Student body presidents Tom White '73 and Harold Noble '19 visited with President McCaffrey during the Alumni Conference. They were among the more than 150 alumni and their spouses attending the one-day meeting in early September.

Alumni View State of UOP

The state of the university and of the Pacific Alumni Association were the topics at the First Annual President's Alumni Conference held on the Stockton campus in early September.

Some 150 alumni and their spouses representing a broad segment of the alumni body heard from administrators, students and faculty on the various aspects of the University of the Pacific today during the morning session. This was followed by an afternoon program of discussions on how alumni can be of assistance to the university in the broad areas of student recruitment, fund raising, the development of the alumni association and in creating a greater awareness of Pacific in their home communities.

Following is a summary of the various presentations made during the conference . . .

It was evident from all presentations that Pacific has undergone dramatic change since 1960. Robert R. Winterberg, financial vice president, reported: Enrollment up 200 per cent from 1,800 to 5,400; faculty up from 98 to 403; total budget up 610 per cent from $3.1 million to $22 million; plant valuation up 825 per cent from $4 million to $37 million; average professor's salary up 124 per cent from $8,600 to $19,276; tuition up 185 per cent from $1,000 per year to $2,845; total salaries up 622 per cent from $1.8 million to $13 million.

While these figures reflect an increase in costs, they also reflect a dramatic increase in the scope of the university. In 1960, Pacific was known as College of the Pacific. Since that time there has been the addition of the School of Dentistry and School of Medical Sciences in San Francisco, McGeorge School of Law in Sacramento, and a greatly expanded School of Pharmacy on the Stockton campus.

Sue Harlan, president of the Associated Students of the University of the Pacific, reported that efforts during the coming year will be directed in four general areas: student services, social events, a speakers program called Forum on National Priorities, and the formation of an independent college student lobby in Sacramento.

In the student services area, ASUOP provides a travel service with discount rates, an equipment rental service, and a discount record store among others. Social events are both traditional and non-traditional including such things as dances, concerts, films, barbecues, and ice cream feeds. The Forum on National Priorities will bring to campus nationally known speakers, approximately one name speaker each month. Perhaps the most innovative new program of the ASUOP is the effort to establish a student lobby in Sacramento representing students from all independent colleges and universities in California. Miss Harlan is heading this effort and reports favorable response from throughout the state. Primary interest of the lobby will be state support for private education in an effort to make it available to more students.

Another expanded service to students on the Stockton campus this fall is the establishment of a full service placement office. William J. McGregor, director of placement, reported that response from business, industry and educational institutions for Pacific graduates has been quite favorable and that he expects the interest in Pacific graduates to increase considerably during the coming months as the program becomes fully implemented. He anticipates that nearly 1,000 students will make some use of the service during the current school year.

financial aids, offered further evidence of the size of Pacific today. He said that more than $5.5 million is provided in financial aid to students in the form of scholarships, grants, loans, and work opportunities. About $2 million of this comes from university funds, another $1.5 million from the state scholarship program and $1.9 million from federal sources.

In addition to the great expansion of the university, during the past year Pacific has branched out into several non-tradition University programs such as University Without Walls and University College. Dr. Edward S. Betz, dean of all-university programs, reported that these programs are opening Pacific to individuals who may not otherwise have an opportunity to obtain a college degree. The University Without Walls program makes it possible for a student to obtain credit for learning experiences outside the classroom and to design his own degree program in conjunction with faculty counseling. Through University Without Walls the student can draw from learning resources on or off the campus and from other universities.

Students wishing to earn a degree from the University College program design their own degree programs in conjunction with the faculty and can draw from any or all of the schools and colleges on the Stockton campus.

Dr. Elmer "Hans" Wagner, dean of admissions and registrar, pointed out that the fall enrollment of new students is particularly encouraging with an increase of some 17 per cent in freshmen and about 5 per cent in transfer students. This is especially significant, he said, in light of the declining enrollments being reported by many other institutions.

Dr. Wagner also indicated that the quality of students continues to increase with entering students having a grade point average of 3.28 this year compared with 3.02 last year.

Other participants in the morning program included President Stanley E. McCaffrey, who gave a general description of the University of the Pacific as it is today; Dr. Alistair W. McCrone, academic vice president, who outlined some of the achievements of the faculty; Judith M. Chambers, dean of students, who outlined the functions of that office; and Dr. Gwenneth L. Brown, professor of philosophy in the College of the Pacific, who provided a faculty perspective of Pacific today.

A luncheon for the group was held in the new "Pacific Club," at which time Dr. Donald F. Duns, chairman of the department of communications arts in COP and chairman of the President's Task Force on Intercollegiate Athletics, reported on the progress of the Task Force.

Duns explained that a preliminary report had been presented to the faculty last spring and that there were still several significant points of difference to be ironed out before the final recommendations are made to President McCaffrey. Perhaps one of the most significant items in the preliminary report is that the Task Force strongly recommends that a well balanced intercollegiate athletic program is important to the academic programs of the university. At the same time, however, it recommends that the athletic program should be conducted in such a way that it would not be a financial burden to academic programs. Every effort should be made to make intercollegiate athletics economically sound.

Teacher Corps Renewed

U.S. Office of Education officials have approved funding of a new Teacher Corps cycle which began this summer.

Manuel Montano, Teacher Corps director at Pacific, said the new cycle will be for 30 interns and involve a federal grant of approximately $800,000 over two years. A majority of the funds will be used for salaries and dependency allowances for the interns.

Teacher Corps involves the training of students from low income backgrounds for school assignments in underprivileged neighborhoods. The interns divide their minimum 65-hour work week between classroom instruction at the university, teaching experience in Stockton schools and community involvement projects in the neighborhoods where they teach.

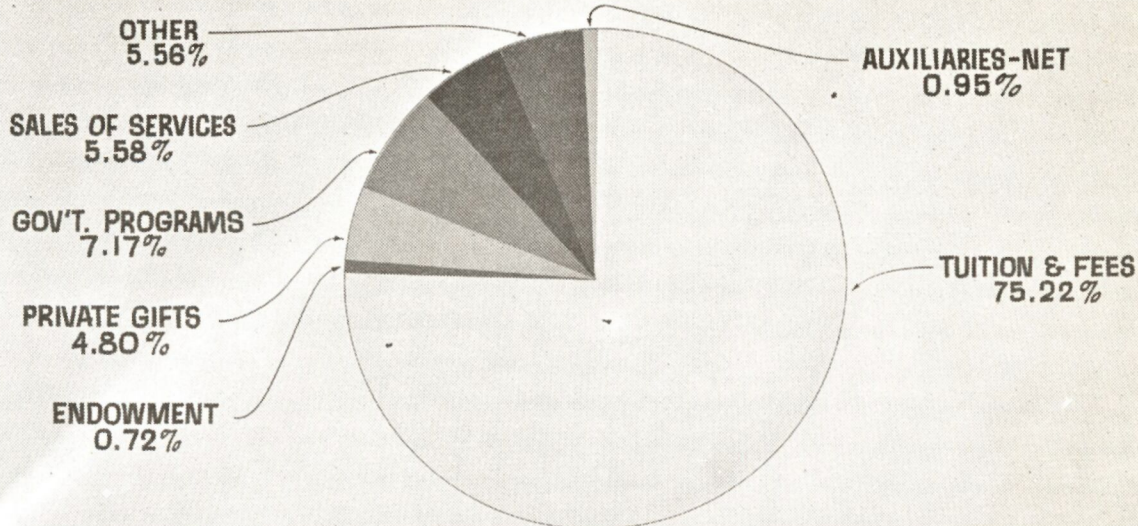

The first undergraduate Teacher Corps program in the nation was established at UOP in 1968.

1972-73 REVISED EDUCATIONAL EXPENSE BUDGET

(DOES NOT INCLUDE MCGEORGE SCHOOL OF LAW)

$16,052,055

Review of the 1972-73 budget was presented by Vice President Robert R. Winterberg at the Alumni Conference. The above charts indicate that tuition and fees account for 75.22 per cent of the income. Private gifts account for 4.8 per cent and only .72 per cent of the income is from endowment. Instructional costs account for more than half the expenses and student aid totals 8.56 per cent. The charts also indicate that for the second consecutive year the university has operated with a slight surplus.

Alumni Seek Greater Involvement

An entire new program thrust which will provide greater opportunity for broader alumni involvement resulted from the first annual President's Alumni Conference, according to Alumni Association President William J. Wirt of Sacramento.

The positive and enthusiastic recommendations from the more than 100 alumni attending are summarized as follows:

Student Recruiting—Alumni could host receptions for prospective students. In most cases representatives of the university staff would also attend these receptions to provide specific information. Also, alumni could visit the counselors of their local high schools to make certain that the schools have adequate information about Pacific. Perhaps the most important role of alumni in this area is to provide the Admissions Office with the names of prospective students. The names should be sent to the Office of Admissions, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95204.

Fundraising—In order to assist the Office of Development in carrying out its responsibilities a series of telephone campaigns will be held throughout California during the year. Alumni will be asked to volunteer to call fellow alumni in their area on behalf of the annual fund. Other alumni will be asked to volunteer as representatives of their class to contact other members of their class for information and for contributions to the annual fund. Alumni in a community also may wish to form their own fund raising effort to provide scholarships for students from their community.

Pacific Alumni Association—Alumni could form local alumni chapters for period meetings; they could assist in the staging of alumni meeting in their areas in conjunction with athletic events, band or choir tours, and other university activities; they also could assist in developing continuing education programs for alumni, or develop a series of summer camp-type programs.

Greater Awareness—Alumni could be helpful in developing contacts with their local media and assist the university Public Relations Office in placing stories of local interest; they could make use of the university Speaker's Bureau and placing Pacific faculty and staff members on local programs; also they could use their contacts in local service clubs to place programs on Pacific.

Alumni interested in participating in any of these efforts should write or call the Office of Alumni-Parent Relations (946-2391).

ASUOP President Seeks Private College Lobby

A drive is now underway throughout California by a 21-year-old University of the Pacific coed to develop a lobby in Sacramento representing more than 110,000 private university and college students.

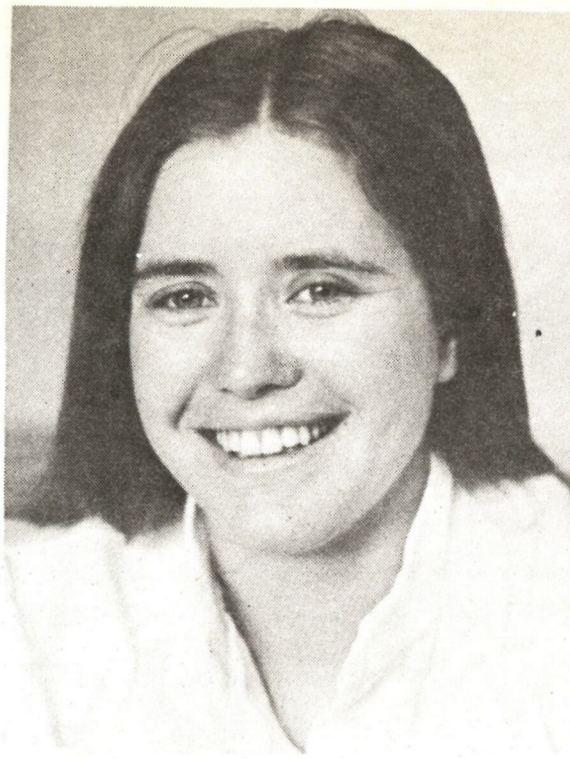

"The cost of attending a private university in this state is so great that students are finding it increasingly hard to cope with tuition," declared Sue Harlan, president of the Associated Students at Pacific (ASUOP). "I think the primary reason for establishing a lobby is to try and keep these tuition costs from getting any higher."

Miss Harlan, a pre-law and philosophy major from the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael, cited the need to reduce or eliminate UOP tuition increases when she campaigned last spring for the presidency of Pacific's 4,000 Stockton campus students. Tuition at UOP is now $2,845 annually, and the figures are comparable at other private colleges and universities in California.

"The lobby would be an organization created by all 48 private colleges and universities in California to make known to the legislature and general public the needs and concerns of more than 110,000 students in the private college system," she explained. Among the issues of concern to students are tuition, the Master Plan for Higher Education, student financial aid, collective bargaining, landlord-tenant law, child day care, election reform and voter registration.

Miss Harlan already has been active in seeking passage of two bills by Assemblyman Frank Lanterman (R-Pasadena). AB 950 would increase the number and amount of individual state scholarships, and AB 1770 would provide state scholarship tuition aid for private college students from middle income families.

The ASUOP president, first woman elected to the post since 1946 and only the fourth in the 123-year history of Pacific, indicated that an influencing factor in the drive for the lobby has been the success of the two-year old University of California student lobby. The UC lobby, which represents approximately 100,000 students, has a staff in Sacramento. Harlan said their lobbyist, Kevin Bacon, has endorsed her plans for the private college lobby. Also supporting the project—estimated to cost $30,000 annually or between $700 and $1,000 for each participating school—is Morgan Odell, executive director of the Association of Independent California Colleges and Universities.

Sue Harlan, ASUOP President

"Everyone we have talked with on development of this proposal has been supportive of our cause," she explained, "but our biggest problem is organizing the project. Some schools do not have official student body organizations, and at other schools the student leaders are not present during the summer."

Miss Harlan said she hopes the project can be put together "by late September or early October" so the staff can be hired and "become well-informed on all issues before the January assembly of the legislature."

Homecoming Activities Planned for October 27

Administrative Changes Are Announced

Several administrative changes have been announced for the Stockton and Sacramento campuses of UOP.

Dean of Students Edward Betz has assumed the newly created position of Dean of All-University Programs, a position which includes supervision of Pacific's extension programs, University Without Walls, University College, Community Involvement Program, Summer Sessions, and Internship Programs.

Assistant to the President Judith Chambers succeeds Betz as Dean of Students in addition to her present duties.

Betz came to Pacific in 1938 as a speech professor after three years on the faculty of Hastings College in Nebraska. He became dean of students in 1946. Betz holds B.A. and honorary Doctor of Law degrees from Hastings and a M.A. degree from Denver University.

Mrs. Chambers, who holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from Pacific, was named Assistant to the President in 1968. She previously served in an administrative capacity for eight years at Mount Union College in Ohio. She is coordinator of Pacific's international education programs and affirmative action officer for the university. Her husband, Dr. Dewey Chambers, is a professor of education at UOP.

Dr. Douglas Smith, assistant professor of mathematics at College of Pacific, has been named assistant dean at College of the Pacific.

Dr. Clifford Hand, dean of COP, announced the appointment of Smith to the newly created position. Hand said the position was established to aid students in academic counseling and advising, plus help coordinate the academic programs involving the various departments at COP.

Smith came to Pacific in 1970 from University of Washington, where he was a teaching assistant. Smith, a native of Seattle, Washington, holds B.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Washington and a Master of Arts in Teaching degree from Harvard.

Three administrative appointments and announcement of a distinguished visiting professor were made recently at McGeorge School of Law in Sacramento.

Dean Gordon Schaber of the law school said Harold Kambak has been named assistant to the dean for professional programs, Dr. Nick LaPlaca has been appointed director of placement, John Ryan has been named assistant dean for academic affairs, and Bruno Greene has been appointed distinguished visiting professor of law.

Kambak, a former director of public relations at UOP, comes to the newly created position at McGeorge from California Lutheran College, where he was vice president for development. His law school duties will encompass alumni affairs, special programs of service to the alumni and bar, fund development and public relations.

LaPlaca, formerly a teacher and administrator in the Stockton Unified School District, holds B.A., M.A. and Ed.D. degrees from UOP. His appointment will allow Ruth Squire, formerly placement and admissions officer, to assume other duties at the law school.

Ryan, formerly a law professor at McGeorge, will assume duties vacated by Dr. Stuart Brody, recently named director of a legal paraprofessional research program at McGeorge.

Greene, who recently retired from the University of Minnesota School of Law, will be a visiting professor during the upcoming school year at McGeorge and Hastings College of Law in San Francisco.

Susan Shipley, a student at the UOP Conservatory of Music who was elected this year's Miss California, will be on campus for Homecoming '73 and will participate in the parade. Theme for the parade will be "The Wild, Wild West."

Engineering School Helps Minority Education Effort

The School of Engineering is working with the nationwide Minority Engineering Education Effort (MEEE) to create more opportunities for minorities in the engineering profession.

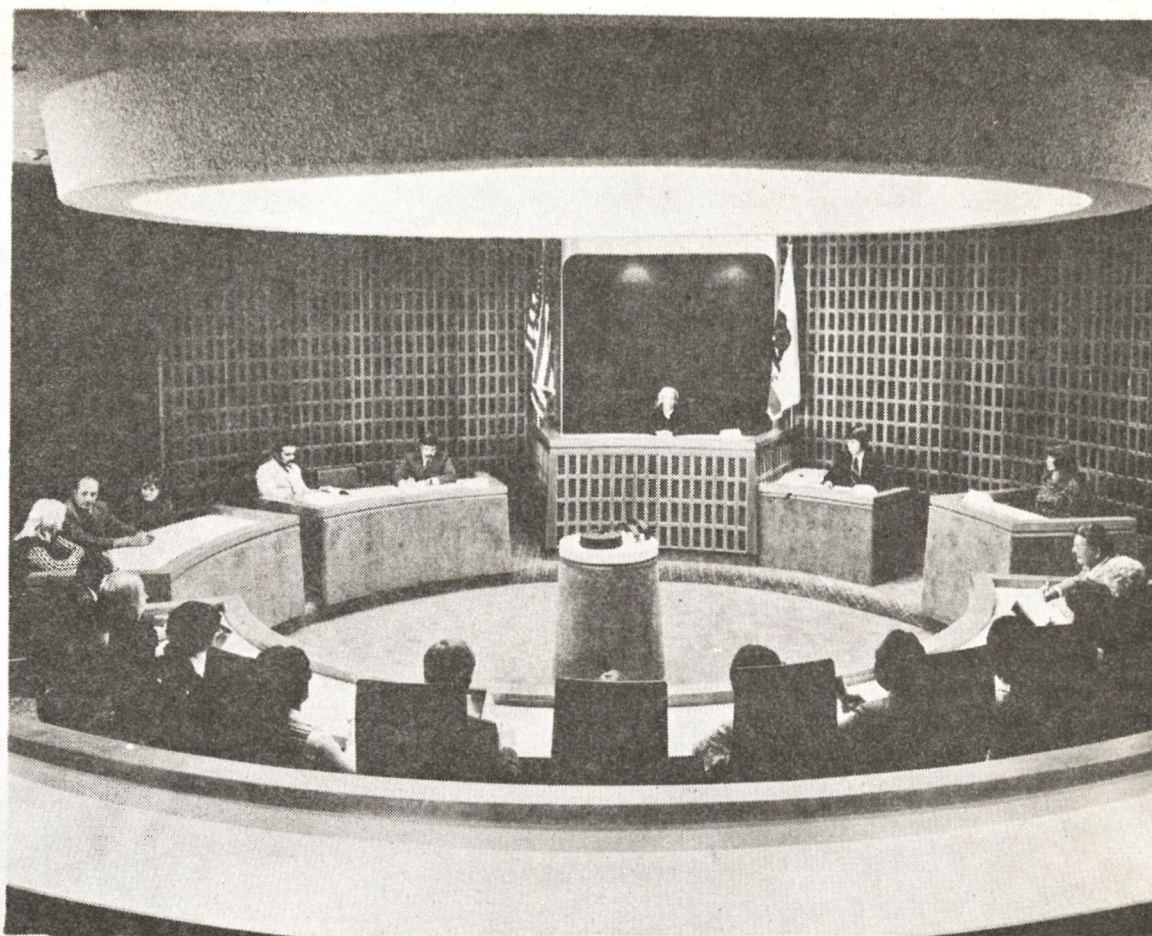

Officials at the UOP school, which has considerably increased its percentage of minority students in recent years, have written letters to some 230 high school students from minority backgrounds who have expressed an interest in engineering.

A nationwide list of students was supplied by MEEE, which was created by the Engineer's Council for Professional Development as a special task force. Goal of the task force is to increase the number of minority engineer graduates from the 400 last year to 4,000 within the next decade. A full-time executive secretary at the national level was named recently to help sustain the program, and the task force is comprised of academicians, minority leaders, businessmen, government officials and engineers.

School of Engineering Dean Robert Heyborne reported that in addition to the 230 letters, Pacific officials have personally contacted Stockton area youths who were on the list. He said the desire to attract minority youth and women also was stressed at a January institute at UOP for high school science teachers and counselors from throughout the Central Valley.

Heyborne noted that the Cooperative Education Program at Pacific, which allows engineering students to earn more than $10,000 by alternating classroom study with work experience, should help attract these students to Pacific, where tuition might otherwise present insurmountable problems.

The UOP School of Engineering, with a current enrollment of 120, has approximately 14 per cent minorities, an increase of 10 per cent over the figure four years ago.

Courtroom Dedication Held at McGeorge

Dedication of the "Courtroom of the Future" at McGeorge School of Law was held on October 5-6 at the Sacramento campus.

Activities on October 5 consisted of a day-long symposium for members of the legal profession on the teaching of trial advocacy in law schools. Formal dedication ceremonies were held on October 6 at 10 a.m., followed by a mock trial. The new courtroom was open to the public for viewing from 12 noon until 4 p.m. on October 6.

The new $460,000 Center for Legal Advocacy has received national attention in the popular media and in the legal profession. It is the only experimental courtroom facility currently in use for training trial attorneys and for testing innovations in courtroom procedures. It is equipped with an extensive array of security and communications devices, all designed to help serve the objectives of the legal process.

Retired Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court Tom Clark is among the nation's jurists and members of the legal profession who have applauded the law school project. Justice Clark is a member of the McGeorge Center for Legal Advocacy Advisory Council. He presided at a mock-trial demonstration scheduled for the center's dedication.

"I believe that the law schools must adapt themselves to clinical operations," Justice Clark said in commenting upon the courtroom laboratory concept. "I will be pleased to assist McGeorge in becoming a leader in this experimental effort in the West."

New design and equipment features of the 7,000-square-foot complex include:

- A circular arena designed to visually join the judge, jury and all other trial participants in close proximity to facilitate maximum clarity and comprehension of all trial proceedings. Jurors are separated from spectator distractions by sitting in high-backed chairs with their backs to the audience. A jurors' circular desk arrangement encourages note-taking.

- Fourteen television monitors strategically located among all trial participants for viewing close-ups of evidence and other visual presentations photographed by six concealed cameras controlled by a court technician. All cameras are concealed to eliminate distractions normally caused by this type of equipment.

- The introduction of a court technician as the newest addition to the complement of courtroom specialists, trained to operate all the electronic equipment from a sound-proof booth located at the rear of the courtroom.

- Video taping and 8-track audio recording equipment operated by the court technician. One concealed camera focuses on a newly-designed digital clock to permanently fix the hour and minute impression on all video taped records as the action occurs during the trial. Instant replay of any portion of the trial can be presented by order of the court. This feature will be studied as an aid to jury room deliberations.

- An evidence pedestal located at the center of the courtroom arena and two wall evidence display units are efficiently designed to aid attorneys in presenting trial exhibits. Concealed cameras focused on these three locations provide instant close-ups of all exhibits on the 14 courtroom television monitors. The evidence pedestal lowers into the floor, out of sight, when not in use. A retractable motion picture screen can be lowered from the ceiling by remote control for use with a concealed projector when filmed evidence is to be presented. All of these evidence display features are intended to expedite the presentation and clear interpretation of evidence exhibits.

- A news media observation booth equipped with a television monitor and telephone to aid news reporters in covering trial proceedings. One-way glass and sound-proof walls provide unrestricted listening and viewing freedom for reporters. Use of typewriters and telephone can proceed at any time without distraction to the court in session.

- A defendant's isolation room equipped to maintain uninterrupted audio-visual communication and avoid delay in trial proceedings in the event an unruly defendant initiates disruptive tactics.

- An audio recording system that accommodates simultaneous translation for non-English-speaking trial participants.

- An unobtrusive security system designed to screen and lock out anyone seeking to enter the courtroom with concealed weapons. All courtroom doors can be locked by remote control.

In addition to regular classroom use and occasional actual trial use, the McGeorge "Courtroom of the Future" will be the focal point for experiments in every facet of courtroom procedure, including court design, court security, use of television and the training of police officers to more effectively perform their duties in court.

Studies also will be pursued on the jury decision-making process, juror's comprehension and attitudes toward trial proceedings, as well as variations in size of jury and its resulting effect upon the administering of justice.

State Grant to Psychology Program Helps Students Aid Mentally Ill

The State Department of Mental Hygiene has awarded grants totaling $16,475 to the University of the Pacific to study improved methods of assisting the mentally ill in adjusting to society after lengthy hospital confinement.

The psychology department at Pacific, in cooperation with the Stockton office of the state department's Community Services Section, received the funds for the 1973-74 school year.

Dr. Martin Gipson, associate professor of psychology at UOP, said the funds are for two projects—$10,335 for a "Community Re-entry Project" and $6,140 for an "Independent Group Living Project."

"These grants will provide increased levels of activity for mentally ill individuals who live in a variety of community facilities," Gipson explained. He said the goal is to allow more of these people to become self-supporting and live independently. Some 20 psychology department students—working under the direction of Community Services Section social workers—will provide many of the activities involved in both programs.

Funds for the program, Gipson said, come from a federal program dedicated to the development of improved mental health care services in the community, and these monies are administered by the state.

Gipson also noted that this program is an outgrowth of a project started in the last school year where UOP psychology students assisted Stockton State Hospital patients in the adjustment from hospital life to living in the community.

Self Discovery Concept

Program for Women Now Underway

A new educational program, designed especially for women in the community who desire college experience, began this fall at University of the Pacific.

Dr. Edward Betz, dean of all-university programs at Pacific, announced formulation of a "Self Discovery" program that is believed unique in American higher education.

Planned as a series of courses in four academic areas and totaling 20 units, the program's only admission requirement will be a high school diploma.

"This program is directed toward the women of our community who may have small children, may or may not have had an educational experience beyond the secondary level, or may already be working, but now feel the need for some formalized education at the collegiate level," explained Genola Spoonhour, coordinator for the program and a UOP faculty member at the Conservatory of Music.

The program involves instruction in topics such as speech, written communications, philosophy, art, literature, and human behavior. Also included will be a seminar "to aid the returning woman with her adjustment to college and provide a mutual identity and sense of belonging within the university community," Mrs. Spoonhour said.

Tuition for the 20-unit package, offered over a five-semester period, is at the special rate of $1,422. Participants will be exempted from health and student body fees, and plans are being developed for free cooperative child care services.

The program, although primarily for women, is open to men. Those who are interested should telephone 946-2264 or write to Genola Spoonhour, University College, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95204.

The entire concept of the "Self Discovery" program is part of Pacific's University College, a recently developed program allowing community residents to return to college and take classes that cut across the traditional school and college boundaries of the university.

"UOP is concerned about the talent waste syndrome among mature women, many of whom are housewives and mothers," Mrs. Spoonhour noted. "It is felt that opportunities for such women to re-enter the academic world are needed, and that the concept of short term learning activities would be appealing." She said this program will allow women "to prove to themselves their ability to perform in academic settings without the necessity of committing themselves to a full two or four-year degree program."

Betz also said this program coincides with the university position that college is more than a place to earn a degree, as there is considerable value in a program offering human enrichment, entertainment and self-fulfillment. Along these lines, Mrs. Spoonhour concluded by noting that those who complete the "Self Discovery" program may be admitted as regular UOP students. The classes they have completed may then be applied toward a specific degree, if the student desires to go in this direction.

'Bargain Sale' Plan Has Many Benefits

Many of our alumni and other friends may own a security or parcel of real estate whose value has appreciated substantially since it was first acquired. Some of these persons might be willing to consider sharing this appreciated value with Pacific as a charitable contribution if they could recover and keep their initial investment in the asset. Fortunately, this idea, known as the "bargain sale" can be easily achieved. An example will illustrate:

Our friendly alumnus owns mountain property acquired long ago for only $5,000, but now worth approximately $50,000. He sells the asset to Pacific for $5,000, thus recovering his cost, and receives a charitable deduction for $45,000, which can be deducted in the year of the sale and for the next five years until fully used.

His cost of $5,000 represents one-tenth of the total appreciated value, so only one-tenth of his appreciation, or $4,500, is subject to long term capital gain tax, while nine-tenths of that appreciation—or the whopping sum of $40,500—is not subject to tax.

Perhaps you'd like to know more about how this unique device can benefit you. Or, perhaps you'd like to read about other estate planning techniques for your appreciated assets. If so, just use the coupon below.

Newest addition to campus facilities is the Pacific Club located on the east rim of Pacific Memorial Stadium. The new multi-purpose facility is a gift from Stockton construction company executive and UOP regent alumnus Alex Spanos. It provides a unique campus site for meetings, conferences, lectures

Graduating Student Notes Value of Callison College

Editor's note: Of all the thousands of words spoken at Pacific's various commencement exercises this summer, those of Karen Field, a Callison College senior, seemed best to express the spirit of liberal education at UOP. Here is one student's thanks to her Alma Mater.

It is customary, I think, for graduates to say thanks to the faculty and staff for giving them the knowledge and the values needed to adapt to the world, to accept the future, to adjust to life in the society around them. But for us to give such thanks today would be impossible. For our experience at Callison has not taught us simply to adapt, to accept, to adjust. In fact, I believe that it has made us all, in some sense, misfits; it has left us all, in a good sense, unprepared.

Certainly we have not been prepared to accept a government sustained by fraud and deception, or to adapt to a culture that grows daily more barren and ingrown. Certainly we have not been prepared to adjust to a society fearful of itself, drowning cries and laughter alike in the drone of machinery, hurtling along its computerized course—never daring to pause for play or fantasy. And if it is possible to distill one common conclusion from our various studies and travels, it is surely that there exists in the world more questions than answers, and that even answers can change from boundary to boundary, from moment to moment.

What we have learned at Callison has not made our lives easier, nor our futures simplified. Professor Magal used to tell us in India that once a person has lived in two cultures he can never again deal in absolutes, and our class can attest, I think, that he was right. Once a person has watched sunrise behind the Shore Temple at Mahabalipuram, it becomes a little more difficult to accept the brittle secularism of the modern West. Once he has learned to enjoy the sting of curry or chile, it is a little harder to adjust to the blandness of frozen dinners. And once he has lived with the spirit of this class and this college, that rare spirit compounded of humor and humanism and mutual caring, it becomes immeasurably harder to accept as unavoidable the inequities and the coldness that exist in the larger society.

It may seem unreasonable to praise a college for making its graduates restless, their values com-

Don Meredith, a nationally-known sports commentator for ABC's Monday Night Football and former all-pro quarterback with the Dallas Cowboys, headed an eight-day symposium on

"Instant Replay" during UOP's summer session. Meredith examined the impact of sport on the American society and in contemporary literature, films and television.

plicated, their needs not easily satisfied. But if one believes with Shaw that "the reasonable person adapts to the world . . . therefore progress depends upon unreasonable men," one must then realize that if we are to escape the stagnation which threatens this culture, we will need far more places like Callison, and graduates who will hold fast to the Callison spirit despite pressures to abandon it.

For we all know that we have something to defend here. Our class came to college with dreams of community and self-expression and adventure, dreams that were drawn out of our own temperaments and the hopeful times that shaped us. The idealism of the Sixties may have evaporated from the national scene, but here we have managed to give it a form, in the personal concern of professor for student, in the honesty of open discussion, in the warmth and cooperation within our class that was so apparent during our Senior Retreat.

Callison is not the most perfect of all possible worlds, but it may have come closer than any other environment we are likely to find. And because we know what was possible here, because we know that our dreams of self-expression and mutual respect and joy in one another were able, at least in part, to become reality, it will be harder for us to lay those dreams aside . . . so hard that we may be "unreasonable" enough to take them along when we go.

Because words of goodbye are the hardest words of all to frame, it is easier to use the words of others at this point. D. H. Lawrence was a traveller, and a dreamer, and these words of his might be the goodbye of all who travel and dream, of all whose travels are not yet done and to those with whom the dream was shared:

"I must go now soon. The world is open. But what is between us is good, and is established . . . All is good between us, near or apart."

And so for the dreams that took form here, for the good that we have established together, we can only say to you who remain and to each other, "thank you"—and for all our sakes, carry it on.

UOP Food Service Faces Cost Increase Problems

If the rising food prices have created a headache for the American housewife, they have created a nightmare for Paul Fairbrook, director of auxiliary services at University of the Pacific.

Whereas the housewife can adjust her food budget as prices go up to feed a typical family of four, Fairbrook must feed approximately 2,200 people daily with a fixed budget set last spring—when food prices averaged some 25 per cent lower than his current costs.

"The rapid food price increases in recent months have forced us to develop a special program of action to keep our costs down," explained Fairbrook. Measures taken so far include (1) eliminating second helpings on items like meat, baked goods, fresh fruit, bacon and eggs; (2) reducing the number of times these items are served each week; (3) adopting stricter controls over the portions of food that are served, and (4) posting signs and writing a letter to the students informing them of the problem and the measures being instituted to combat the food price increase.

Fairbrook said his projected costs for food for this school year have mushroomed by some $125,000 since the budget was approved last spring. He hopes this deficit can be reduced by $50,000 through the measures outlined above, "but for this to work we have to save approximately 25 cents per day per student, which isn't easy."

The food service operation at Pacific, which has been praised as among the finest in the nation, will continue several of the features Fairbrook has instituted. These include a smorgasbord-type salad bar, a vegetarian food program, and total flexibility in dining hours and locations on campus. But competing against this type of operation are price increases since last spring, such as bacon up from 69 cents to $1.40 per pound (102 per cent boost); chicken up from 41 cents to 94 cents per pound (129 per cent), and salad oil up from $9.25 to $19.10 per case (106 per cent).

"We have not changed our quality standards in the food we serve," Fairbrook emphasized, "but if prices keep rising we are going to have to consider an increase in board costs next spring."

There was a $50 increase in room and board fees this school year, to $1,400 annually, but Fairbrook said all the additional money went into the room category. "We just didn't feel we could increase the charges any more than this," he explained, "and because we didn't increase the money for food, now we are really feeling the pinch of higher prices."

Rick "Alonzo" Karr, a College of the Pacific graduate, writes us from Fez, Morocco that he "really enjoys the Pacific Review." Alonzo is in Morocco with the Peace Corps and has just completed his first year of teaching English in their school system. However . . . Alonzo has not been working all the time—he relates to us that he is engaged to a lovely Moroccan girl, Houria Ezzaim. They plan to marry next summer. Alonzo has invited us to Morocco but I haven't come up with any good way to justify an alumni junket to North Africa—maybe for a wedding . . . ?

Congratulations are in order for Gregory S. Johnson, Robert J. Hunter, Jr., and Nicholas Joseph Gennaro who were awarded their Doctor of Education Degrees in June. We know the trials each has overcome to attain this goal, and the long hours of dedication such a degree requires. Congrats again on a job well done!

Melissa R. Markey has been chosen by the California Scottish Rite Foundation to receive an annual fellowship that will allow her to continue her studies at the George Washington University School of Government, Business & International Affairs. Miss Markey, a 1973 graduate of Elbert Covell College, was one of two persons chosen statewide for the fellowships.

Ruth Flenoy, a June graduate of UOP's Teacher Corps, has been named Miss Black Stockton. Miss Flenoy received a standing ovation for her talent presentation during the annual pageant. She plans to teach elementary school in Stockton Unified School District in the fall.

We Salute . . .

Katherine Warwick Overboe '59 BA, '60 MA Ed

After 28 years of dedicated service to young people, Katherine has retired. She has mixed emotions about her retirement—"Working with children is exciting and challenging, but I have many interests set aside for a less busy time of life including some traveling." She has taught some 20 years in Manteca schools and to honor those years, the students of Shasta Elementary School dedicated their 1973 Arts and Music Show to her. There were flowers, songs, kind words and I suspect a few tears. She was a loved and respected teacher and we know her presence will be missed in Manteca.

Dorothy Steaffens Cox '66 Education

Dorothy Steaffens Cox, a teacher of the trainable mentally retarded at Modesto's new Joseph M. Kelley School, was named Stanislaus County's "Special Education Teacher of the Year." Mrs. Cox has taught for some 23 years. She is a former executive board member of the Joseph Howard Training Center, has served on many special committees studying the needs of the mentally retarded which led to the building of the Kelley School. Governor Reagan appointed Mrs. Cox to serve on the Area VI Mental Retardation Program Board in 1972. Congratulations, Mrs. Cox, on 23 years of exemplary service to your committee's children.

In Memorium . . .

Mrs. Elmer Thornton '43 (formerly Clarie Herron Kendall) passed away in early June in Escalon, California.

George Vernon Harris '27, passed away quietly in his home. Harris was a freshman at Pacific when its first classes were conducted in Stockton in 1923.

Mrs. Edna Ormsby Procter '08, recently passed away in Dallas, Texas.

Louise Gibson Hardwick '02, a graduate of the Conservatory, passed away June 26, 1972. We were notified just recently of her death by Mrs. Evelyn Jones, her cousin.

Michael Robert Cox, a student in the College of the Pacific, drowned while scuba diving off the coast of Baja California in early August. Michael was active on the water polo and swim teams and involved with the Orientation Program. We were all saddened by his loss.

John S. Knapp, a 1971 graduate of Elbert Covell College, died of cancer on December 30, 1972.

John Wilson Shelton, a 1965 graduate of our Pharmacy School, died May 23 in Fallon, Nevada. Mr. Shelton owned and managed a drug store in Fallon.

Your fellow alumni are interested in knowing what you are doing. Help the Alumni Office keep them informed by writing Office of Alumni-Parent Relations, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95204.

Dr. Margaret Cormack Named Academic Council Chairman

Dr. Margaret Cormack has been named 1973-74 chairman of the University of the Pacific Academic Council, the faculty governance organization at the university.

Ms. Cormack, professor of international studies at Pacific's Callison College, succeeds Dr. Carl Wulfman as leader of the approximate 400-member organization that represents the faculty in all academic affairs of the university. She is the second woman in the history of the university to hold the position.

The new chairman came to Pacific in 1969 from the University of California in Berkeley, where she spent two years as program director and professor of Asia Studies. She also has taught at colleges in New York and served as director of the U.S. Education Foundation in India and program director of the Institute of Advanced Projects at the East-West Center in Hawaii.

Ms. Cormack, a resident of India for 26 years and author of three books concerning that country, holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Kansas and a Ph.D. from Columbia University.

While at Pacific she served one year as acting provost for overseas programs at Callison College. She currently is a member of numerous campus bodies, including the Long Range Planning Committee, Forward Together Committee and Affirmative Action Committee.

1972-73 INVESTORS' HONOR ROLL

To The Alumni, Parents and Other Friends of Pacific:

It is with pleasure and gratitude of the entire University community that we report to you on the private support given to Pacific during the past fiscal year. During 1972-73 over 2,900 concerned individuals, corporations, foundations, churches and groups made it possible for the University to experience a second banner year in succession.

A grand total of $1,489,749 was received from non-government sources for all purposes, and $806,234 of that amount was applicable to the operational budget of the University. This made it possible for the University to report its second balanced budget in the past two years, a fact that we point to with a considerable degree of pride because of the difficult fiscal problems facing most educational institutions in the nation today. It is the intent of our Board of Regents to report a balanced budget annually.

Almost 90 percent of the $806,234 was totally unrestricted, while the balance of $89,251 was for the general scholarship fund. The endowment fund of the University was also increased by nearly $95,000.

We are highly gratified by the results which serve to support Pacific's varied programs of teaching, research, and community involvement. Because of this generous support, Pacific is able to move ahead with increased confidence and dedication to our mission of providing an educational experience of the highest quality.

The following pages recognize those 2,926 donors who have made this another successful year in the University's fine history. All of the volunteer leadership and others who have made their annual "investment" in Pacific can take great pride in knowing their combined efforts have made this year's accomplishment possible.

We greatly appreciate the important role each of you have played and will continue to play in the growth and progress of Pacific. By working together toward common objectives, all of us will be able to point with even greater pride to a Greater Pacific.

Sincerely,
Stanley E. McCaffrey, President

History of Effectiveness of Participation

The university realized the greatest number of contributors in the sixteen year history of its Alumni Fund during 1972-73 with 1,848 contributors. The best previous year was during 1959-60 when 1,772 alumni contributed.

The 13.1% effectiveness of participation this year is the best since 1964-65 when it was 20.1%. The highest effectiveness percentage attained by Pacific was 25.4% in 1958-59 when the alumni numbered 6,934.

One of the benchmarks used by foundations and corporations in evaluating colleges and universities who approach them for support is what the institution's alumni do to support their alma mater. This factor is known as either effectiveness of alumni participation or percentage of alumni participation.

The Council for Financial Aid to Education and the American Alumni Council jointly sponsor an annual report under the title of Voluntary Support of Education which reports these critically important statistics. The national average was 17.1% for all schools, colleges and universities participating for 1971-72, the most recent report.

The number of alumni donors has increased over the past six years from an all time low of 308 to an all time high this fiscal year of 1,848, a 600% increase.

During the same period the effectiveness of participation climbed from another all time low of 2.5% to the current level of 13.1%, an increase of 10.6%.

Under the continuing dedicated leadership of their National Chairman, Lester C. Tiscornia, COP '32, of St. Joseph's, Michigan, Pacific alumni giving is definitely on the upgrade.

Corporate Support of Higher Education

The evidence of American business's sense of social responsibility is most visible in its long-standing commitment to higher education. Corporations provide about 15 per cent of the total voluntary support of higher education.

Corporate support of higher education takes many forms. Pacific has been among the fortunate recipients of this support, of which the following are examples.

Campbell Soup Company gives scholarships to children of its employees. The schools attended by such children receive a supplemental unrestricted gift for each child in attendance. Additionally, the Company conducts a nationwide program of support of private universities and colleges. Last year, Pacific's support from Campbell Soup Company totaled $4,500: scholarships $1,500, supplemental grants $500, unrestricted, $2,500.

Shell Companies Foundation has several programs for support of higher education. One of these, the Shell Assists enable institutions to do the "little things" for professional development that are seldom covered in major grants, e.g. attending professional meetings, publications, travel, etc. Some of the grant is used at the discretion of the president, some by deans, department heads, etc. Last year, Pacific received a Shell Assist Grant of $1,500 for the 9th year.

Corporate Matching Gifts Almost 500 corporations now participate in the employee matching gift program. These corporations will match any employer's gift to his alma mater (or in some programs to the school of the employee's choice). Some corporations match on a two for one basis. Eighteen corporations made gifts to Pacific last year under the matching gift program, including IBM which made nine gifts totaling $1,300.

In 1969, Sears Roebuck introduced a program for strengthening private college and university libraries across the country. Grants are made exclusively for the acquisition of books rather than any other library needs. Last year Pacific received a library grant from Sears Roebuck Foundation of $1,600 plus an additional unrestricted grant of $3,250.

The corporations who contributed to Pacific in 1972-73 are listed on page 18 of this Investor's Honor Roll.

Bequests Play Important Role In University Financing

The University has been most fortunate throughout the years in being named either a sole, primary, or residual beneficiary in the Wills of a number of alumni and friends.

During 1972-73, Pacific received a total of $612,760 from the estates of eleven persons; of this amount, $363,157 was wholly unrestricted.

The most significant bequest windfall came from the estate of Grace A. Covell, a former member of the Board of Regents from Modesto, in the way of an estate note for $500,000.

In addition, the Covell estate provided for the establishment of a trust whereby the University will receive the income only for a period of ten years. At the end of that period of time, Pacific will receive the principle of the trust; the estimate of the principle is approximately $3.5-Million.

Not only is the University extremely grateful for the tremendous financial lift these bequests afford it, Pacific must rely upon a certain number of these bequests maturing each year.

SUPPORT FROM PARENTS OF CURRENTLY ENROLLED AND FORMER STUDENTS IMPORTANT

In addition to paying either part or whole tuition for their sons and daughters, 281 parents of currently enrolled students felt so strongly about the quality educational experience offered at Pacific that they voluntarily contributed $29,538 of support through the University's 1972-73 Annual Fund.

Further, it is a credit to the university that ninety parents of former students or graduates provided $4,758 of voluntary support during the past fiscal year, also.

Thus, all parents contributed a total of $34,296.

Joseph N. Mitchell of Los Angeles, whose daughter Jan is a COP sophomore this fall, serves as National Parents' Fund Chairman, while George Ablin, M.D., of Bakersfield, whose daughter Pamela was graduated in 1971 from Raymond College, serves as the National Chairman for Parents of Former Students and Graduates.

"I wish our contributions could be larger to better show my gratitude to the University. My years at COP ('59-'63) were memorable for many reasons. I am grateful for the sound education I received and, hopefully, I can someday repay those scholarships that helped finance my years at UOP. I am very proud to be an alumna of such a fine school. The innovations are great. Keep up the good work."

ATHLETICS

The support from those alumni and friends who have a special feeling for the role of intercollegiate athletics in the life of Pacific continues to increase.

The three Stockton-based athletic support groups, Pacific Athletic Foundation, Quarterback Club, and Pacific Casaba Club, and the Sacramento Booster Club have just completed another banner year.

With the continuing help of persons such as these, Pacific athletics will continue to build on the proud traditions of the past.

Townsend Foundation Gift

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 was designed to end abuses of the tax-exempt privilege by private foundations. It imposed many new restrictions and complex regulations and provided for stiff penalties for violations.

Many small foundations, lacking professional staff, found compliance with the new law so complicated and time-consuming that they decided to curtail their operations and distribute their assets.

For such foundations, the transfer of assets to the University of the Pacific presents an attractive opportunity to further the original purposes of the foundation and to perpetuate, if desired, the name of the foundation—by endowing a chair or a named scholarship or by furnishing a classroom or a laboratory.

Several such gifts have been received by University of the Pacific from terminating foundations. In 1972-73, these included a gift of securities valued at approximately $25,000 from the Calvin and Doreen Townsend Foundation. The gift was unrestricted—the most useful of all gifts, as it allows the administration to apply it where it will do the most good.

John A. McCarthy Foundation Gift

A young foreign student, thousands of miles from home, learns that his support from his homeland has been terminated. His family is poor and cannot come to his aid. The University's funds are committed; where can he turn for help?

A "Sudden Need" fund, created by the John A. McCarthy Foundation and administered by the Independent Colleges of Northern California provided an answer. Set up to permit quick action—often impossible when boards meet only quarterly or less frequently—the fund makes distributions with the approval of one member of each of the organizations involved. In this case, the need $1,500 was approved and issued in time to avoid any serious difficulties.

The McCarthy Foundation, created from the estate of John A. McCarthy, has done much to enable needy and deserving young persons to get a start in life. In addition to the $1,500 described above, the Foundation made another $6,000 grant for unrestricted scholarships last year.

Further, to assist the University to balance its budget, the Foundation made an additional gift of $6,500 for the purchase of equipment bringing their total contributions for the year to $14,000.
