Company of Stockton. The former business administration student and varsity basketball player is immediate past-president of the Stockton Quarterback Club and a trustee of Central Methodist Church. He is a member of the Stockton Planning Commission.

Other new officers named are James Bainbridge, vice-president, of Turlock, class of 1936; Mary Anne Kirsten, secretary, of Stockton, class of 1950; and Bernard Piersa, treasurer, of Stockton, class of 1948.

Nine others were elected to the board of directors of the association: Marian Burdo, Sebastopol; Earl Collins, Woodland; Harold S. Jacoby, Stockton; Beck Parsons, Sacramento; Frances Wolfram, Stockton; Amos Gardner, Mountain View; George O'Dell, Sacramento; David McDonald, San Mateo; and Kenneth Stowell, Lodi.

Mr. and Mrs. Baun were presented with a scroll stating the award and their services of more than 30 years to the College of the Pacific. Baun is president of the C.O.P. board of Trustees. Something of the careers of these 1927 C.O.P. classmates was sketched in the May, 1957, Review. Since then the campus engineering building has been named Baun Hall.

A special award scroll was presented to Dr. Lloyd M. Bertholf, academic vice-president, who is leaving Pacific in July after 11 years service to become president of Illinois Wesleyan University. He was cited for his guidance and coordination of the academic structure of the College during the post war period of expansion that has seen the establishment of three new professional schools, several new major curricula, and various new special projects.

The awards were made by Paul H. Easterbrook of Fresno, chairman of the alumni awards committee.

Mrs. Bernhard W. Anderson of Madison, New Jersey, was introduced as the alumnus from the greatest distance in attendance at the event.

Addressing the Alumni College Banquet Marshall Windmiller, class of 1938, said, "American colleges today are not the hotbeds of radical thought they have been in other periods."

After extensive study and residence in Paris and India the speaker is now research political scientist for Institute of East Asian Studies on the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

Windmiller regrets the conservatism he sees in the college scene today which he called "a preoccupation with vocational training for business and professional life rather than concern with the great issues of the times.

"We need our colleges to produce new ideas to cope with three great challenging problems," he said.

1. The basic nature and problems of American economy. "Can our economy afford peace?" he questioned. "Sixty-two per cent of the federal budget is now going into war material," he quoted. "How will we adjust our economy if we find out that we can get along on much less?" In this connection Windmiller believes that Russia does not want war, that its present policy is to seek its aim of world domination through political and economic channels.

2. The Soviet challenge. This is not a military, but a political challenge, Windmiller emphasized. "Russia is determined to win the support of the vast masses of depressed Asiatic peoples, and is spending enormous amounts to propagandize these areas. They are tailoring their devices to the desires of these people. Playing on the universal fear of the hydrogen bomb they have stopped their testing of these weapons, as a part of their policy. They are studying the obscure Asiatic languages, and have embarked on a huge economic aid program with great political impact."

3. The problem of how we can achieve an orderly world. "We must find a way to make it necessary to observe international law, some system of effective penalties. We must establish enforceable world law."

"Our colleges must seek for basic answers to these great problems and then take them before the public," Windmiller concluded.

ENGINEERS MEET

New state-wide emphasis for the Pacific School of Engineering program came with the first annual Highway Conference staged by the school March 3, 4, and 5. Dean Adelbert Diefendorf engaged no less than 23 western experts in many phases of highway design, construction, maintenance, lighting, and safety control. Engineering, construction, and equipment firms responded by underwriting the conference expenses and sending 200 engineers to the various sessions in the three-day program.

With the know-how gained in handling more than 15 such conferences while he was Dean of Engineering at the University of Utah, Dr. Diefendorf presented a thoroughly professional event that rendered real service to the delegates and gained new respect for C.O.P. engineering. This latest campus-industry-professional axis has great potential for engineering studies at Pacific.

On March second the Harlow B. Boyle Clinical Pharmacy was dedicated in Weber Memorial Hall, home of the School of Pharmacy. The model pharmacy installation bears the name of the principal donor to the project, President of Boyle and Co. Pharmaceuticals, of Los Angeles. Al Spears of the store planning division of McKesson Robbins Co., San Francisco, designed the installation. Behind a modern, stainless steel and plate glass simulated store front, the pharmacy contains up-to-the-minute technical and service equipment, all brilliantly illuminated with florescent lighting. The facility will be open for "business" with the beginning of the fall semester.

PSA OFFICERS

Jack Willoughby, international relations major, was elected president of the Pacific Student Association in campus balloting which ended May 9, winning over Richard Bateson of Wilmington, Delaware.

Willoughby's home is in Dhahran, Saudia Arabia, where his father is in the employ of the Arabian-American Oil Company. The new president, who will serve during the 1958-59 college year, is a member of the Alpha Kappa Phi fraternity. Active in the Blue Key Society and the Anderson "Y" Center he has served this year as Rally Commissioner and has been a leader in revision of the PSA constitution.

PRESIDENT ELECT: Jack Willoughby is the new President of the Pacific Student Association.

Pre-ministerial major Calvin Maas of Lodi was elected vice-president. He was recently president of the Wesley Fellowship of the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church.

Mary Beth "Micky" Babb, junior English major of Corning was named secretary, and Rodney Geiman, business administration major of Los Altos, is the treasurer.

The new rally commissioner is David Towell of Bronxville, N.Y., and the social chairman is Stella Barker of Lindsay.

Three class representatives to the student senate were also named: senior Susan Scrivener of San Francisco, junior Dorothy Busher of San Francisco, and sophomore Edward Laveroni of Mountain View.

Graduate Study Growing at Pacific

DEAN: Dr. Willis N. Potter heads
Graduate Division.

More than 75 graduate degrees will be conferred at Pacific's 101st commencement exercises according to Dr. Willis N. Potter, Dean of Graduate Studies. This figure far exceeds the total of baccalaureate degrees granted in 1925 when the first Stockton campus graduates of Pacific received diplomas.

This is one index to the expansion of graduate study at Pacific which this year has enrolled nearly 300 students. Another is the recently published catalog of Theses and Dissertations accepted from 1913 to 1956 toward requirements for advanced degrees. Edited by Dr. Potter with the cooperation of the Graduate Council and the Irving Martin Library staff, the book lists 587 titles. Only a small percentage of them, however, were submitted before the shift from San Jose to Stockton in 1924. Twenty-three academic departments are represented.

With but three exceptions, all the papers listed are theses written by candidates for the Master of Arts, Master of Music, or Master of Science degrees. But the exceptions—dissertations for one Doctor of Education and two Doctor of Philosophy degrees—point the future of the Division of Graduate Studies.

The new and unique element in the graduate study program is Pacific's original adaptation of the Doctor of Education degree now being developed. Traditionally a degree restricted to the field of professional education, it now has a second distinct function at Pacific. It will cap a graduate curriculum with emphasis on subject matter rather than educational technique alone.

The program is well illustrated in the Pacific Department of Chemistry where it was initiated by chairman

Emerson G. Cobb. In conventional graduate education today, he explains, the Doctor of Philosophy degree represents strictly research in the subject matter, while the Doctor of Education represents almost entirely studies in teaching principles and methods. In his own field he believes the result is too many research-trained chemists who do not know how to teach—or professional educators who do not have sufficient command of the subject matter.

Except in large universities with specialized schools, the Ph.D. chemist seldom finds opportunity to do real research or direct research programs, Cobb observes. Teachers in most four year institutions, junior colleges, and high schools, are kept too busy as teachers to be research people.

Two candidates for the new Ed.D. in chemistry were already at work during the spring semester, and Dr. Cobb had some 30 applications on hand, quick indication that the program will be welcomed by teachers bent on professional progress. The new program is in no sense an academic shortcut or acceleration device. It is a two year schedule beyond the Master of Science degree, requiring at least the second year in residence. The subject matter study requires the same quality of scholarship as for the Ph.D. Candidates must demonstrate sufficient research understanding to instill the desire and discipline for it in their students. At the same time, a minimum of 15 units in professional education studies will be required.

The Pacific chemistry department is one of seven in northern California approved by the American Chemical Society. During the society's national convention in April at San Francisco, Dr. Cobb lectured on the new program. The news service of the society has released announcements of the Pacific plan, and no less than five colleges have asked for outlines of it.

Key to the success of this experiment lies in the cooperation of subject matter departments and departments of education. Pacific has a School of Education which gives due recognition to the significance of subject matter instruction. Inauguration of the plan is also evidence of the freedom and flexibility of independent education. Other departments may be authorized to administer parallel curricula, according to Dean Potter, departments in which the faculty includes at least three teachers who hold the Ph. D. degree.

Although 20th century graduate study at Pacific had some beginnings well before World War I, the whole program received its first major impetus on the Stockton campus when the School of Education was organized and authorized to offer a curriculum leading to California secondary teaching credentials. The first Master of Arts degree was conferred in 1926, and the Master of Music in 1927. In 1954 the first Doctor of Education and the first Doctor of Philosophy degree (for work completed at the American Academy of Asian Studies in San Francisco) were awarded. The first Master of Science degrees came in 1955. Dr. Fred L. Farley was the first to be named Dean of Graduate Studies, in 1946. He was succeeded by Dr. Potter in 1953.

DR. POTTER ATTENDS MIDWEST CONFERENCE

The College of the Pacific was represented by Willis N. Potter, Dean of Graduate Studies, at the fourteenth annual meeting of the Midwest Conference on Graduate Study and Research, held recently in Chicago. The College is an institutional member of the Conference, which includes more than one hundred American Universities and colleges granting advanced degrees.

The 1958 commencement will see the conferral of approximately 65 M.A., 4 M.S., 3 Mus.M., and 1 or 2

Ed.D., degrees, plus 6 Ph.D. and M.A. degrees in Asian studies from the Academy. Strong emerging graduate work is announced in the new general catalog of the college in four engineering areas: structural, highway, sanitary, and nuclear.

But graduate level study at Pacific is no "crash" program. To be sure that its foundations are solid and that its product will meet the best standards in American higher education, the progress of the whole program is intentionally gradual and carefully controlled.

KEEPING UP with the ALUMNI

DR. BAILEY G. LIPSKY, now of Santa Cruz, has been serving as interim pastor for the Community Methodist Church of Boulder Creek since November. He and Mrs. Lipsky, classmate ELIZABETH GREEN, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last year.

The 50th anniversary of both the graduation and the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Lipsky coincided with the 100th commencement, June 9, 1957. The Pacific couple celebrated with a golden anniversary tea on the campus.

On October 26, Dr. Lipsky presided at, and she also attended, the meeting of the Pacific Fifty Year Club during the annual Alumni College.

JESSIE MOORE CUTTEN, P. O. Box 583, Winnemucca, Nevada, is teaching Public School Music in ten rural schools in Humboldt County, Nevada. Talk about the old time circuit rider, Mrs. Cutten's circuit requires 2200 miles of driving each month over 130 miles of rough dirt roads! She is looking for a successor in 1959.

1924

MR. and MRS. ERNEST F. LUNDEEN (GRACE FAREY) of Vallejo, classmates of the last year on the San Jose campus, are now two-thirds of the way through a seven months tour of Africa and Europe. In the Belgian Congo they visited their son, Lawrence, an electrical engineer-missionary supervising the construction of a Methodist hospital, and his family. Now Volkswagonning in Northern Europe, the travelers are due in Vallejo early in September where he is Director of Adult Education for the School District.

DR. GILBERT COLLYER, president of Shasta College at Redding, active in debating while at Pacific, feeling that debating is a lost art in many northern California high schools, is responsible for reviving forensics in the high schools of the Redding area. He instituted a Shasta-Trinity County tournament at Shasta College May 6, which won excellent editorial comment. President Collyer last returned to C.O.P. in 1955 to address the Homecoming Convocation.

MISS ELIZABETH A. CORSON, 502 College Avenue, Modesto, is with the Stanislaus County Schools office as a consultant in elementary education, a position which she has held for some time.

HOYLE CARPENTER, on the faculty of the New Jersey State Teachers College, Glassboro, is co-author of a book, The Instrumental Assistant, designed for training instrumental ensembles. His collaborator is Charles L. Luckenbill of the Grinnell College music department where Carpenter was on the staff for 13 years before going to his present post. The new volume will be off the presses of the Elkan-Vogel Publishers of Philadelphia this summer.

ANNA LOUISE KECK GERMANS-
HAUSEN of 2720 Woodhaven Drive,
Hollywood 28, manager of the Los Angeles Interstate Claims Office, California State Employment Service, wrote in April that she had been home on sick leave since January.

JIM COUNTRYMAN, of Los Gatos famous in sports during the Erwin "Swede" Righter era, still maintains that stature of an athlete while playing golf at La Rinconada course, according to what we read.

DOROTHY SEYMOUR, Alpha Theta Tau, began work the first of the year as a senior case worker with the newly formed Edgewood Family Counselling Agency in Covina, a rapidly expanding area with many young families. She lives at 142½ N. Vista Bonita Avenue, Glendora.

MRS. EILEEN DANIELS COGGIN, music major, is organist of the First Church, Scientist, in Berkeley and has appeared in many San Francisco and East Bay recitals. She recently gave a series of concerts before the American Guild of Organists.

1935

DR. DONALD C. HARRINGTON, Stockton obstetrician and gynecologist, was named Civitan Club Citizen of the Month in March, selected for his strong leadership in the organization of the Delta Blood Bank and in founding the San Joaquin Foundation for Medical Care. His services include working with Red Cross, Boy Scouts, and on Rotary projects. He also heads his department at San Joaquin General Hospital. Dr. Harrington saw service in the army, being discharged in 1946 as a major. MRS. HARRINGTON is the former BARBARA V. KROECK, graduated in '35 with high honors. They have four sons.

FRANKLIN WILBUR, one of the first magnitude stars of Pacific Theatre, recently played a principal role in the Sacramento State College production of The Solid Gold Cadillac. After many years in radio he is doing advanced study toward teaching.

ROLAND ELMER MEIDINGER business administration major, now an automobile dealer of Jamestown, North Dakota, and active in state politics, has been elected president of the Greater North Dakota Association as its sixth president.

A native North Dakotan, Meidinger served as a wholesale salesman for Standard Brands, an agent of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and vice-president of the First State Bank of Gackle before entering the automobile business in 1945. While in Gackle he helped organize its Chamber of Commerce and served three years as president.

Active in politics, he was elected to the state senate in 1952 and re-elected in 1956. He served as majority floor leader in 1957. He is married to the former Clara Lehr of Gackle. They have one daughter, Andrea Joan, a senior in the Jamestown High School.

LAWRENCE SHORT, a music instructor on the Burlingame High School faculty for six years and director of the school's string orchestra which played for the national convention of the Music Educators of America at their March convention in Los Angeles, was cited by his high school principal for "outstanding service and contribution to the welfare of young people of the community" at the February Founders Day program of the Burlingame P.T.A. He was presented with a life membership award. Short taught in Stockton before and after wartime service in the navy.

ROGER SLOAN ABBOTT, an Archite, is doing research work with one of the branches of the State Department in Washington, D.C., and has made a special study of Russian and German. Last year he also taught an evening class for graduate students in American government at Howard University in Washington. Dr. Abbott received his masters degree and Ph.D. in political science at the University of California. During the war he was in Washington in government work dealing with war activities. While in France he opened consulates in Nice and in Marseilles. In Nice he met Suzanne Dupy, whom he later married. Educated in French schools and with a degree from Ohio University, she was teaching English in Nice.

The Abbotts lived several years in Ann Arbor, Michigan, where he taught international relations and political science. One year was spent in Santiago, Chile, studying government conditions.

The Abbott's young son is named Alden for his grandfather, Alden H. Abbott, who was a professor of history and political science as well as dean of the College of the Pacific when the College moved to Stockton from San Jose. The senior Abbott died in 1927. Mrs. Abbott, Sr., lives at the family home at 149 W. Stadium Drive, Stockton.

CHARLES HARMON (GINN), lyric baritone and Bay Area artist, is widely known throughout the West for his appearances in concert, oratorio, radio and television. He has sung frequently with the San Francisco Symphony, appeared as soloist on many occasions with the Standard Symphony Hour and is currently a featured artist on the Standard Broadcast series. Both a music and chemistry major while at Pacific, Harmon is a chemist at the Cutter Laboratories in Berkeley along with actively pursuing his musical career.

RICHARD EATON, business manager of the Modesto School system for ten years, resigned his position in March to become business manager of the new Foothill Junior College near Palo Alto. He served in the navy during the Korean War and is a lieutenant commander in the naval reserve unit. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Phi.

PHILIP ALOSI, with the faculty of the Lincoln High school at Lincoln, recently was chosen "Teacher of the Week." During the years there he has taught English, Spanish, French and drama. His hobbies range from violin playing to weight lifting. During World War II he was stationed with the U.S. Air Force Secret Service.

CLAYTON LONG, dean of men at Napa Junior College and holder of three Pacific degrees, A.B., Mus.B., and M.A., was elected in February to serve as a member of the Veterans Memorial Board of his district. During World War II and the Korean War, he served as an army hospital administrator in the Aleutians and in Korea.

Long's professional music career has included work as a concert pianist, choral conductor, member of professional ensembles, church choir director and associate director of the Pacific Music Camp for five seasons. He is now engaged in doctoral studies in the field of school personnel administration.

Mrs. Long is the former MARIAN WICHERT, B.M. '46. They have two children, Marcy 6, and Cathey 2. Residence is at 3415 Valley Glen Lane, Napa.

A feature article by Carter W. "Pat" Dunlap of Stockton was published in the March issue of the NEDA Journal, magazine of the National Electronic Distributors Association, edited in Chicago. Titled "Communications—Heartbeat of Branch Operations," the well illustrated article describes the radio telephone communication system Dunlap developed to articulate the 10 California supply stores operated by his firm, the Dunlap Wholesale Radio Company. the cover for the NEDA Journal. Among the article illustrations is a picture of Fred Holden '43, Dunlap's Operations Manager, who uses the radio system to keep in touch with the stores, distributed through the valley from Chico to Bakersfield.

Mrs. Dunlap is the former Barbara Albertson '43. With their children, Natilee Ann (8) and Carter Jr. (2) they live at 1460 W. Alpine, Stockton.

DUANE C. SEWELL is director of Scientific Operations at the University of California Hydrogen Bomb Laboratory, Livermore. The Sewells, who live in Livermore, have one child.

WESTON INGLIS is general sales manager and co-owner of the Gravem Inglis Sunbeam Baking Company of Stockton. Opening of their new plant on Sharpes Lane this winter was televised.

IOLA WHITLOCK BRUBECK, Epsilon Lambda Sigma, wife of the popular and celebrated leader in progressive jazz, pianist DAVE BRUBECK '42, was quoted at length in an interview published April 6 in the Rhythm Section of This World, San Francisco Chronicle, following their return from an extended concert tour of Europe.

Entitled "Mr. Coolu' Got a Warm Reception", the interview featured their two-week concert series in Poland, sponsored by the State Department and the American National Theatre Association. The Brubeck Quartet was the first small jazz group to visit Poland and the first racially mixed group to appear in that country, according to Mrs. Brubeck. "The Poles consider jazz expression an art; it means the free expression of the individual to them," she was quoted.

Mrs. Brubeck, who was graduated with high honors, and Dave met at Pacific while undergraduates. Their two eldest sons, oldest of five children, accompanied them on the recent concert tour.

HATS IN THE RING

Many Pacificites were candidates for various public offices this spring. The following have come to the attention of the Review:

Elected, ROBERT T. MONAGAN '42 City Councilman of Tracy, and EDWARD CATTUZZO '52 City Clerk of Isleton.

Candidates (elections not completed or results not reported), ALAN M. DENISON '39 for reelection, Tuolumne County Superintendent of Schools; DONALD T. MCADAMS '50 Butte County Board of Supervisors; MARTIN CABALZAR '50 (M.A.) Yolo County Schools Superintendent; OSCAR M. LARSON, JR., '49 Sonoma County Board of Supervisors; GEORGE CARTER '48 Porterville Judicial District Court Judge; EDWARD LINSCHIED '43 Pittsburg City Council; MARVIN CHURCH '43 Millbrae City Council; JOHN CECINI '37, and TAUBNER HAMMA '31, Stockton Municipal Judge.

Litafrances dal Porto writes from CBS Television City in Hollywood where she works in "live" production operations on such featured shows as Playhouse 90, Studio One, Climax, Skelton, Benny, and Shower of Stars. The former Pacific Theatre star, programmed as Lita Darwin, reports she really enjoyed Gail Gott's roundup of former DeMarcus Brown's players in the February Review, but brings us up to date on Marcelyn Battilana who now is Mrs. Nathaniel Ratner.

CARROLL R. DOTY, director of Pacific's athletic news service for ten years was announced in February as a principal and shareholder in the Campbell Agency, Stockton advertising and public relations firm. For the past two years he handled Pacific sports publicity as an account executive for the agency.

Doty took over athletic publicity from Art Farey in 1947 when Larry Siemering succeeded A. A. Stagg as head football coach. Thus the popular writer, whose first contact with Pacific was as a Navy V-12 student during World War II, fell heir to the great Eddie LeBaron era and the undefeated Tigers of 1949. As an undergraduate in a sailor suit he had also witnessed Mr. Stagg's great 1943 season when the Tigers were rated as high as sixth in the nation. Through the decade past, he has expanded athletic publicity to keep pace with the intercollegiate program.

His final regular sports feature for the Review is on page 22 of this issue.

Mrs. Doty is Marcia Gray, Society Editor of the Stockton Record. They have a six-year-old son, Arthur.

1947

CALVIN D. CATTERALL, school psychologist for the San Gabriel School District, is president-elect of the California Association of School Psychologists and Psychometrists. He lives at 6262 North Willard, San Gabriel, with his wife and two children, Garth 4, and Caren nearing 2.

STANLEY JOHNSON of Piedmont was appointed in February as vice-chairman of Disaster Service for Oakland Red Cross. He is executive secretary of the East Bay Grocers' Association.

MARSHALL WINDMILLER, research political scientist at the University of California, has just finished co-authoring a book on the Communist party of India and is presently writing his dissertation. Following his graduation from Pacific, Marshall studied history and international relations at the Sorbonne, Paris, on a Rotary scholarship. He was the recipient of a two-year grant by the Ford Foundation for a study of Indian government and policies. During the winter of 1955 he returned to Europe and the Orient to gather more material for his works. Windmiller was speaker April 27 for the Annual Alumni College banquet on the Stockton campus.

WILLIAM D. THOMPSON, manager of the M&M Drug Store in Los Gatos, was named Home Town Merchant of the Week early in April. He has brought fine merchandizing methods and excellent prescription service to his firm and is active in local club and civic affairs. Upon graduation from Stockton High School in 1943 he volunteered for service in World War II seeing duty with the Air Force in the Pacific Theatre. He and his wife, Beverly, an employee of the Santa Clara Health Department, live at 15903 Longwood Drive, Los Gatos.

LOUIS COWARD, Omega Phi Alpha beginning with the spring term was transferred from the faculty of Antioch

Junior High School to the faculty of Antioch High School. Mrs. Coward is the former HAZEL COLLIVER x'48 of Tau Kappa Kappa. They have two children.

MRS. MYRON WILCOX (MIRIAM AVERY x'48) is substituting in the Porterville school system. They have a four-year old daughter, Carol Beth, and year old son, Bradford Richard. They live at 1006 West Bellview, Porterville.

PHILIP C. BUSH, 10712 Larry Way, Cupertino, is teaching in the Cupertino Union Elementary School District. Mrs. Bush is the former FRANCES MACK '48. They have a daughter, Alice Louise, one year old May 21.

ROBERT R. COLLINS and MRS. COLLINS (BEVERLY BALL) with their three children live at 1635 Eighth Avenue, Delano. Bob has been a cotton gin manager for three years. Randy is five, Brud is two, and the youngest, Melissa Ann, was born October 1. Beverly writes that because ginning season and Homecoming come at the same time of the year they have to be "keeping up with the alumni" through the Pacific Review.

REV. VERNON KRAFT of La Crescenta, now in his third pastorate, is the author of a book, The Director of Christian Education. He attended Western Evangelical Seminary following his graduation from Pacific.

EUGENE A. SOUTHWELL, of 6602 Eldridge Street, San Diego 15, has accepted a Veterans Administration Traineeship at the University of Iowa to begin in September.

MRS. FARADG GILAN FARR (PHYLIS NORMAN), 4100 Randolph Avenue, Oakland, writes that although her one-year old daughter keeps her busy, she is interested in alumni activities and offered to do what she could to strengthen old ties. She suggested publication of a campus calendar of events.

MRS. HENRY BLAUD (ADAH MARIE RUHL MILLER) joined the staff in February of the Baywood Press, Point Reyes Station, as news editor. She is a former editor of the Pacific Weekly and Pacific News Service Assistant. She and her family live in Inverness. Blaud received a masters degree in history at Pacific in 1957.

FRED J. CURLEY of Alpha Kappa Phi is a patrolman with the San Francisco Police Department, Bureau of Identification. His department is mainly interested in criminal identification by means of finger prints.

MARIKO NITTA, journalism major from Japan, who worked her way through school with some aid from friends, is credited with doing the Japanese translation of Bridge to the Sun, a book originally written by Mrs. Gwen Terasaki, the wife of the late Eisei Terasaki who served under the last ambassador from Japan to Washington before the outbreak of World War II. Mrs. Terasaki, who met her husband when he was serving at the embassy in Washington, describes in the book her experiences as an American in wartime Japan.

Mariko is also the author of Saya No Tegami, (My Letters), a "best seller" among Japanese book publications in 1952, which is a collection of

"Giants on ground glass" is what MAYNARD FRANK WOLFE '55 saw in his photographs which are featured in three pages in the No. 1, 1958 issue of Lica-Photography under the title, "Does This Look Familiar?" Close-ups of every day activities such as shaving, applying lipstick, and washing teeth were taken from two to ten inches away with magnifying viewer. His extra-close-ups, called macrophotographs, are opening up "new areas of visual experience for me and for thousands of others who will see resulting pictures in national magazines and Sunday magazine supplements."

Wolfe, an Archite, served as an instructor of photography in the army and took photography classes at Pacific. He was editor of the 1952 Naranjado.

letters written as a Pacific undergraduate. They are direct impressions of American campus life and her problems of adjustment in American homes.

IRENE E. STAFFIELD, daughter of Mrs. Clara Staffield, Lindsay, is teaching at Pointires American Junior High School in France. She arrived on the Continent last October.

MR. and MRS. DANYS JEMISON, music majors, are living in Fort Bragg where Danys teaches music in the high school. Mrs. Jemison (CARMEN MIESEN) is organist of the Fort Bragg Presbyterian Church.

JERRALD K. PICKERING, former Tiger fullback, and later in the top ten per cent of his class at Hastings College of Law of the University of California, is now Redding's newest lawyer. He became associated in January with attorney Ira M. Shadwell. He and his wife, Carolyn, have a two year old son, Jerrald II, and a brand new baby.

TOM MCCORMICK, after five seasons in professional football with the San Francisco Forty-Niners, the Toronto Argonauts, and the Los Angeles Rams, has been named football coach and physical education teacher at Tracy High School. The former Tiger backfield star assisted last year in the intramural program at University of San Francisco. His backfield assistant at Tracy will be Pacific alumnus HENRY WALSH.

LEONA WISE has been elected chairman of the Junior Auxiliary of the Alhambra-San Gabriel AAUW for 1958-59 and editor for the Omricon Chapter of Phi Delta Gamma for Graduate Women at the University of Southern California.

HAL BALL and his wife, PATSY ESTEP x'52, are living in LaHabra at 511 Martinez Drive, where he is a special agent with Travelers Insurance Company. Their two sons are Kent, nearly three, and Steven, nine months.

ROBERT STERES of Archania is currently with the D'Arct Advertising Company in St. Louis, as a media analyst. He received his masters degree last year from the University of Missouri's School of Journalism. He and his wife, Rochelle, and daughter, Eileen, live at 857 Longacre Drive, St. Louis, 24.

PHILOSOPHY AT PACIFIC

FALLICO IS KNOLES LECTURER

INSTITUTE MOVES TO WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS

Arturo B. Fallico of San Jose State College will deliver the 10th annual Tully Cleon Knoles Lectures in Philosophy Saturday, June 7, and then head a national panel of 13 philosophers who will staff the 11th annual Pacific Philosophy Institute sessions beginning June 9 at White Sulphur Springs, Napa County.

It is after 10 years at Lake Tahoe that the unique philosophy enterprise shifts to the long popular Napa County resort area. These historic grounds and buildings were acquired recently by California-Nevada Methodist Camps, Inc.

Fallico, notable philosophical existentialist, will lecture at 4:00 p.m. in Anderson Social Hall on "The Quest for Authentic Existence." The annual Knoles Banquet is set for 6:30 p.m., followed by a discussion session when the Knoles Lecture Fellows for 1958 will engage Dr. Fallico in open discussion of his philosophical assertions.

Born in old Calabria, sometimes called the "First Italy," Fallico was forced to leave his native land after he organized one of the first Italian student rebellions against Mussolini's facism. After wandering in North Africa, France, and Spain, he landed in the United States—penniless, in the middle of the great depression of the 1930's.

In his own words, he says, "For a time, I lived under the decorative lions which stand in front of the Art Institute in Chicago, occasionally changing my abode to various city parks. As a professional artist and sculptor I was able to sell a water-color or two from time to time."

Lectures on philosophy and art won him attention, and a Northwestern University scholarship. He went on to earn a doctorate here and meet Dr. Paul Arthur Schilpp, former C.O.P. philosophy chairman. He worked with

Dr. Schilpp on early volumes of the famous Library of Living Philosophers edited by the latter. Fallico, as a young student, had become acquainted with one of the subjects of the library, the great Italian liberal, Benedetto Croce, and had studied with him in his Neopolitan library.

Dr. Fallico came to his present post in 1948 and has taught summer sessions for Stanford and University of California. He has been on the Pacific Philosophy Institute staff for six years.

The Knoles Lecture fellows, nominated by the presidents of California junior colleges, are selected from various disciplines because they demonstrated continued scholarly investigation. The Fellows for 1958 are:

Pacific SPORTS FINAL

by CARROLL DOTY

*Retiring director of the Athletic

SPORTS WRITER: Carroll Doty has forsaken the field of sports for the advertising and public relations agency business.

What has seemed but a moment, but in reality has been an 11-year job of trying to spread the word on Tiger athletics, now ends—and a person wouldn't be human if he didn't have a few memories of Bengal sports glory.

Checking the records since 1947 I find I've seen 109 Tiger football games, 234 basketball games, 39 track meets and 156 baseball games, plus about 50 swimming, tennis and golf contests for pretty close to 600 trips to the press box.

Trying to boil all that down into a few highlights (the editor, with a severe look, sez "keep it short") is bound to find a few high spots overlooked, but for what it's worth, how about these to chew on conversationally?

Remember the 1950 triangular track meet between California, San Jose State and Pacific in Berkeley? The Tigers weren't supposed to do any more than hang around while the Bears and Spartans battled it out. But they reckoned without a one-two punch of Don Brooks and Eddie Macon. Don brought home the bacon in the 100, 120 high hurdles and 220 low hurdles and Ed won the 220 and 440 and anchored the winning mile relay. That's a track story hard to beat, although licking the Spartans, 71-60, in 1949 for Pacific's only dual win over SJS in 11 years, is another pretty good one.

Or, if baseball's your dish, how about the no-hitter Stan McWilliams tossed at powerful Fresno State in 1948? Big Stan was mowing 'em down with no trouble until two out in the ninth inning when a Bulldog batter tapped an easy roller toward second. Donnie Brown juggled it just a second before throwing to first, and the batter beat it by a step. As official scorer, I called an error and FSC partisans howled. But a clean play would have nipped the runner, so there was really no growl coming. That's the only Tiger no-hitter I've heard of.

Down through the years Chris Kjeldsen's done as fine a coaching job on his swimming team as I know of. To me, his highlight came in 1950 when boys such as Bob Steel, Frank Poucher, Jon Stebbins and Don Driggs, to name a few, cracked Stanford's 43-dual meet win string with a thriller in Pacific Pool. That one left me limp!

Probably no sport has as many heart-stoppers as basketball. But the one to end 'em all came in 1954 when the Tigers upset Bill Russell and the USF Dons, 76-70 in three overtime periods. It was 57-57 at the final buzzer, 63-63 after one overtime, 66-66 after two overtimes and then, with starters Al Mangin, Ron DeVight, Nick Romanoff and Clyde Conner gone on fouls, the late Ken Buck, Bruce Harkness and Cece Ciatti engineered the win.

Somebody once remarked that Pacific plays in more exciting football games than any other school, and I believe it. In 1957 I tried coming up with the 10 top grid games in 10 years for a newspaper column. The column came out, but I'm not sure you couldn't substitute 10 other games for those picked and not sacrifice one ounce of excitement. But there are a couple that stick out for me. Who could ever forget Don Hardey's breathtaking performance in the 35-35 tie with Hardin-Simmons in 1948? Down 21-0 at the half, Hardey rambled on long runs three times for TDs and almost won it on the last play, being stopped on the one-foot line after a 34-yard, two-foot jaunt. And when Jack Myers kicked off his football coaching career with a 25-20 opening win over Stanford in 1953, I thought that was the greatest individual sports story I'd ever handled. And I still do!

Some awfully fine games and performances are going without mention here, but the single group that sticks out like a beacon for most folks, and me too, is the '49 football team. Larry Siemering's (and don't forget Ernie Jorge and Hugh McWilliams) unbeaten, untied and uninvited group put Pacific on the map in football.

Remember 'em! John Rohde and Phil Ortez, ends; Don Campora and Bob Klein, tackles; Ken Johnson and Bob Franceschini, guards; Bob Moser, center; Eddie LeBaron, quarterback; Don Brown and Bruce Orvis, halves, and Don Hardy, fullback. And on defense, Harry Kane, Duane Putnam, Walt Polenske and Eddie Macon.

From Bob Monagan and Jerry Kirsten to Jack Myers in athletic department heads, from Larry Siemering and Ernie Jorge to Jack Myers in football coaches, from Chris Kjeldsen to Van Sweet in basketball coaches, and through Hugh McWilliams, Boyd Thompson, Skip Rowland and Mel Moretti in other sports, the Tigers have been blessed with competent and hard-working leaders and coaches.

We may not have won 'em all (pretty close to a 65 per cent winner average in 11 years, though), but we sure had a lot of fun!

Campus Romance

MRS. HELEN THOMAS EVANS, assistant director of development for the College of the Pacific since 1954 and a former Pacific student, and DR. IVAN W. ROWLAND, dean of the School of Pharmacy, recently announced plans for a June 1 wedding in Morris Chapel. The two became acquainted when Dr. Rowland arrived in 1956 from Idaho to serve as dean of California's third pharmacy school.

Mrs. Evans is a member of Epsilon Lambda Sigma's alumnae chapter. She was active in the Olive Branch of the Children's Hospital of the East Bay while residing in Piedmont, and maintains membership in the Leonardo da Vinci Society of San Francisco, a music and art group. Later, while making her home in San Mateo, Mrs. Evans conducted college girls on tours of Europe for several seasons.

A daughter, Mrs. Donald Giles of Corvallis, Oregon, the former Betty Evans, also studied at Pacific. Mr. Giles was graduated from Pacific in '53 and received his masters degree in '56. He currently is a candidate for his Ph.D. degree in marine biology at Oregon State College and this summer will be an instructor at Pacific's Marine Biological Station at Dillon Beach. Their daughter, Martha Ann, will soon be four.

Dr. Rowland graduated in pharmacy at Idaho State College, received his masters degree from Colorado University, and his doctorate in pharmacy from the University of Washington.

He joined the faculty at Idaho State in 1938 and became Dean of its College of Pharmacy in 1954. He is president of Phi Delta Chi, national pharmacy fraternity, and is also a Fellow of the American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education.

Planning late spring nuptials are CHARMAINE LARIVIERE, daughter of a pioneer Stockton family, who was graduated with honors in '56 as a radio, television and speech major, and Robert Donald Behler, registered pharmacist and manager of the College Pharmacy. The bride-to-be is a director of radio and television activities and director of media for the Olympius Advertising, Inc., of Stockton.

ROBERT BAHNSEN '48, M.A. '53, and currently completing studies for his doctorate at the American Academy of Asian Studies in San Francisco, affiliated with Pacific, announced his engagement to Miss Mary Bell Wilson, teacher at the John McLaren School in San Francisco.

MARTHA JANE KOSTAL '53 of Hayward plans a summer wedding with Warren C. Gustafson of San Francisco, a graduate student at San Francisco State College. He is participating in the San Francisco YMCA fellowship training program. She is working at the San Francisco headquarters of the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church.

ALLEN RUSS, graduated with honors in '53 and now candidate for a masters degree at Pacific while teaching business education at Lodi Union High School, will marry Ina Neri of Lodi in a late summer wedding. She is a member of the superintendents secretarial staff of the Stockton Unified School District.

Dr. Stanford Retires

LECTURER: Botanist Stanford Gives Annual Faculty Address.

Dr. Ernest Elwood Stanford, Chairman of the Department of Botany, capped 33 years of service to Pacific when he delivered the eighth annual Faculty Research Lecture May 19. He will retire as of the end of the current semester.

The address, Redwoods Away, story of the propagation of the California sequoias in many parts of the world will be printed. Copies will be forwarded without charge, on request to the campus office of public relations.

A member of the Pacific faculty since 1926, Dr. Stanford is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts who earned his doctorate at Harvard. Before entering college teaching he was a plant pathologist in North Carolina, headed the pharmacography laboratory of the U.S. Bureau of Chemistry in Washington, and served at various times as a botanical expert for the U.S. Tariff Commission. His first regular teaching appointment was at Western Reserve University, Cleveland.

Dr. Stanford is an author, not only of several college text books in biology and botany, but has marketed considerable fiction mostly for juveniles.

Dr. and Mrs. Stanford, the former Alice Carroll, live at 236 Knoles Way in Pacific Manor. They have three children: Donald, teacher of English in Louisiana University; Mary, biology teacher in Franklin High School, Stockton; and David, a pediatrician of Redding. Mary is a Pacific graduate. Donald and David are graduates of Stanford University.

FACULTY ASIDES

TV MAN: John C. Crabbe headed successful drive for educational TV station.

The central valley of California will have an educational television station largely because of the cooperation of the College of the Pacific and the leadership of John C. Crabbe, director of television and radio.

V.H.F. channel 6, reserved for more than two years by the Federal Communications Commission, was in danger of being lost to commercial applicants because valley educational and community groups had failed to finance the proposed operation. Also a $100,000 grant proffered by the Fund for Adult Education, a division of the Ford Foundation, was in danger of being withdrawn by a March 31 deadline.

This was the prospect when Crabbe became executive secretary of the Central California Educational Television Corporation, holders of the channel six assignment. To gain the grant the corporation was required to produce $100,000 in cash and an equal sum in pledges before the deadline.

In January, the College granted Crabbe's full time services to the corporation for a period of six months and continued to sustain his salary. Crabbe took on personal direction of a 15-county campaign and put it "over the top" just before the deadline date. Now he is busy directing plans for getting the station on the air in the fall.

Impressed with the response of commercial television stations, school boards, and thousands of valley citizens who made cash contributions and pledges, Crabbe insists the job was done by them, not himself. But the fact remains that without his leadership and the cooperation of the College in freeing his time, educational television with all its potential for the future might have been lost to the valley area of California.

A College of the Pacific alumnus was named "most outstanding alumnus of the University of Southern California for 1958" during the Trojan Alumni Day festivities of May 10.

The recipient is nonegenarian Rockwell Dennis Hunt ("Mr. California") founder and former director of the California History Foundation at Pacific. He is Dean Emeritus of the U.S.C. Graduate School.

In a strict sense, Dr. Hunt is an alumnus of neither institution. Actually he received his baccalaureate degree from old Napa College which soon thereafter was merged with Pacific. All of its graduates were properly claimed by the Pacific Alumni Association. The University of Southern California's claim to the distinguished author and educator is based on an honorary Doctor of Laws degree conferred in 1936. He was a member of the faculty for 37 years.

Howard Payne, President of the General Alumni Association of U.S.C., conferred the latest collegiate honor on Dr. Hunt, the Asa V. Call Achievement Trophy, awarded "by reason of his accomplishment in bringing the greatest honor to the University." The recipient came away with a replica of a three-foot trophy bearing the names of the university's most famous alumni since 1932. His name follows that of Mrs. Richard Nixon, inscribed in 1957.

sions where supervisor John Anson presented a scroll of resolutions outlining the achievements of Dr. Hunt's remarkable years.

That a professional career may be successfully combined with home making is demonstrated by Mrs. Emma Baumgardner, assistant professor of English. During her years of high school and College teaching she became the mother of two and the grandmother of five and managed it all so well that she was recently named "Mother of the Year in Tracy" by the Eagles Lodge. Moreover she is an outstanding church leader, serving various local, district, and conference offices of the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church.

John G. Elliott, professor of piano at Pacific and former dean of its conservatory, was elected in April as president-general of Pi Kappa Lambda, national honorary music society, at the organization's biennial convention in Chicago. The society, comparable to Phi Beta Kappa, but limited to the realm of music, is the only national music society taking both men and women into its ranks. The organization has 41 chapters and more than 10,000 members. Delta chapter is located at College of the Pacific.

The Stockton chapter of the American Association of University Women in February voted to establish a $500 grant for a foreign woman student in the name of Lorraine Knoles. Miss Knoles, Pacific professor of history, is a Pacific alumna of the class of 1922.

Faculty Appointments

named Director of Religious Life.

The Pacific faculty for 1958-59 will be headed by a new Academic Vice-President, Dr. Samuel L. Meyer, and will include five new teachers, and a Director of Religious Life.

Appointment of Dr. Meyer was announced in the February Review. He succeeds Dr. Lloyd M. Bertholf, President-elect of Illinois Wesleyan University.

Robert H. Stewart, Jr., Tucson, Arizona, has been named Director of Religious Life. The position is a new one, and Stewart is the first appointee. With the academic rank of associate professor, he is expected to do some teaching as well as steer campus religious activity. His work will be in addition to that of the campus Anderson Y Center, United Crusade Agency directed by Thomas J. Clagett.

Creation of the new post was agreed upon jointly and will be jointly supported by the College and the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist church to which it is related.

Currently Director of the Wesley Foundation student center at the University of Arizona, Stewart is a graduate of Southern Methodist University and of the Southern California School of Theology. He is a former Youth Director of the Glendale Methodist church and earlier was in pastorates in Los Angeles and North Hollywood.

Other teaching appointments not previously announced in the Review:

1. Dr. Arthur H. Maynard from the University of Miami, as Professor of Bible. He succeeds the late Dr. George H. Colliver, although not as chairman of the department, a post now filled by Dr. Frank A. Lindhorst. He is a graduate of Cornell College, Iowa, and the Boston University School of Theology who later earned his doctorate at the University of Southern California.

2. Dr. Edmund T. Peckham, from the Rice Institute, Texas, as Associate Professor of History and Political Science. He is a graduate of Brown University with a doctorate from Harvard. This is a new, added appointment.

3. Dr. Jesse S. Binford, from the University of Texas, to the department of chemistry faculty as assistant professor. A specialist in physical chemistry, his appointment gives the department a full-time teacher in each of the four major areas of chemistry specialization. Dr. Binford earned his doctorate at the University of Utah after graduation from the Rice Institute, Houston.

4. Dr. Kenneth Stocking, from Stockton College, as professor and chairman of the Department of Botany.

A Pacific graduate, and already part-time on the C.O.P. faculty, Dr. Stocking will succeed Dr. Ernest E. Stanford who is retiring. His Ph.D. degree is from the University of Southern California.

5. Dr. Perry J. Rockwell, Jr., from the University of Wisconsin, as Assistant Professor of Education and psychology. He replaces Dr. George Ingebo who is going to Portland, Ore., city school system as Director of Research and Guidance.

6. Dr. Edmund F. Soule, from the Chairmanship of the Department of Music at Salem College, West Virginia, as Assistant Professor of Music Theory. His doctorate is from the Eastman School of Music.

7. Dr. Thomas Young, from the Rice Institute, as assistant professor of Physics. His doctoral degree also was earned at Rice.

CAREFUL DRIVERS: Ray Norwood, Secretary Manager of the San Joaquin Safety Council, peers into an "Orthorater," new vision testing machine operated by senior Jack Bybee of Tracy. Observing are officers of the Allstate Insurance Company who called at the campus in May with a check from the Allstate

PACIFIC on the ROAD

Four foreign and domestic travel-study tours sponsored by Pacific are booked for the 1958 summer season, according to Elliott J. Taylor, C.O.P. director of tours.

Tours of Europe (including Russia), Mexico, Japan, and the Pacific Northwest are available to students, teachers, alumni, and the public generally who are interested in travel with an educational accent conducted by faculty leaders. College credit may be earned with collateral assignments and payment of tuition in addition to travel fees, but academic registration is optional for membership in the parties.

EUROPE

A 62-day European trip conducted by Dr. Alonzo L. Baker, political scientist, and Mrs. Baker, C.O.P. news service aide, departs by air from Los Angeles on June 18. This party is already at capacity, but space is available for all of the following.

MEXICO

A seven-week residence and traveling summer school in Mexico, July 19 to September 7, is a new departure on the C.O.P. tour calendar. Dr. Wilfred M. Mitchell, clinical psychologist, and Mrs. Mitchell, will head the group assembled in cooperation with the Experiment in International Living. This is an organization with offices in 10 countries which bring international groups together in normal home living situations.

For four weeks the group will be assigned residence in private homes living with Mexican families in cities such as Taxco, Pueblo, and San Miguel del Allenda. Two weeks of travel will follow. Headquarters for the enterprise will be in Mexico City at Mexican-American Institute of Cultural Relations.

THE NORTHWEST

A "Beaver Trail" trip through the Pacific Northwest, guided by Mr. and Mrs. Reginald R. Stuart who head the California History Foundation and related Western American projects at College of the Pacific, is another new entry among the college managed travel opportunities, the two-week travel schedule, August 4 to 17, is by chartered motor coach with overnight hotel stops.

Historical landmarks, scenic areas, principal cities, museums and special exhibits will be visited. A performance at the noted Ashland, Oregon, Shakespearean Festival is included.

A trip up the Columbia River gorge, a two-day cruise on Puget Sound to Victoria, B.C., Grand Coulee Dam, and old Fort Vancouver are among other points of interest. History of the area, stories of the pioneers, and the development of the Northwest will be emphasized.

JAPAN

The 33-day tour of Japan is managed by the American Academy of Asian studies in San Francisco, graduate school affiliate of C.O.P. Kazumitsu Kato, professor of Japanese culture and oriental philosophy will conduct the tour. The trans-Pacific flights are via Honolulu and Okinawa. The take-off is July 1 from Oakland.

Great cities of Japan will be visited including Tokyo, Osaka, and Kyoto, as well as scenic areas. The atom-bombed city of Hiroshima is on the itinerary along with the world famed Mikimoto Pearl Island and beautiful Nikko National Park.

Complete brochures describing all of the summer tour offerings are available by addressing Taylor at the College of the Pacific. All information on costs, accomodations, academic credit, itineraries, application, and special conditions are published in the folders.

Pacific Advents

Bruce Donald Nickerson, class of 1980, the firstborn of Mel Nickerson '56, Executive Director of the Pacific Alumni Association, and Mrs. Nickerson, the former Donna Alberti '53, arrived in Stockton December 27.

Recently all moved into a new home where they now reside at 1618 W. Euclid, Stockton.

Only partially successful in keeping up with the alumni birth rate, the Review is happy to announce the following adverts scattered across the months since July, 1957.

Ninth COLUMBIA SEASON OPENS

Saturday and Sunday, June 28 and 29 are the opening nights for the 9th annual repertory season of the Pacific Theatre Columbia Company at the Fallon House Theatre, Columbia State Park, Tuolumne County.

The Pacific troupers present the liveliest feature on the historic Mother Lode, now largely a museum of the storied gold days. More and more tourists annually drive down the 49 Highway through the sunbaked ruins of the little ghost towns. But at Columbia the old playhouse of the Miners is alive again. A visit to the antique gold circuit theatre is a favorite summer jaunt for people from throughout northern California and travelers from across the nation.

Originally restored nine years ago by the state agencies the fascinating old show place is getting further improvements now, a new lighting control system, fire escape from the old horseshoe balcony, and general repairs.

Any rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, the Fallon House will open and be safer than ever, Director De Marcus Brown emphasizes. The original restoration work and the present improvements were both done by the State of California expressly to make the theatre available for public performance.

Assisting Brown in direction of a bill of five plays will be Max Gobel. Curt Ennen is technical director. Other members of the staff were not confirmed at this writing.

The performance schedule extends to August 10. Annual sponsorship tickets at $15 each may be ordered now. They provide two admissions to each production at less than regular box office rates. Address all inquiries now to Pacific Theatre, College of the Pacific, Stockton. After June 22, address the Fallon House Theatre, Columbia State Park, California.

Tener '43) have a second son, Gordon, born September 15.

A second daughter, Beverly Jane, was born September 17 to Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Igo of Yuba City.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Love of 2113 Roskelley Drive, Concord, have announced a second son, David Bruce, born October 23.

NOVEMBER

Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Kim announced the birth of a second child, Grant Lester Kim, born November 11, in Los Angeles. Mrs. Kim was the former Pearl Lim, '49.

Thomas Liddicoet '49 and Mrs. Liddicoet announced the birth of their first child, Thomas Marcus, on December 31. Their address is 2871 Loyola Avenue, Richmond.

JANUARY

Anna Hermine was born January 3 to Mr. and Mrs. James Sayer of Bakersfield. Mrs. Sayer is the former Viola Little '52.

Mrs. John Pastrone (Mary Cappa '52) and Mr. Pastrone are the parents of Michael John, born January 30. Their residence is at 1211 Drake Ave., San Leandro.

In Memory

Miss Anna Elizabeth Harris, retired faculty member of both Stockton College and of the College of the Pacific, and sister of the late Dr. J. William Harris, dean emeritus and founder of the College of the Pacific School of Education, died April 11 after a lengthy illness. Memorial services were held April 19 in Holt Chapel of the Central Methodist Church.

A native of Ashland, Kentucky, Miss Harris was a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and did graduate work at Harvard University. She was active for many years as program chairman of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Central Methodist Church. She also was a member of the Philomathean Club, the P.E.O. Sisterhood, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Revidio Club, and of Pacific's Twenty-five Year Club.

Miss Harris's esteemed and beloved brother died last September. Nearest surviving relatives are a sister, Mrs. May Harris Waldeck of Huntington, W. Virginia, and a cousin, Mrs. Daniel Stone (Alice Crouse '32) of Palo Alto and formerly of Stockton.

Funeral services were held March 14 in Berkeley for Mrs. Sussane Wang, 55. A native of China but educated in California, Mrs. Wang returned to China after being graduated from Pacific in 1927. She served as principal and teacher at two girls' high schools in Fukiang province. When the communists took over the China mainland, Mrs Wang and her husband, James, a college professor, fled to Formosa where they continued teaching.

The Wangs returned to the United States in 1955. Besides her husband, Mrs. Wang is survived by four sons and three daughters: Sidney of Pacific Grove; William of Berkeley; Shih of China; David of Formosa; and Pauline, Emily, and Florence of Berkeley. All are college graduates except Florence, who is a student at Berkeley High School, and David, 12.

Mrs. Wang had asked Ellen Deering, Pacific Registrar, to give each child a Christian name. The Chinese names were interpreted by the Rev. Wilbur Choy of Stockton and appropriate English ones were sent to China. But they were never received, due to war time conditions. Miss Deering says of Mrs. Wang: "She was one of Pacific's outstanding foreign graduates—one of the few Chinese women to become an administrator."

Thomas John Stevens, 50, who received his masters degree from Pacific in '31, died March 17 at his home in Taft. Long a Pacific enthusiast, he was active in alumni affairs and was a member of the Pacific Associates. Head of the music department of the Taft Union High School and Taft College, Stevens had been connected with Taft schools for 21 years. At the time of his death he also was instructor for the extension division of Fresno State College.

For 17 years he directed the annual presentation of the "Messiah", was president of the West Side Community Concerts, Inc., and directed the choir of the First Methodist Church for many years. He was president of the Central California Division Junior College Music Educators Association, and was a member of the Kiwanis club and the California Teachers Association.

Surviving are his widow, a son, and a daughter, all living at the family home, 210 Woodrow Street.

Norman Gonzales, class of 1928, and a lifelong educator, died January 27 in Monterey.

He received his M.A. at Oregon State College, and was a member of Alpha Kappa Phi (Archania). He was a pioneer education officer for the Civilian Conservation Corps, serving from the early 1930's to 1942. During World War II he served as field director for the American Red Cross at Fort Ord and at the time of his death was employed at Fort Ord as an education specialist.

Surviving is his wife, the former Nadean Tupper, also a Pacific alumnus, class of 1927, and a member of Alpha Theta Tau. The Gonzales had lived at Dolores and Alta Streets, Carmel, since 1941.

An accident in India claimed the life of 11-year old Jane Grubbs, second daughter of Mrs. Irvin E. Grubbs (Nell Vickroy '39) and the late Irvin Grubbs '39, who died last August in Stockton. The accident occurred early in March, a bicycle-auto crash in Ellichpur, Bombay State, shortly after Mrs. Grubbs had returned to missionary work in India with her five daughters. They were pictured in the February Review.

Memorial services were held March 27 in the Morris Chapel for Pacific Associate Carlos LaMoine of Stockton who died March 24. He was an original sponsor of the California History Foundation and first president of the Jedediah Smith Society instituted last year. He was active also in the California Historical Society and in the Calaveras and Tulare county societies.

Born in the California mining town of Calico, he became successful in two careers, pharmacy and insurance. He is survived by his wife, Rhoda LaMoine, a Stockton teacher, and by their sons, Major Don C. LaMoine of Tucson, and Keith LaMoine, Delano cattleman. Both are Pacific graduates.

Bertha Tyrell, class of 1887 and a member of Emendia, died October 7 in Pasadena.

Mrs. Emma Munch, class of 1897, died March 30 at Hillhaven Rest Home, Burlingame.

Mrs. Fred Lamson (Margaret Brooks 1933-35) died in February in Stockton. Her home was at 1118 Vernal Way.

Mrs. R. H. Hanscom, the former Josephine Franks, died February 2 in Stockton at age of 82. She received her bachelor of music degree from Pacific in 1898 and taught music for many years in Oakland. Before coming to Stockton she was living in the Episcopal Home in San Francisco.

HISTORY SPEAKERS: James McCollum, Pacific Gas and Electric Company executive of San Francisco, and C.O.P. alumnus John Cobb, now a nuclear reactor designer for the American Standard Radiator Company, spoke on the past and future history of power for California at the 1957 annual Institute of the California History Foundation in March. Mr. McCollum is also serving as Chairman of the Northern California Citizens Committee for Higher Education.

WE LIKE LETTERS . . .

From Heidelberg

Patrick Henry School
APO 403, New York, N.Y.

"Just finished glancing through the Alumni Bulletin once again and thoroughly enjoyed hearing of the 'goings-on' of former Pacificites. Amazed at the number of graduates now overseas with the Army or Air Force Dependent School. It's a wonderful never-to-be-forgotten experience.

"It's a small world when you cross the big ocean and the first week see a familiar face from home. Being located in Heidelberg, Germany, is not so strange (as I taught at the Patrick Henry School here in '55-56), but meeting Bob McMahon, class of '51 and former resident of North Hall came as quite a surprise. Bob is a sixth grade teacher at Heidelberg American Elementary School and on December 21 took as his bride Miss Elsie Carol Gustafson from Toledo, Ohio.

"Turn about is fair play,—since we were attendants at their wedding, Bob and Carol then were members of our wedding party when on March 29 I became Mrs. Everett Joel Arthur. Art, who is from Indiana, is a math instructor at the Heidelberg American High School. We too, will stay in Europe another two years and see as much as we can of this fabulous country.

"Looking forward to the next Bulletin and more news."
