Special Tribute...

Mrs. Leslie V. Richardson

The Pacific Women Associates paid special tribute this month to a woman who has been an active part of Pacific's history for the past forty-seven years.

Mrs. Leslie V. Richardson began her service to the institution in 1915 as secretary to the president; in 1924 she helped the college to make the transition from the San Jose campus to its new location in Stockton; and since 1942 she has served on Pacific's Board of Regents.

An invitational luncheon honoring the former Grace Carter was held March 27 at Grace A. Covell hall on the Pacific campus, sponsored by the Women Associates.

Before her marriage to the Stockton orchardist and farmer in 1942, Miss Carter was secretary first to Dr. John L. Seaton and later to Dr. Tully C. Knoles, both presidents of the college, then located in San Jose. In 1918 she served on the War Trade Board in Washington.

Since her retirement from the college staff in 1942 Mrs. Richardson has continued her service to Pacific as a member of the Board of Regents.

Pacific Associates Hold Annual Meeting

The spotlight was on the new concept of cluster colleges before an audience of more than 350 persons at the annual spring meeting of the Pacific Associates March 23.

A portrait of Elbert Covell, benefactor of the new Spanish-language Elbert Covell College and second of a cluster of new liberal arts colleges now under construction at the University of the Pacific, was unveiled in special ceremonies by President Robert Burns.

And Dr. Warren B. Martin, Provost of Raymond College, outlined the program for the first of the cluster designed to teach young people to think critically, independently and creatively.

The Covell oil, painted by the San Francisco artist Arthur W. Palmer, will hang in the new college, scheduled to open in the fall of 1963.

Associates President Nathan White introduced the musical program presented by Pacific students. Fingers tapped the tables to the rhythm of the Dixieland band of Phi Delta Chi, local pharmacy fraternity. The six-member "Phi Delta Chi Tranquilizers," in existence only four months but already a popular performing group is made up of drummer Ralph Saroyan of Sanger, San Joaquin's Bill Soares on tuba, pianist Dave Fraser of Sacramento, Rich Babin of San Francisco on banjo, Stockton's Dex Vollbrecht on trombone, and Mike Harmon of Lodi on trumpet.

Tenor Rico Serbo, a junior in chemistry at Pacific, and his accompanist, pianist Lynn Crigler, presented two outstanding numbers before the group. The two Stockton boys are well-known performers in the area.

Special introductions of the deans of the schools at the university were made by Dr. Burns.

*Bishop

Lectureship Established For Covell College

As a memorial to the late Bishop George Amos Miller, known for his early ministry in California and as a great missionary bishop of Central and South America, a Bishop Miller Lectureship on Spanish will be established for Covell College.

First announcement of the intended program came from Dr. Burns at the annual spring meeting of the Pacific Associates on the university campus this month. Financing the lectureship, which will have Inter-Continental emphasis, are Bishop Miller's daughter, Dr. Evelyn Miller Berger and her husband, Pacific Regent J. A. Berger of Oakland.

The Methodist minister was elected Bishop at the General Conference in Springfield, Mass., in 1924, and was assigned to the Buenos Aires area in 1928, and to the Santiago area in 1932. Following his retirement at the General Conference in Columbus, Ohio, in 1936 he became supply pastor for the First Methodist Church in Oakland, and finally was pastor in Lafayette, California. Bishop Miller passed away last fall.

Forensic Squad Creates Quality Image

It is difficult to "talk down" any accomplished debater—but it is near to impossible to compete in a contest with a member of Pacific's 1962 forensic squad and survive as a winner.

Early this month, for the fourth consecutive year, the University speech squad became grand sweepstakes champions of the 32nd annual Linfield Tournament of Champions in McMinnville, Oregon. The 26-member squad, competing with more than 700 other students representing colleges and universities throughout the West, placed more finalists in all competition than the other institutions combined.

Winners in another area are John Beyer, Campbell, and Ted Olson, Mountain View, who will appear March 31 for the second time as Pacific's competing team on the National Broadcasting Corporation television series, "Championship Debate." Chosen from more than 500 schools in the nation which have active forensic programs, Pacific was one of the top 16 teams chosen to participate in the American Forensic Association-sponsored program.

As winners of the March 3 competition with the University of Hawaii, the two senior students, now one of the top eight college teams in the nation, will meet the debate team from University of Southern California to debate the topic "Resolved: Athletes Should Be Subsidized."

Pacific's Championship Debate team, Ted Olson, middle, and John Beyer, right, go over some of the points to be stressed during their second television network appearance March 31. Paul Winters, director of forensics, will accompany the students to New York for their nationally televised competition with the University of Southern California.

During the eighth annual Tyro Speech Tournament on the Stockton Junior College campus, nine top awards went to the speakers from Pacific, competing with over 200 speakers entered from colleges in California, Utah, Nevada, Washington and Hawaii.

Considered one of the most up-and-coming members on the squad is Raoul Kennedy of Stockton. He was a winner in all events he entered at the Tyro Tournament, and last week, competing in the Northern California Forensic Association Spring Experimental Tournament at the College of San Mateo, he took top honors in policy speaking and discussion.

GIRLS WIN MEN'S DEBATE

Breaking a precedent at the Linfield Tournament, the oldest continuous forensic event in the nation, a women's team, Pacific's Jinny Kahle, a Pacific Grove junior, and Brenda Robinson, a senior from Ceres, entered and won the senior men's Oxford debate. Miss Kahle won three first-place honors. Other firsts came to the coed in one-man debate competition and in senior women's oratory competition.

All three awards in senior men's extemporaneous competition at the Oregon tournament were won by the Pacific squad, Roger Randall of Yuba City, George Orndoff of Fresno and Gerald Chong of Honolulu, placing in that order.

Kit Cornett of Santa Monica, who took five first places, placed first in junior men's interview competition. Cornett was one of two, out of several hundred entrants, who achieved straight firsts in all his competitions. The group brought home 19 trophies, representing first and second-place wins, from its Oregon sojourn.

TV PREPARATION STRENUOUS

After spending a minimum of a hundred hours a week preparing for the coming television bout, the young debaters, Olson and Beyer, and Pacific's forensic director Paul Winters, will leave by plane March 29 for New York, and the NBC studios.

Beyer, a senior student in philosophy and history, plans to do graduate work in the field of international relations to prepare for college teaching or government service. A member of Pi Kappa Delta, national speech honorary, he has been winner of 16 first and second places in debate during the last two and a half years.

Olson, a speech major, is looking toward a career in law or government. During his four years on the speech team as speaker and business manager, he attended approximately 25 tournaments in eight states, winning over 20 first or second-place awards. Olson was winner of the highest rating in discussion at Pi Kappa Delta national convention and tournament.

DR. WARREN B. MARTIN, PROVOST OF RAYMOND COLLEGE, HAS ANNOUNCED THE APPOINTMENTS OF THREE PROMINENT EDUCATORS TO BE INSTRUMENTAL IN THE RAYMOND COLLEGE PROGRAM OF THE UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC.

Named for Raymond College Program

DR. PECKHAM

DR. EDMUND T. PECKHAM, Associate Professor of History at Pacific since joining the faculty in 1958, will be Dean of Student Life and Associate Professor of Social Sciences for the Raymond College Program. The Harvard graduate will be involved in the admission of students and in counseling student activities and organizations as well as some teaching of the Social Science sequence. Dr. Peckham received his baccalaureate degree from Brown University in Rhode Island, where he became a member of Phi Beta Kappa. From the years 1952 to 1958, the widely-traveled scholar was on the faculty at Rice Institute in Houston, and has written numerous published articles in the field of United States foreign relations.

ALL ADMINISTRATORS HAVE TEACHING RESPONSIBILITIES

DR. WAGNER

DR. WALTER C. WAGNER will leave the faculty of the University of Kansas City to become Associate Professor of Social Sciences for the Raymond College Program. Listed in both "Who's Who in the Midwest" and "American Men of Science," the noted educator helped institute and conduct a doctoral program in general education, and conducted a social science seminar for candidates in the doctoral program while at the University of Kansas City. He had previously taught at the University of Arkansas, University of Texas where he received his Ph.D. degree, and Drake University. He did other studies at the University of North Carolina, Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration and the University of Arkansas. In 1960 Dr. Wagner was guest lecturer for the "Men and Ideas" lecture series sponsored by Anderson "Y".

ALL PROFESSORS HAVE ADMINISTRATIVE DUTIES

DR. HIPPLE

WALTER J. HIPPLE, JR., who is currently on a Guggenheim Fellowship to the University of Cambridge, England, will be Professor of Humanities for the Raymond College Program. A native of Chicago, Dr. Hipple received both his Master's degree and his Ph.D. degree at the University of Chicago, and did work on art history at Courtauld Institute at the University of London. He has served on the faculties of several universities, including Roosevelt University and the University of Chicago, as well as the University of Arkansas, University of Florida and Cornell College. His published works include his book, Beautiful, Sublime and Picturesque in Eighteenth-Century British Aesthetic Theory, and articles in the Journal of Aesthetics, Philosophical Quarterly and Art Bulletin.

THE HON. DONALD M. FLEMING

THE HON. ORVILLE L. FREEMAN

AGRIBUSINESS

Nationally-known figures in the fields of agriculture, business, industry and science will be on the staff to conduct the third annual Business Conference, April 12 through 14 on the University campus.

Pacific's Department of Business Administration and the Pacific Associates, sponsors of the three-day parley, have engaged top officials from both the Canadian and the United States governments to participate in discussions on this year's conference theme, "The 1960s: New and Continuing Challenge to the Agribusinessman."

The Honorable Donald M. Fleming, Minister of Finance, Ottawa, Canada, (the ranking member of the Canadian Parliament) and the Honorable Orville L. Freeman, United States Secretary of Agriculture, will lend international flavor to a program designed for management people in the field of agribusiness. The Canadian official's topic will deal with the "Effect of the European Common Market on North American Agribusiness."

Another famous headliner scheduled to address the distinguished representatives of California agriculture and business is Dr. Edward Teller, noted nuclear physicist, who is expected to discuss the peaceful application of atomic radiation in the field of agriculture.

Although emphasis at the conference will be on matters related to the business of agriculture and affiliated industries, topics of concern to business men in general will also be covered, according to Dr. Arthur Beckwith, chairman of the University's Department of Business Administration.

Another name on the headliner list of guest speakers is Dr. Raymond Miller, Linden area farmer and visiting lecturer at the Harvard Graduate School of Business. His subject will be "Most of the World's Problems are Rural." Dr. Miller is president of Public Relations Research Associates Inc., Washington, D. C., and a formidable name in agriculture on a national and international basis.

"A way-out Look at U. S. and California Agribusiness—2000 A.D." will be the topic for the final luncheon presented by James Mussatti, assistant to the president and former general manager of the California State Chamber of Commerce.

Other top speakers will come from the fields of transportation—railroads, shipping, trucking, and the airlines—banking, city government, farm cooperatives, farming, and foreign relations.

General Mills' Betty Crocker, actually Mrs. Helen Hallbert, will bring a woman's touch to the conference as she relates the responsibilities she and her staff carry in interpreting consumer wants as well as in developing services for homemakers on existing products.

Distinguished representatives of their fields will hold a panel discussion the morning of April 13. Par

DR. EDWARD TELLER

THIRD ANNUAL BUSINESS CONFERENCE

Participants will be Allen F. Mather, general counsel, Sunkist Growers in Los Angeles; Earl Coke, vice-president of Bank of America; Arthur L. Selland, mayor of the city of Fresno; and the Honorable Robert Monagan, assemblyman, twelfth district of California.

On hand to put Modern Transportation in Focus will be prominent businessmen in that field including E. E. Ferrari, director of the Port of Stockton; Claire M. Roddewig, president of the Association of Western Railroads, Chicago, Illinois; Walter Dennison, executive vice-president of Merrifield Trucking Company; and John E. Stephen, general counsel of the Air Transport Association of America, Washington, D. C.

Included in the Saturday morning program will be remarks from W. F. Allewelt, manager of Turlock Cooperative Growers; J. E. Countryman, vice-president—production, California Packing Corporation; and O. W. Fillerup, executive vice-president of the Council of California Growers.

Upon hearing of the university's planned Agribusiness Conference, Professor Henry Arthur, Moffett professor of Agriculture and Business at Harvard Business School, asked the conference sponsors if he might come from Boston to take an active part in the program. Professor Arthur will be moderator for the Saturday morning panel.

AWARDS BANQUET MAY 5

Famous name guests will be on campus for the Pacific Alumni Conference May 5, and to take part in naming the "Outstanding Alumnus of the Year."

Former vice-president Richard Nixon and Pacific's Dr. Robert Burns will meet with two other nationally-known dignitaries to hold a panel discussion, a preliminary feature to the naming of the honored guest.

The keynote session at one o'clock with Dr. Burns will be followed by a faculty panel discussion of some of the newer phases of academic life.

Henderson McGee, president of the Alumni Association, will preside over the day's activities and install the new Association president in ceremonies during the annual banquet. Six new board members will be installed during the evening. Fred Busher, Jr. is general chairman for the conference.

Awards for the outstanding academic boy and girl student in each class will be presented that evening, according to Jerry Kirsten, awards dinner chairman.

KNOW YOUR CANDIDATES

To help Pacific alumni to know their candidates who are running for the Association's board of directors, the Pacific Review will run brief biographical sketches of each. In the March issue we are presenting the first three candidates.

CORNELIUS (BUD) MICHAEL SULLIVAN, JR. is deputy county counsel of the County of San Joaquin. While attending Pacific from 1951 to 1955, the Lodian was vice-president of the Freshman class and vice-president of the student body. Attending college on a four-year debate scholarship, Bud won the Western States debate title in 1954, was awarded the Warner trophy for outstanding senior debater in 1955 and recognition in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." The Sullivans are parents of four-year-old Michael and Stacey Lynn, age 20 months.

BOYD THOMPSON, executive secretary of the San Joaquin Medical Society since April 1952, is a past director of the Stockton Chamber of Commerce and a past president of the Family Service Agency of Stockton. Prior to 1952 he was on the faculty of Stockton College and the University of the Pacific for six years. Boyd was trainer for Amos Alonzo Stagg and for the Tiger Varsity team. During his college career he was a Pacific yell leader, captain of the track team, and president of the block "P" society. The Thompsons have two boys, Tay 9, and Scott 2, and a six-year-old daughter, Susan.

WILLIAM L. CUNNINGHAM, born and educated in Santa Rosa, is assistant superintendent of the San Juan Unified School District in Suburban Sacramento. He serves on the board of directors of the San Juan YMCA and is state president, elect, of the California Association of School Personnel Administrators. After earning his Bachelor's degree in English at Pacific, Bill studied for his Master's degree at San Francisco State College, and earned his Ph.D. degree at Columbia University in New York.

For a sore, infected throat, Pacific's Infirmary or Athletic Department might recommend mercuracaine lozenges. Ronald Tom, Sacramento, combines the ingredients which make up the lozenges in the wet granulator. After first adding mercurachrome to a mixture of powdered sugar and powdered elm bark the addition of ethyl alcohol as a wetting agent, licorice flavoring, and an anaesthetic complete the mixture. All traces of alcohol evaporate before reaching the final stages of compression.

The mixture from the wet granulator is run through the granulating machine until the granules become smaller and more uniform in size. Tom and Dr. Barker check the mixture for uniformity in color.

FROM POWDER TO PILLS

Manufacturing

A small-scale industry is in operation in Laboratory 222 in Weber Hall. Four advanced students in the School of Pharmacy, with the assistance of specialized miniature pharmaceutical equipment from West Germany, manufacture many of the medications dispersed daily in the University's Infirmary and Athletic Department.

Only the highest praise is given to the program taught by Dr. Donald Barker, by heads of the departments receiving the myriads of pills, throat lozenges, ointments and capsules.

"How many athletic departments can boast of having their training specialties 'tailor-made' upon request," remarked Mel Moretti, athletic trainer. The class is making ninety-five percent of the department's needs at this time, he added.

Miss Doris Richards, nurse in charge of the Infirmary adds that this new service to her department is a wonderful help, "and there is no doubt about the amount of saving."

The course not only trains the students for research in production and industry, and in hospital pharmacy but provides useful and necessary preparations at considerable savings—and convenience—to these other departments.

There is considerably more to the course than the actual production of medicinal preparations. The three

The tablet-making machine, with mechanism similar to a die and punch, snaps out sixty-seven tablets a minute. Rodney Rogers, Sacramento, adds the granules through the shoe to be compressed into tablet form.

Pharmacy

young men, Doctor of Pharmacy candidates (registered pharmacists in sixth-year study), and a senior coed must first learn through lectures the proper procedures for manufacturing, the uses of various machineries, and finally the actual methods of operation.

Laboratory sessions teach industrial manufacturing procedures on a small scale—in the area of tablet production, Laboratory 222 puts out 2500 to 10,000 at a time, compared with the two to five million mark produced in industry.

The amiable Dr. Barker, chairman of the Department of the School of Pharmacy, joined Pacific's faculty in 1957. After completing his undergraduate work at the University of Manitoba in Canada, he earned his Master's and Ph.D. degrees at Purdue University. Courses in dispensing and cosmeticology also are specialties of the pharmacist.

Research activities are an important by-product of Dr. Barker's courses and this phase of the educational program is progressing rapidly.

The optional six-year program for the Doctor of Pharmacy degree was initiated in the Pharmacy School in 1959. In June of 1961 the first three of such graduates were awarded degrees.

Five different layers go on the bright coated pills so often taken for granted. The initial sealing coat is topped with an elastic coating which allows for the pill's expansion. This coating prevents the breakage of the outer coats during expansion. Next additions are the sugar coat, the color coat, and finally the polishing coat. Carole Lindquist, Stockton, holds the cool air dryer on the pills in the coating machine to promote slow drying and to distribute the coating evenly.

Bob Gibson, Palo Alto, mills sulphathiozole cream on the ointment mill which works on the same principle as a washing machine.

When tablets are produced initially, they are weighed on a Troemner, or prescription balance, as shown by Rogers, to insure accurate measure. Often large numbers of tablets are weighed as a means of counting.

Around the World

with Pacific Tours

EUROPE IN THE SUMMER

The fabled sights of Europe are offered on the Europe 1962 tour with Dr. J. Marc Jantzen, Dean of the School of Education, and Dr. Rollin C. Fox, Chairman of the Department of Educational Administration. An inexpensive opportunity to explore European educational programs is offered in this unique program of seminars held in London, Oslo, Copenhagen, Munich, Vienna, Rome and Paris, combined with excursions to the Salzburg Music Festival, Folies Bergere, Vienna Woods, Monte Carlo Casino and other attractions. The first tour will originate on June 21 and conclude August 15. An identical tour will be conducted a week later.

OFF THE BEATEN PATHS OF JAPAN

For travelers who are looking for an opportunity to become a part of the "real" Japan, a tour with Dr. Harold S. Jacoby, an experienced foreign traveler, Off The Beaten Paths of Japan will introduce over-night stays in "medium grade" Japanese inns, visits in private homes and experiences in the Japanese way of living. A group of not more than twenty persons will begin the tour June 18 aboard the flagship of the OSK line, and will become acquainted with the cultures, practices and history of the country during shipboard classes. On arrival in Japan visits in Tokyo, Shimizu, Yamaguchi and Hiroshima are only a part of the itinerary. The party will return home from Tokyo August 3 aboard the Jet Courier of the Japan Air Lines.

THIRTY-SIX DAYS IN SOUTH AMERICA

Geography and current political and social trends will be emphasized throughout the tour of South America 1962 with Dr. Edmund T. Peckham, specialist in the fields of Latin America and Foreign Relations. Departure from Miami, June 25, for Colombia will begin a thirty-six-day tour of historic universities, art galleries and opera houses as well as exploration of general cultural values. To give tour members an opportunity to look into rather than at the tour experiences, morning seminars will be held in Lima, Santiago, Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro. U. S. Embassy visits will be made wherever possible before the conclusion of the tour on July 31 when the group will leave Panama City by jet airline for home.

TREASURES OF EUROPE

If you like music, art, theater, photography or people, an opportunity to discover the Treasures of Europe is offered with Virginia Short, leading her fifth cultural tour to Europe. The tour group will depart June 25 from New York to spend thirty-eight festival days and nights abroad, visiting such cities as Amsterdam, Paris, Rome, Capri, Venice and many others. Tickets for Europe's great music events have been reserved months in advance, art of the Masters will become a first-hand thrill, and carefree touring with other congenial adults will all lend to a perfect vacation. On August 1 the tour comes to an end with the plane's departure from Frankfurt Airport to New York.

THE MISSIONS TOUR AT HOME

The stories of the Missions, reflecting the atmosphere and spirit of their age, will be told by the padres, curates and Mr. Glenn W. Price, director of the Westerners Foundation, during the fifteenth annual Missions Tour. During the eight-day tour, a friendly group, interested in California lore, will stop at the sites of all the famed Franciscan Missions, from Sonoma to

San Diego. The party, limited to thirty-six, will leave Pacific's Morris Chapel April 14 to enjoy during the following eight days such fascinating entertainment as an early California play by the internationally famed Mexican Players, and a tour of the Santa Clara Mission conducted by one of the Jesuit professors. Across the desert to the San Joaquin Valley marks the final day.

EUGENE ROOT

TIGER CLUB

During recent months your Alumni Fund Council and its various committees have been discussing plans and a program for the future. An analysis of the last five years shows a steady increase in both participation and dollar support to the university from alumni. Last year's excellent report of the "Committee of 100" has led us to another step forward, and we earnestly invite you to participate.

We have persuaded Eugene Root '32 to "volunteer" as the organizing president of the new alumni club to be known as the TIGER CLUB. This club will be composed of alumni who contribute a minimum of one hundred dollars annually to Pacific. The contribution may be to any of the activities of the university such as the Alumni Fund, Building Program, Quarterback Club or others.

In behalf of the Fund Council and the organizing president of the Tiger Club, I want to thank you in advance for your support.

PACIFIC ALUMNI ASSOCIATION TIGER CLUB

I am happy to join with other Pacific Alumni as a member of the Tiger Club, whereby I will contribute a minimum of $100 annually to the University, as long as it is possible and practical to do so. I wish to make my contribution in the following manner:

1. $..... cash.....

ANNUAL ALUMNI APPEAL

Stockton's personal solicitation drive, a part of the Annual Alumni Appeal, will be underway April 1 through 15 with Tom George as coordinator. Approximately twenty percent of Pacific's alumni who live in the Stockton area will be contacted personally by fellow alumni.

General chairmen are Norman Harris for classes

1950-1955, Mrs. Erma Reese, 1924-1939, Cornelius "Bud" Sullivan, 1956-1960, and Jack Hyman, 1940-1949.

Class agents are sending letters, as has been done in the past three years, as a part of a ninety-day direct-mail solicitation, in attempt to raise funds for the current operating budget of the university.

PACIFIC ART CENTER EXHIBITS MARGARET WOOLLEY PAINTINGS

An exhibit of thirty-three watercolor and casein paintings has opened in the Pacific Art Center's Little Gallery and will be on view until April 7. Executed by Margaret Woolley, the paintings range from representational scenes of subjects in foreign lands to non-objective compositions with emphasis placed on the dynamics of color and motion.

A well-known northern California painter, Mrs. Woolley has studied at the University of California, the California College of Arts and Crafts and the Hans Hoffman School in New York. She has also studied with Abraham Rattner in New York, Etien Rett of France and California's Richard Yip.

Mrs. Woolley has painted in Japan and Europe, and has exhibited her paintings in Cannes, France; Tokyo, Japan; Woodstock and Garden City in New York; St. Paul, Minnesota; the California State Fair, the Kingsley Club Art Show and the Northern California Artists' Annuals, all in Sacramento, as well as in the AAUW exhibition in Auburn, Stockton's Haggin Art Gallery, the San Francisco Museum of Art and the Oakland Art Museum.

During the 1961-1962 season the artist has won awards for her paintings at the Stockton Art League, the Modesto Art League, the Mother Lode Art Association in Sonora, the Stockton Festival of Art, the Delta Art Show in Antioch, the State Exhibition of the American League of Penwomen, and the Modesto Winter Show.

GRANT AWARDED FOR SPANISH LANGUAGE BOOKS

A grant of $500 has been awarded to the Irving Martin Library to begin a basic collection of books in the Spanish language. The gift was presented by the Association of College and Research Libraries, a division of the American Library Association.

The grant made to the university's library was one of 78 selected from among 348 applications. The Spanish language collection will support the program of instruction in the Spanish-language Covell College.

The Spanish collection eventually will include materials on historical documents, laws, business methods, local geographies and histories, belle lettres and magazines, including the serial publications of universities and societies.

The library has previously purchased items in English in the field of Latin-American studies. This project is part of the university's aim to improve communication and understanding within this hemisphere, said Arthur W. Swann, librarian.

WEYERHAUSER RECOGNIZES PACIFIC

The University of the Pacific is one of seven member colleges of the Independent Colleges of Northern California, Inc., to receive a donation for general educational purposes from the Weyerhaeuser Foundation 1962 program.

An overall grant of $4,300 will be distributed to the non-tax supported independent colleges. The other institutions named are Saint Mary's College, College of Holy Names, College of Notre Dame in Belmont, University of Santa Clara, Dominican College of San Rafael and San Francisco College for Women.

VISITING AUTHOR GIVES FIRST EDITIONS TO LIBRARY

Two valuable "first editions" from the collection of Mrs. Julia Cooley Altrocchi, noted author who has been mentioned for the position of poet laureate of California, have been given to the Irving Martin library at Pacific, according to the director, Arthur W. Swann.

"Notes of a Military Reconnaissance, from Fort Leavenworth, In Missouri, to San Diego, In California, including parts of the Arkansas, Del Norte, and Gila Rivers" was published in 1848 and is marked by a bookplate of Nicola Altrocchi, an 1873 graduate of Harvard, and uncle to Mrs. Altrocchi's late husband.

The text and a map showing the trail from Fort Leavenworth to Santa Fe, and from there to San Diego, were first published as a congressional document. The text was reprinted as an executive document, and finally commercially published by H. Long and Brother in New York.

Brigadier General Stephen W. Kearney, leader of the journey in 1847, later became commanding officer of the American forces in California at the time of California's separation from Mexico.

"Deceptive Cognates" by Rudolph Altrocchi, late husband to the authoress, is a study in Italian grammar, published by the University of Chicago Press in 1935. The author was professor of Italian at the University of California in Berkeley from 1928 to 1950.

Mrs. Altrocchi, a graduate of Vassar, world traveler, and well-known lecturer, was honored at a luncheon on the university campus during her visit.

PHARMACY FUND GETS BOOST

The Peninsula Women's Auxiliary to the California Pharmaceutical Association in San Mateo has forwarded its 1962 contribution of $2000 to the University of the Pacific School of Pharmacy Student Loan Fund.

During the past five years the organization has contributed $2800 for the Loan Fund and $198 toward a gift for the Pharmacy Library.

Anderson "Y" -

The Oldest College "Y" in the Pacific West

Anderson "Y"—the center of the campus, and the center of student activity—has increasingly become an important part of campus life. The college YMCA-YWCA touches the students in many ways—Freshman Camp, International Films, The Man and the Arts and Men and Ideas are only a few of the programs designed to meet the social, spiritual and intellectual needs of the campus community.

The roots of the "Y" at Pacific go back to 1879 when a YMCA group was formed on the San Jose campus. Subsequently a YWCA group was formed, and in 1934, the two organizations were brought into a unified Student Christian Association, which, in essence, it remains today.

Anderson "Y" Center is a student movement; students conceive, develop and organize the programs and projects. As a service program, it has benefited those serving and those being served alike.

Students and faculty members from every college of the University participate in the "Y" activities, and as a campus gathering place, they meet with old friends and find new friends to gain a profound insight into the meaning of a university community.

Besides being an operations center for the "Y" program, meeting facilities and use of office equipment are provided free to student organizations at the Anderson "Y" Center. The Lounge is a good place to meet friends over a cup of coffee, keep up on a variety of magazines, newspapers and books, or just relax.

Every Friday night the "Y" operates a Kauphy House where there may be held any variety of activities, from intellectual discussions to dancing and folk singing. A program of foreign movies is shown as part of the International Film Festival each school year.

MEN AND IDEAS PROGRAM

The Men and Ideas Program, made possible by a grant from the Elizabeth Carse Foundation, provides the campus with men of intellectual integrity, recognized as outstanding leaders in their fields. Appearing on campus this month as the 1962 guest speaker was Dr. Bernard M. Loomer, professor of Philosophy of Religion at the University of Chicago. Last year's Men and Ideas speaker was Dr. Walter C. Wagner, professor of Economics and Social Sciences at the University of Kansas City, whose appointment to the Raymond College faculty has just been announced.

This month twenty faculty members and forty students spent an informal weekend in the Sierra's to hold discussions on subjects vital to the time.

Taking part in "A Student-Faculty Conversation," theme of the student-faculty retreat, were representatives from a large number of the departments, the administration and student representatives. Topics included in the group discussions were responsibilities of the educated, values in the university, personal aims in education and Pacific's prospects and problems.

MENTALLY HANDICAPPED CHILDREN AIDED

A recreation program for mentally handicapped children is a new project recently undertaken by the Community Affairs Commission of the "Y". Those taking part in the program attend monthly seminar meetings, and through these experiences learn some of the important principles and ideas of psychology and group work as well as the relationship between recreation and therapy.

BIG BROTHERS FIGHT DELINQUENCY

The Big Brother project of the "Y" aims to assist a selected group of Stockton boys to become more useful citizens. University men who are willing to work with individual boys over a period of two or three years are left free to develop their own relationships with the boys. After becoming a part of the boys' lives, taking an interest in their school activities, going to movies and ballgames, the Big Brothers meet monthly with university faculty advisors and school counselors for general discussion and a chance to find ways to meet problems which might arise.

The "Y" does not seek to take the place of groups organized around denominational concerns. It seeks rather to be an arena and an opportunity for persons of all religious backgrounds—and for those with no particular background—to meet, work and search together in relation to tasks and issues that effect the student community.

The University "Y" building is at the campus crossroads—and includes facilities suitable for a variety of programs and projects. The social hall, with seating capacity of over 200, includes a kitchen, piano and games. A workroom, with such equipment as a typewriter, mimeograph machine, drawing board and telephone, is as accessible to the university community as are the lounge and meeting rooms. A special hi-fi system serves the entire building.
