THE return to a more intimate presentation of "The Messiah" by Dr. J. Russell Bodley and the University of the Pacific Chorus and Orchestra closely resembled the original performance of the oratorio in Dublin before the middle of the Eighteenth Century.

PACIFIC OPERA THEATRE

'THE TALES OF HOFFMANN' PERFORMANCES JAN. 11-12

Jacques Offenbach's The Tales of Hoffmann, the last and greatest work of the German composer, will be presented by the University of the Pacific Opera Theatre January 11 and 12 under the direction of Dr. Lucas Underwood.

The fantastic opera in three acts with Epilogue and Prologue, often omitted, was last performed in California in 1949. A 17-member cast will portray the 22 characters of the opera, a practice which has been followed since its first production in 1881.

Bruce Browne of Walnut Creek will play the title role of Hoffmann. Four separate parts, Lindorf, Coppélius, Dapertutto and Doctor Miracle, will be carried by Stockton's Robert Harris. Soprano Linda Agee of Castro Valley is cast in the role of Olympia.

Double casting has been made for three characters. Kathe Decker of Urbana, Ill., and Evelyn Westinghouse, Victoria, B. C., are cast for the role of Nicklaus; Judith Monson, Los Altos, and Nancy Brown, Merced, for the role of Antonia; and Genola Murray, Seattle, and Libby George, Stockton, for the role of Giulietta.

Others in the cast are Karen Beatie of Rough and Ready as Stella; Michael Kizer, Stockton, as both Schlemil and Andreas; Rico Serbo, Stockton, as both Cochenille and Franz; Thomas Tallerico, Albany, as both Pitichinaccio and Nathanael; Alice Thomson, Stockton, as the Voice, Henry Welton, Stockton, as Spalanzani; Joe Murphy, Stockton, as both Crespel and Hermann; and Charles Spears, Modesto, as Luther.

A 12-member men's chorus and a women's chorus of 16 voices, complemented by a 40-piece orchestra, will be important contributors to the opera production. Stage settings are being constructed by the University of the Pacific class. Ronald Ranson, Whittier, is light manager.

Since coming to Pacific in 1946, Dr. Underwood has directed 25 different operas, including Beethoven's Fidelio, Verdi's Il Trovatore and A Masked Ball, and Mozart's The Marriage of Figaro. Last June, as musical director of the Sacramento Civic Opera, Dr. Underwood performed The Magic Flute by Mozart.

Lay Leaders Perform Consecration Service

Nearly 300 persons witnessed an action unusual in American education November 25 when lay leaders of the eight districts of the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church participated in the consecration of Raymond College.

Bishop Donald H. Tippet, an honorary life member of Methodist Men, a national organization of laymen, participated as a layman with the Conference Board of Lay Activities in the consecration service. The honorary membership was bestowed to a bishop for the first time when the membership was granted Bishop Tippet at the California-Nevada Conference last year on Pacific's campus.

WORSHIP CENTER FURNISHED

Furnishings for the Raymond College worship center have been provided by the eight Conference Districts, including Bay View, Central, Fresno, Golden Gate, Redwood Empire, Sacramento-Nevada, San Jose and Shasta districts. Funds from individuals and Methodist Mens Clubs have provided an altar, cross, candle holders, hymnals, Christian and United States flags and other necessary articles for the new chapel.

PROVOST ARTICLE PUBLISHED

DR. W. B. MARTIN

An article entitled Janio Quadros and His Conscience by Dr. Warren B. Martin, provost of Raymond College, has been published in the October issue of Ethics magazine. The international journal of social, political, and legal philosophy is published quarterly by the University of Chicago Press.

Dr. Martin has contributed to several periodicals including The Christian Century, Pulpit Magazine, Christian Advocate, Motive, Worldview, Campus Encounter and the North Carolina Historical Review. His book on Christianity and politics is in process for Thomas Crowell Publishers.

NEAL O'DOAN WINS JUILLIARD HONORS

One of the Conservatory's bright young products, Pianist Neal O'Doan '61, will be the featured soloist with the Juilliard Graduate School of Music orchestra in concert December 21, with Jean Morel conducting.

Young O'Doan's appearance as soloist is an honor accorded to the winner of the all-school contest held this month which was open to all qualified pianists enrolled at Juilliard. Of the 10 musicians originally entered in the competition, three were selected as finalists. In their performances of Brahms B Flat Concerto, O'Doan proved superior in all areas.

Honors have come frequently to the talented Nevada boy. While still studying for his bachelor's degree at Pacific after transferring from the University of Nevada as a freshman, he received the Phi Mu Alpha Award for outstanding senior man in the Conservatory and membership in both Phi Kappa Lambda and Phi Kappa Phi. Twice soloist with the Stockton Symphony Orchestra, the ambitious artist went on to win first place in the Fresno Philharmonic Young Artists Competition and to solo with both the Fresno and Modesto Symphony orchestras.

Both O'Doan and his wife, Nancy (Thoyre) '61, were active during their Pacific years as soloists and a two-piano team. The young couple studied with Edward Shadboldt as piano majors at the Conservatory.

The gifted student of Rosina Levine and Martin Kanin, and a composer in his own right, has received two coveted prizes, the Maurice Loeb Prize and the Richard Rodgers Prize, both for outstanding excellence in scholarship and performance.

Mrs. O'Doan, who won the Mu Phi Alpha Award for outstanding senior woman at the Conservatory, is now supervisor of music for three elementary schools in Montvale, New Jersey. Neal is teaching music privately. The ambitious O'Doans make their home at 840 S. Middletown Road, Pearl River, N. Y.

6th Annual

Highway Conference Set for March 5, 6, 7

The Sixth Annual Highway Conference, sponsored by the Department of Civil Engineering, will be held March 5, 6, and 7, according to Engineering Dean Henderson E. McGee.

A broad cross section of engineers and specialists in the public works field comprise the Conference Advisory Committee which has planned for outstanding speakers during the three full-day sessions. Professor Gordon L. Harrison, chairman of the Department of Civil Engineering, is conference coordinator.

A wide acceptance of previous highway conferences has been gained from those interested in, and concerned with, the development of highways, roads, streets, and appurtenant public works facilities.

Contractors, city and county public works officials, state highway engineers, distributors of construction equipment, and suppliers of construction materials have found the conference to be of timely interest, said Dean McGee.

Provisional conference reservations are available by writing to Dean H. E. McGee, School of Engineering, University of the Pacific. Program details and reservation forms will be available for distribution before February 1, 1963.

Pharmacists Meet on Campus

FOCUS ON PACIFIC

The School of Dentistry

by DR. JOHN TOCCHINI, Dean

Founded in the year 1896 in San Francisco under the provisions of the Civil Code of the State of California as an educational institution comprising Departments of Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy, the original quarters were on Howard Street near Fourth. In 1899 the trustees erected the College Building near the geographical center of San Francisco on Fourteenth Street between Mission and Valencia. The structure and its equipment were entirely destroyed by the San Francisco Fire of April 18, 19, and 20, 1906. The building was sufficiently rebuilt in time to use it for the opening day, September 17, 1906.

The growth of the College of Physicians and Surgeons during the 60 odd years of its existence has been steady; the first class in dentistry was graduated in 1897 and a class has been graduated each year since that date. The 67 classes that have been graduated number 2,629 alumni of the dental school.

In 1918 the Departments of Medicine and Pharmacy were discontinued and the College since has been devoted entirely to teaching the course leading to the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery and the offering of postgraduate and refresher courses to dentists. The College continues under its corporate title in deference to alumni preference.

On September 1, 1923 the College became public trust based upon most liberal ideas and altruistic principles. The control of the College was vested in a Board of Trustees which expended the income from all sources (except for gifts providing otherwise) for instruction, new facilities, and research for the benefit of the student body, alumni and the dental profession.

P AND S JOINS PACIFIC

The Board of Trustees that took over in 1923, desiring to preserve the individuality of the College, continued to devote their efforts, time and energy until July 2, 1962 when they turned over the assets of the school to the University of the Pacific. Realizing the importance of university affiliation for the School of Dentistry they felt that the logical choice was this University.

This Board of Trustees turned over a school whose rating is among the highest of the United States and has maintained an enviable academic record in regard to its accepting students in the School of Dentistry. It has had the best record in the Aptitude Test Scores, Cancer Examination scores, and in the State Board dental examinations of the various western states over many years.

The Board of Trustees turned over assets totaling more than two and one-half million dollars to the University. P. and S. was the last of the private dental schools in the United States that did not have university affiliation.

ACADEMIC REQUIREMENTS HIGH

The degrees now offered by our school are the D.D.S. degree, Doctor of Dental Surgery, and the Master of Science in Dentistry that we offer in the area of oral surgery. This M.S.D. degree is granted after a student has spent three years in training beyond the regular dental curriculum. The school's policy has been to accept students with a greater degree of academic education than the minimum requirements of the American Dental Association.

The minimum requirements, as set by the American Dental Association, are two years of predental academic education prior to entering dental school. However, our freshman classes in the past have been made up of 75 percent to 80 percent of students having had four years or more of liberal arts education, approximately 15 percent with three years of liberal arts education, and approximately five percent with two years of predental training. This means that the dental degree requires eight years; and advanced degrees, such as the advanced degree in oral surgery, require an additional three years which make a total of 11 years of college training.

Our future looks as bright, if not brighter than the past, and we are in the process of completing a capital fund drive to raise $2,800,000 toward a new building program that will cost $5,400,000.

RESEARCH FACILITIES PLANNED

Just recently we were the recipients of a $515,000 grant from the National Institutes of Health for the construction of research facilities in the new dental building. It is anticipated that by September, 1964, the building will be ready for occupancy for the first class in dentistry. The building is to be constructed on the corner of Sacramento and Webster streets in San Francisco across the street from a future Medical School that may possibly become part of this university.

It will be a five-story building above ground and three stories below ground. The fifth story of the building will be completely devoted to research, and the cost of the construction of this research floor will be $1,030,000. It is our hope to erect a building that will house a maximum of 400 students, 100 per class, and be able to offer the students a high quality education in

DR. GEORGE F. BAKER
PRESIDENT

Dental School Alumni Association Holds 64th Annual Meeting

From the typewriter of Roy Cummings at the College of Physicians and Surgeons come these words of the recent Dental School alumni meeting.

"The ties between the University and its newest alumni group, the graduates of School of Dentistry, College of Physicians and Surgeons, were brought closer together at the 64th annual meeting of the Dental School Alumni Association which was held at the Jack Tar Hotel in San Francisco, November 30 and December 1.

"President Burns attended nearly all of the meetings and was the speaker at the annual luncheon where he made his first official appearance before the Dental Alumni.

"His inspirational talk made the 525 men and women who attended the meeting feel that they now were members of a great university family, and that they were truly sons and daughters of a great alma mater.

"Dr. Burns told the group of the University's plans to accept its members as graduates of Pacific and as bona-fide members of the UOP Alumni Association.

"It was as if the new members were taking a vow of allegiance when they stood to hear the A Cappella Choir sing the University of the Pacific Hymn at the close of the luncheon."

Also attending the meeting were Mrs. Burns, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Winterberg, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Payne.

Dr. George F. Baker '47, Fresno, was installed as president of the Association for the coming year, and Dr. Herbert E. Ward '43, San Francisco, was elected president-elect.

Dear Dr. Burns:

As one of the choir members who had an opportunity to hear you speak this afternoon for the Convention of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, I would like to express to you the intense feelings of pride and interest which I experienced as I listened.

Hearing your talk today on the possibilities of a medical school within the University, as well as again realizing the great things which have been accomplished to the present, made me feel a pride, not only in being a student of the University, but also in being a part of a movement, which as you pointed out, will have far-reaching effects, not only in this country but in others throughout the world. Quite frankly, I have not experienced these feelings until now.

As students, I am afraid, we become so involved in our own small worlds of grades and social life, that we lose sight of the overall importance of being members of an educational institution such as Pacific. While we are worrying about how important it is to make our fraternity or sorority the best, we are forgetting that we are privileged, first, to receive an education, and second, to receive it at the University of the Pacific.

I am writing this because I want you to know that there are students, including many of the choir members who heard you today, who feel as I do; that we are interested in our school, and that we are proud to be a part of the developments in education that you and your staff have made possible for us. I regret only that more students could not have heard you speak.

Sincerely,
Karen L. Beatie

every phase of dental education and dental research. We plan, further in the future, to grant degrees in conjunction with the University of the Pacific, not only in the areas of oral surgery but in the areas of pedodontics, periodontics, prosthetic dentistry, and in the areas of microbiology and biochemistry.

We have had an excellent continuing education program offering short refresher courses to the practitioner, and in the new building we are expanding this facility to a greater degree to allow more education programs to permit the practitioner to return to school at regular intervals to maintain his efficiency in dentistry and to keep up-to-date with the rapidly changing health field of dentistry.

A sketch of the new College of Physicians and Surgeons dental building which will be completed by September, 1964, is the subject under discussion by Dr. John Tocchini, dean of the School of Dentistry, and Dr. Robert E. Burns. The San Francisco dental college affiliated with Pacific in July of this year.

15th Annual Quarterback Club Banquet

Honors Pacific Football Team

The 15th annual Quarterback Club banquet held at the close of the 1962 football season paid tribute to the fighting Tiger team; and approximately 360 persons saw nine players receive awards in the form of sparkling, polished trophies.

Players honored were: halfback Aaron Youngblood, most valuable senior (Douglas Vieira Award); quarterback John Alsup, most loyal player (Sid Robinson Award) and team captain trophy; tackle Don Shackelford, outstanding lineman (Rev. Fred Busher Award) and ironman with most time played (Tully C. Knoles Award).

Fullback Bill Kutzer, most inspirational player (Charles Erb Award); tackle Roy Williams, most consistent player (Quarterback Club Award); halfback Larry Leitch, outstanding defensive player (Harry E. Kane, Sr. Award); end Dick Gordon, most improved player (Joseph Francis Award); guard Bob Scardina, best place-kicker (LeRoy Johnson Award); and halfback Duane Isetti, outstanding Stockton player (Ken Buck Award).

Presented with the game footballs from the Tigers' five victories were quarterback Jack Sparrow, Alsup, Kutzer, Youngblood, and Williams. The Tigers also had five losses.

The Tigers will play major schedules for the next three years, according to Coach John Rohde. The team will lose 16 seniors this year. Other losses will be Captain Alsup, who will attend divinity school, and Isetti, sidelined with a knee injury.

Alsup plans to enter the Presbyterian Seminary at Princeton in September to study for a bachelor's degree in divinity. It will take three years of study plus another year for his master's degree. Alsup was one of few to captain the team as a junior.

Coaches introducing the team members were Don Campora, Chuck Verduzco, Bill Striegel and Bob Vander Wall.

ADDITIONAL HONORS

Don Shackelford and Aaron Youngblood have been named to the 1962 Methodist All-American university and college elevens, announced in the December issue of Together, the Methodist family magazine.

The teams were chosen for the seventh year by Fred Russell, nationally-known sports editor of The Nashville Banner and author of the annual Pigskin Preview in the Saturday Evening Post.

Pacific Is Unique'

Some months ago, Coach John Rohde made an impromptu speech at a football rally which fired an enthusiasm which has yet not been wholly forgotten. He talked about things like school spirit, loyalty, and even courage, and spoke of Pacific as being potentially "the greatest university on the West Coast . . . because it is unique." That night, everyone seemed to agree with him. Later, his words seemed to be regarded as just another incident in a football season.

They weren't. The words, "Pacific is unique" should be engraved over the door of every classroom, office, dormitory, fraternity, and sorority house on this campus. They should be understood, and loved; and now is the most crucial time possible for these words to start meaning something to the Pacific student body and administration.

The philosophy of any privately-owned college is inherently much different from that of any other institution. Pacific is a privately-owned university, but for some time she has stood for something different from even other private colleges, and for that same time she has struggled vainly to define it.

It is many things: this indefinable Spirit of Pacific lived within the man that was Tully Knowles; it grew with the young Stockton campus after the move from San Jose in the 20's; it is there whenever the name of the college is mentioned among those who knew it—and those who don't. It comes with the Christmas Pageant and the first football game, and those who know it best don't talk about it.

It is peculiarly Pacific, and along with this the university has become meaningful and cherished to her graduates.

At present we find ourselves admittedly a little confused as UOP undergoes a tremendous expansion. The changes seem good in themselves, but the ultimate responsibility for their effectiveness rests squarely on the shoulders of the student body, and whether the students really care about Pacific's greatness.

One writer has remarked on the responsibilities of education:

"Keeping a society free—and vital and strong—is no job for the half-educated and slovenly . . . for excellence implies more than competence. It implies a striving for the highest standards in every phase of life . . . The idea for which this nation stands will not survive if the highest goal men can set themselves is an amiable mediocrity."

The apathy of Pacific's students has been attacked before. But isn't it interesting how the term "amiable mediocrity" fits?

Who here wants a challenge?

It is time for the students of Pacific to remember that this is their institution; that it exists for them and for those who will follow them; that it is not only their right but their responsibility to see that the goals, ideals, standards within and without the classroom are in keeping with the very best that it is possible to believe in.

There can be no growth, no improvement, and especially no continuation of the traditions which have made this university unique without application of this responsibility to the everyday life of Pacific. In matters of curriculum, educational standards, and what the whole university stands for, it must be the students who care enough about something other than themselves to make their institution something that gave them more than a four-year degree: something that awakened them to a standard higher than the mediocre, and a life toward the goal of perfection.

An Interested Freshman

Forensic Sweepstakes Grow With Competition Entries

The Pacific forensic squad, racking up several wins in every competition in which it has entered, returned from the giant Western States Speech Association tournament at San Fernando State during the Thanksgiving holidays with 11 trophies and Sweepstakes honors.

Pacific placed 10 finalists and went on to win three first and three third place awards in the largest forensic tournament on the West Coast. Nearly 700 students, representing some 60 colleges in Alaska, Oregon, Montana, Washington, Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Nevada, California, Idaho, Utah, Arizona and Hawaii, competed during the three-day event.

Award winners were Ginny Kahle, Pacific Grove, and Judy Ross, Stockton, the only freshman making the trip, in women's debate; Raoul Kennedy, Stockton, first in oratory; Weldon Moss, Stockton, third in both interpretation and oratory; and Ginny Kerber, San Fernando, third in women's oratory. Miss Kahle also won first in interpretative reading.

The Pacific team had a total of 52 sweepstakes points, compared to the nearest competitor, Loyola, with 32 points.

GINNY KAHLE TOP WOMAN DEBATOR IN NATION

Miss Kahle, who graduated at the close of this semester, has been singled out as probably the top woman debator in the nation after her wins at San Fernando. Earlier in the season the Pacific coed placed first in all three senior events at the Northern California Forensic Association Invitational tournament in Stockton.

During the Christmas holidays, Miss Kahle will marry John Beyer '61, top debator and outstanding senior man at Pacific before his graduation last year.

The Northern California tournament in debate, oratory and interpretation, previously called the Fresno Invitational, was held in Stockton this year for the first time.

Competing with at least 20 junior and senior division colleges, Moss and Roger Randall of Yuba City teamed with Miss Kahle to take first place honors in debate. Placing second in debate were Dave Quadro, San Jose, and Kit Cornett, Santa Monica.

INVITATION TO OKLAHOMA TOURNAMENT

For the fourth consecutive year, Pacific was represented in the annual Speech Tournament at Central State College at Edmond, Okla. As one of four universities to receive special invitations to participate in the tournament for 65 south and midwestern colleges, Pacific's team, Raoul Kennedy and Douglas Pipes, Fresno, competed in debate, oratory and speech analysis. Three other schools to receive special invitations were the University of Alabama, University of Oregon and Dartmouth.

Before returning to Stockton, Kennedy and Pipes made several appearances before service clubs and high schools in Oklahoma City, to give demonstrations in the area of forensics.

Striding on to even bigger challenges, with the aid of their director, Paul Winters, Pacific's top debators will take part in the nation-wide invitational Golden West tournament at the University of Redlands January 2. On January 31, Pacific will compete for the first time in the Harvard Tournament in Boston. Eighty colleges in the nation, including five from the western states, will compete in debate and extemporaneous speaking during the three-day event.
