Thanksgiving Day

NEVER AGAIN!

For the first time since memory of man runneth not to the contrary, the Galloping Gaels have spent three weekends in the limbo of the licked.

This has been a very trying experience but it has also been very educational.

You get a close-up of how most of the people you meet spend most of their time after you leave them.

You are also educated as to how your closest (so they tell you) friends react when you are down.

You learn anew of humility, loyalty and courage. St. Mary's learned all of these lessons. And learned them well.

Today the Gaels are graduating from the school of sock and misfortune to the larger life.

It was awful being down and it's so nice to be up again.

Suppose they should fail?

Don't be ridiculous. St. Mary's cannot fail. There's a fourteen-year-old tradition that says no Galloping Gael eleven shall lose more than four games in a single year. Of course, the current crop are only three down at the present time but there's an incredible tie also sandwiched in somewhere.

Hence, one more moral victory would give St.

Mary's a new all-time high in unsuccess. That is why it is obvious the Gaels shall win from now on. Poor Pacific! Poor Temple!

The only satisfaction the Gaels had during the off-month came from contemplating the outfits more unfortunate, even, than they.

Proud Stanford, for instance, has lost four and tied two! Brave California also out-lost the Gaels, four games to St. Mary's three. Poor Oregon was flogged six times and Oregon State five.

Matter of factly, Santa Clara and Washington are the only teams boasting better records than the Gaels in the Pacific Coast competition this year. And if St. Mary's wins today it will mark the first season the Gaels have lost only one game to a Pacific Coast team since 1930.

California handed the Moragans their only setback that year, 7-6. Santa Clara is the only Far Western eleven to outscore them so far this season.

Another purple pill that sweetened the dregs of defeat was the realization that if some philanthropic sportsman made an award to the team playing the hardest schedule, St. Mary's would be a simon-cohen cinch to cop.

Two of the three teams to outscore the Gaels are still unbeaten and are outstanding candidates for Rose Bowl honors. They are Fordham and Santa Clara. Marquette, the third conqueror, lost only one game and is ranked among the nation's top five.

St. Mary's lost to Fordham by one point and out-gained and out-downed both Santa Clara and Marquette.

St. Mary's also has the mythical championship line. It has not permitted a single opponent to score on the ground this year. Moreover, 10 of the 14 touchdowns St. Mary's has made were on running plays made possible by the blocking of linemen.

Undefeated Santa Clara had a net gain of only 37 yards from scrimmage against that iron wall. Marquette netted but 41. St. Mary's ground gains more than doubled those of each foe.

Names of the men who made this remarkable but unnoted record are Gerry Conlee, Marty Kordick, Jerry Dennerlein, Bill Wilkin, Jim Austin, John Giannoni, Bob Timm, Vic Strub and Joe Hurley.

Unorthodoxy will be the keynote of the College of Pacific team that plays St. Mary's today.

Long known as the perpetrator of some of the most spectacular plays and formations in the modern sport of football, Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg has produced a Far Western conference champion by employing a system of curio-formations, radical even for the squirrely Southwest.

The "youngest old man" in the football business works on the theory that "surprise is the essence of success" on the lime-lined turf.

His squad has been known to fling passes from arrear its own goal line, plunge the line on fourth down in its own territory, and execute a series of lateral pass plays that bring reminiscences of heated forays on the basketball court.

Well aware of the intrinsic worth of the unexpected and the use of trick names or symbols in firing the imagination, Stagg's basic formation is the "p-dinger."

Stagg's star performers are Pacific's famed "Touchdown Twins," Clarence "Corky" Cortez and "Bounding Bobby" Coe, left halfbacks. Cortez, 170-pound soph from Grass Valley, is fastest man on the squad and one of the best punters on the Coast.

Fullback Phil "Iron Mike" Martinovich is All-Conference and has received All-Coast mention. He weighs 210, is fast and goes berserk in a rough-tough ball game.

Joe Olaeta, 165-pound bounding Basque from Lovelock, Nev., is the signal-caller. Al George, 170 pounds of unadulterated gallop from Stockton, is the right half. Passes and lopes but, does not kick. Backs up the line.

It has been four years since Amos Alonzo Stagg, dean of American football and "grand old man" of the Chicago Midway, quit his position as a ranking power of the Big Ten and cast his lot with the grid aspirations of an obscure Western college at Stockton.

Four years have witnessed the skyrocketing of the Bengal Tigers of the College of the Pacific to a definite and lasting place among the luminaries of the Coast football firmament.

Four years have passed, also, since the Gaels and the Tigers stood embattled on the turf of Baxter Stadium at Stockton, fighting a glorious game that was scheduled as a "breather" for the Moragans, but which turned into a thrilling spectacle of gridiron strategy.

The Bengals brought into play all the tricks Stagg had taught them to beat back the invaders from their goal, finally to succumb to the blinding speed of Al Nichelini by a scant 7-0 score.

That battle was a baptism of fire for the Staggs. They emerged scathed but confident. They had found a coach and a leader who would guide their destinies to greater heights than they had ever imagined.

The magic name of Stagg thrilled California as it had been thrilling the Middle West for more than forty years. Contemporaries honored him. Prep grid stars rallied to Pacific's colors to learn to fight in the football wars under the old maestro.

Major Coast teams invited his competition, knowing that he would deal them blow for blow and match their skill with all the foxiness that he had stowed away through the years.

Stagg's reputation for sportsmanship and clean fighting has been burnished to even greater lustre by the small but splendid teams he has hurled against his foes in the West.

Ten

In 1934 the Bengals opened their season against the Trojans at Los Angeles, and stunned the grid world by holding the powerful men of Troy to an unimpressive 6-0 victory.

The work that Stagg and Laurie Apitz, his assistant who came West from Chicago with him, had done showed in the fighting Tiger line that stopped the Trojan charges cold and spilled fleet "Cotton" Warburton behind the line of scrimmage so many times that he was removed from the game.

Many thought that game was a fluke. But the Tigers came back the next week to battle the California Bears to a 7-6 standstill at Berkeley. The "grand old man's" boys from Stockton were definitely established as suitable opponents for the best teams California had to offer.

Considered from any angle, when Madigan and Stagg, two of the greatest names in American football, pit the products of their art in combat, things are bound to happen.

Quizzed as to what he thought might transpire when his boys squared off with the Gaels of St. Mary's, Coach Stagg said:

"Our players respect but do not fear St. Mary's. The only thing we're conceding is an advantage in weight and reserves. As regards the former, it is so much easier to go over than through obstacles these days that our defensive worries are far greater than our offensive ones."

Stagg admits the current Bengal eleven is the best of the four he has coached at the Stockton college. On the record, he could hardly do anything else.

The Tigers, undefeated, untied and unscored on champs of the Far Western conference, bowled over Nevada, Fresno State, Cal Aggies, Chico State, San Jose State and the California Ramblers.

In two non-conference games, Loyola's Lions were lucky to win, 7-6, and California's Golden Bears had a hard time getting by, 14-0.

Pacific, with ambitions for national recognition, has improved in each of the last four years. The squad numbers forty-seven. The line averages 188 pounds, the backfield 176.

Three other teams, Fordham, Marquette and Santa Clara, have all marched to national recognition this year over a great but ill-fated St. Mary's team.

Stagg and Pacific may do likewise.

For determinedness of purpose, then, and wide open methods of attaining that purpose today's clash of Tiger and Gael should provide Kezar fans with a game long to be remembered.

On paper and by dint of season performances, the Saints must be conceded a pre-game edge. But the Tigers have always taken a keen delight in rounding off the edges of sports-writers' dope sheets.

Maybe they'll do it again today.

The unexpected is the expected this year, you know.
