Volume 10—No. 1

October, 1975

Briefly Noted

A series of meetings for alumni, parents of current students, and prospective students and their parents have been scheduled by University of the Pacific. Alumni and parents are urged to invite prospective students to these meetings as it will provide them with a first-hand look at UOP. The program will include a slide presentation and other entertainment.

Following are the meetings scheduled for November and December:

November 4—Highlands Inn, Monterey, 7:30 p.m.

November 11—Sands Hotel, South Lake Tahoe, 7:30 p.m.

November 13—Airport Hilton, San Francisco, 7:30 p.m.

November 16—Disneyland Hotel, Los Angeles/Orange County Area, 3:30 p.m.

November 17—Sheraton on Harbor Island, San Diego, 7:30 p.m.

November 23—Don the Beachcomber Restaurant, Waikiki Beachcomber Hotel, Hawaii, 3:30 p.m.

December 2—Northridge Country Club, 7:30 p.m.

December 8—LeBaron Hotel, San Jose, 7:30 p.m.

December 11—Concord Inn, Concord/Walnut Creek Area, 7:30 p.m.

Thirty-two UOP students left on September 1 to spend the academic year in Japan. The students, most of whom are sophomores at Callison College, make up the eighth class to spend a year abroad as part of Callison's program. After participating in a six-week orientation class to increase their understanding of the Japanese language and culture, the students will divide into two groups, one to pursue cultural interests and the other to participate in a work-study program involving Japanese businesses.

Students will live with a Japanese family throughout their stay abroad.

Pacific Begins Anniversary Year

It wasn't just another opening of the school year when University of the Pacific began its 125th year of operations.

For example:

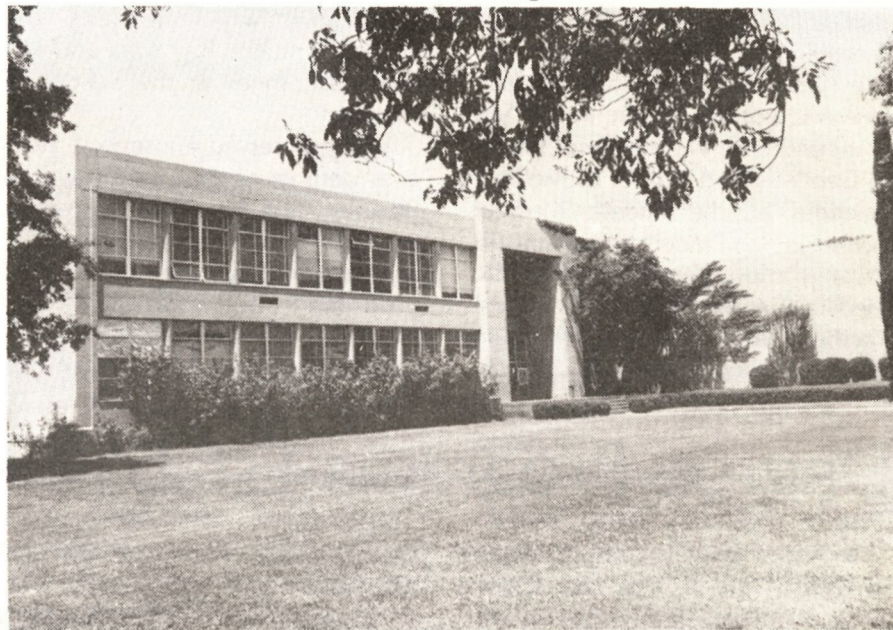

—Enrollment at the university slightly surpassed last fall's record of 5,800 for the university, including 4,200 on the Stockton campus. Officials in the registrar's office report a slight increase to 4,250 on the Stockton campus and university wide total of nearly 5,900 students. The total of 1300 new students is the largest in university history, surpassing last year's record of 1265.

Included among the new students are six National Merit Scholars. The incoming freshmen also have the highest grade point average (3.3 on a scale where 4.0 is a straight A) in the history of the university.

—The School of Education opened the year in the former Delta College library. The two-story building was extensively remodeled during the summer to house the school and Pacific Center For Western Historical Studies.

—The School of Education move represented the first major use of the new 42-acre South Campus site, and this purchase was an historic move for the university as it increased UOP by about the size of the original Stockton campus.

—The University Center will be in total operation for the first full academic year. Last year the building complex opened in sections, and only the housing units were completed by the start of school. The center houses the bookstore, a student-operated grocery store, snack bar, rathskeller, dining room, ASUOP offices, record store, game room, lounge and art gallery, 240-seat theatre and multi-purpose room. The top two floors are the student housing.

Amidst these activities, approximately 100 maintenance personnel, gardeners and maids at the university went on strike during the summer over higher wages and improved fringe benefits. The workers manned picket lines for a week before the issues were resolved shortly before classes began.

In addition to these events, this fall marked the start of three new College of Pacific degree programs: a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree by the Art Department, a Bachelor of Science degree in applied math and physics by the Physics and Math Departments, and a Bachelor of Science degree in chemistry-biology by the Chemistry and Biology Departments. This last degree is expected to be of special interest to pre-med students, and all three were added to keep pace with the changing needs of students.

The move by the School of Education is one of several building projects this fall, and most of the work is related to the expanded campus. Work is now underway in Owen Hall, the former headquarters for the School of Education, to provide additional practice rooms for the Conservatory of Music. The main campus library also will be expanded into the area that formerly housed The Western Historical Center activities.

With the opening of the University Center, the former End Zone and bookstore building is being remodeled to house all the university computer operations, and the former Anderson Dining Hall has been converted to use as a dance studio.

60 YEARS AGO THIS MONTH . . .

As University of the Pacific approaches its 125th anniversary this coming spring, it is interesting to look back into history and see what growth and changes the university and community have undertaken. Below are a few items taken from the "Pacific Weekly":

"For the first time in the history of East Hall, that important dormitory is to be supplied with ALL the modern improvements, including HOT and cold running water. Incredible as it may seem, it is nevertheless a fact that the first steps in the installation of the new system were taken by the dwellers in the Far East last Saturday."

Thomas McLaren Named Assistant to UOP President

Thomas L. McLaren

March of Dimes in recognition of over twenty years' service to that annual campaign. He is a graduate of the University of California and is a member of the Pacific Union Club, The Family and the Berkeley Rotary Club.

Prior to his association with "The Recorder," he was owner-manager of an Oakland medical supplies distributorship. He is married, has three children and resides in Berkeley.

Thomas L. McLaren has been appointed Assistant to the President of the University of the Pacific, to be headquartered in San Francisco, McLaren, long time active in business, city government and public service activities in the Bay Area, comes to his new post from the position of Assistant to the President of The Recorder Printing and Publishing Company in San Francisco. In making the announcement, President McCaffrey said, "The appointment of Tom McLaren constitutes recognition of the growing presence of the University of the Pacific in the San Francisco area. We have our School of Dentistry and School of Medical Sciences at the Pacific Medical Center in San Francisco and have a close relationship with the Pacific Medical Center. Also, we have the Pacific Marine Station at Dillon Beach in Marin County and nearly half of the students on our campuses in Stockton, Sacramento and San Francisco are from the Bay Area."

Dr. McCaffrey further stated, "We feel indeed fortunate that we are able to obtain a person of Tom McLaren's qualifications for this new and important position. His experience in business, government and community service eminently qualify him for his responsibilities with the University."

McLaren will represent the University in the Bay Area and will have his offices at the School of Dentistry.

McLaren served for several years as a Member of the City Council of Berkeley and has been extremely active in public service in medical, educational, youth and social planning organizations and programs. He was named Honorary California State Chairman of the UOP's Department of Religious Studies is hosting its 19th annual Collier Lectures on November 3 and 4. The theme will be "Religion, Revolution and the American Dream," and the program will feature Robert McAfee Brown and Abigail McCarthy as the two main speakers. Dr. Brown is a faculty member in the Department of Religious Studies at Stanford.

Ms. McCarthy is a columnist for "Commonweal."

For further information, please contact Thomas D. Ambrogio, Department of Religious Studies, University of the Pacific, Stockton, California or telephone 209-946-2162.

Danny Flores, a UOP freshman interested in pharmacy and dentistry, biked 650 miles to the Stockton campus this fall from his home in Holtville, near the Mexican border. "I'm concerned about ecology and the environment," he said, "and riding a bike to get to school seemed like a good idea and cheap transportation."

A national conference on student legal rights will be hosted in San Francisco on October 17 through 19 by the Associated Students at University of the Pacific (ASUOP).

Scheduled for the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, the three-day event will be a follow-up to the first conference on the subject that was held in New York City last year.

Among the topics to be covered will be campus legal service centers, student representation in university governance, student services, the Buckley Amendment on the privacy of student records, student lobbying, women's athletics, due process and disciplinary procedure, responsibility of student publications and student fees.

"The conference will emphasize the interaction of students, faculty and administration to insure the rights of students and to find ways of building responsible foundations for purposeful interaction between all participants in the educational process," explained UOP student Stuart Green, coordinator of the conference.

Degree Programs Established at Pacific

Two new interdisciplinary degree programs and a new art degree program have begun this fall at UOP in a move to keep academic course work in stride with the changing needs of society.

Scheduled through College of the Pacific, the main liberal arts college at the university, are a Bachelor of Science degree program in chemistry and biology, a Bachelor of Science degree program in applied mathematics and physics, and a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.

The chemistry-biology program is expected to be of particular interest to students going into medicine.

"We think this strengthens our pre-med program by providing more depth in biology and chemistry," explained Dr. Fuad M. Nahhas, a Biology Department professor who developed the program with Dr. Charles A. Matuszak of the Chemistry Department.

Nahhas said the new program would attract considerable support from the approximate 100 pre-med students at UOP, and that upcoming changes in medical school testing also will make the new degree "very desirable" in the coming years. He added that the program also will be "ideal for students wanting to go into graduate work in such fields as biochemistry and molecular biology."

The B.S. degree in applied math and physics will incorporate some team teaching at the upper division level, which COP officials said is particularly unusual in higher education in these two disciplines. Another unusual feature will be laboratory courses in math that will allow the students to apply mathematical ideas to physical situations.

"In addition to the traditional goal of training students for graduate study," explained Dr. Douglas B. Smith, COP assistant dean, "this program is designed to meet the growing need for people with a solid knowledge of applied mathematics at the bachelor's degree level." He said students may prepare themselves to go directly into industrial and government positions. "Alternatively, they may prepare for graduate work in mathematics or physics, or in a number of disciplines that depend heavily upon applied mathematics, such as geophysics, systems analysis and mathematical ecology," he said.

College officials expect about 15 of the 60 majors in physics and math to enroll in the new program, which is an outgrowth of a January term experience COP students have had at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Ames

Research Center.

A Bachelor of Fine Arts degree has been established by the Art Department to give the students an alternative to the conventional B.A. program in art.

"Students in the new program must take 17 courses in art, compared to 11 to 15 that are required for the B.A.," explained Art Department Chairman Larry Walker, "and they can concentrate among the four emphasis areas of drawing and painting, museology and art history, ceramics and sculpture, and consumer design."

"The art major pursuing the B.A. degree will have the opportunity for general exposure to a good program, while the student preparing for graduate school or seeking a sustained and more sequential art experience than our B.A. program can allow will find the B.F.A. program a viable option," said Walker in noting the main difference between the two.

Along with a few normal changes in faculty this year there have been some new administrative appointments. Edgar W. Case has been named director of non-academic personnel, and Thomas L. McLaren has been named a Bay Area assistant to UOP President Stanley E. McCaffrey, who is now in his fifth year as leader of the university.

Other appointments include James T. Godfrey as director of cooperative education and student development at the School of Engineering, Jose L. Alva as director of the High School Equivalency Program and Kelly K. Kitagawa as director of the Community Involvement Program.

Callison College, which has a study program in Japan, this year has three students from Aoyama Gakuin University in Tokyo as the start of an exchange program.

The School of Education also has become involved in a federal program to train school teachers and administrators in bilingual education.

Watergate Effect On Youngsters Viewed in Class

The attitude of American youngsters toward politics has changed considerably because of Watergate, according to a UOP political scientist who said if the change is permanent it could have harmful effects for the country.

Dr. Lee C. Fennell, associate professor of political science, taught a special summer course on children and politics. One of the topics that received considerable discussion in the class was how Watergate has effected the attitudes of American youth toward the political process.

"Although the findings are still in the preliminary stage, it appears that children's attitudes have changed considerably because of Watergate," Fennell explained. "The few studies that have been conducted so far show elementary school age youngsters are not nearly as positive and idealistic toward politics as they have been in the past."

"For example, a 1962 study showed 39 per cent of the youngsters questioned considered the President in highly favorable terms and only six per cent considered him unfavorable. In 1973 the favorable response was eight per cent and the unfavorable response was 47 per cent.

"The issue this raises is whether this is a temporary or permanent change," he continued. "A permanent change could obviously have harmful effects on the country, as for our political system to function effectively it must have a foundation of support with young people of the country." Fennell said he is "inclined to think the change is temporary, but I am cautious to make a prediction at this time."

The UOP political scientist, whose interest in the general area of political socialization includes the field of children and politics, has taught this class once before, in 1973.

"I think it is very important to understand how and what children learn about politics because as adults what we interpret is very heavily determined by our early experience. To understand the political behavior of adults we must understand their past," he said.

Fennell, a UOP faculty member since 1968, noted that research has shown that children develop a political identification from their parents at an early age (six to eight), and that the home environment is a major factor in the formation of a general political outlook.

"Studies have shown that children from families that are close knit and characterized by warmth and affection are more confident of their political beliefs and tend to be more politically active. On the other hand, children from homes lacking these traits tend to bring a sense of distrust toward society and the people around them. Consequently, these people tend to be less active politically and have less confidence in other people."

Fennell added that these factors pertain to the political process in general and not to identification with specific political parties.

Art Department Gains Grant For Visiting Artist Series

The Art Department at University of the Pacific has received a $2,000 grant from the California Arts Commission toward the funding of a visiting artist series.

Larry Walker, chairman of the Art Department, said the funds will assist the department in bringing three guest artists to the campus during the 1975-76 school year.

"A university with more than 4,000 students and a community with a population exceeding 100,000 should have first hand contact experiences with nationally known figures in the arts," explained Walker.

He noted that the beginning of a visiting artist series occurred last January when the university and Pioneer Museum & Haggin Galleries brought Charles White, Suzanne Jackson and William Pajaud to Stockton.

For the upcoming year Walker hopes to bring three artists—one in the fall, one in January and one in the spring—to Stockton for at least three days so university and community residents can attend lectures, demonstrations, quality exhibitions and other educational experiences.

Dental Student Wins Award

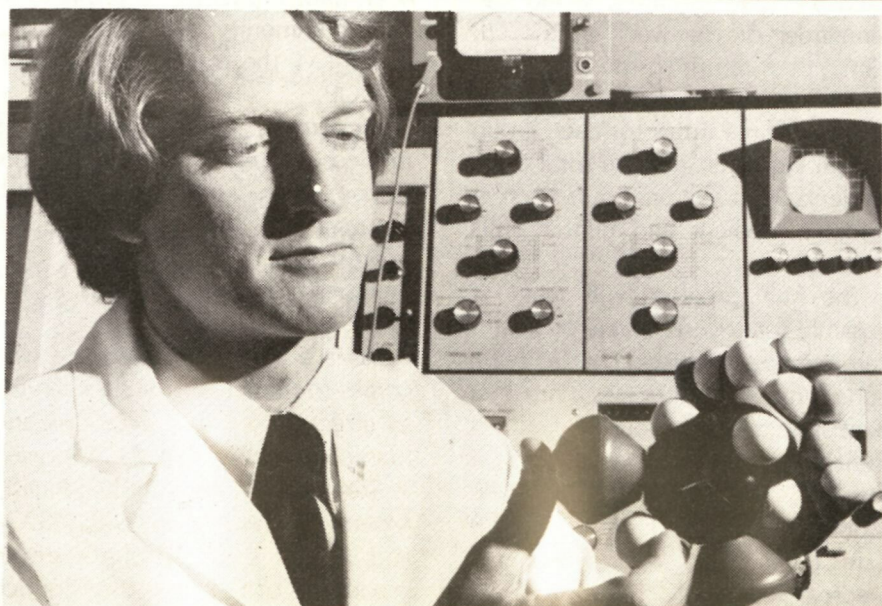

Frederick Wood, a third-year dental student at UOP's School of Dentistry, won first place in the predoctoral category of the Edward H. Hatton Awards competition at the annual General Session of the International Association for Dental Research in London, England last spring.

Wood was one of seven dental students invited to present papers at the prestigious scientific meeting at London's Imperial College of Science and Technology. He was awarded the top prize of $500 for his paper, "The Radioactive Labeling of Proteins with an Iodinated Amidination Reagent." The paper, which was based on his original research, will be published in the basic science journal "Analytical Biochemistry."

Presented annually to outstanding young predoctoral and graduate investigators, the Hatton Awards are supported by a grant from the Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Company.

At left, Wood studies a model of the compound he synthesized.

Names in the News

Kelly K. Kitagawa of Stockton has been named director of the Community Involvement Program (CIP) at UOP. He was previously the CIP director of Supportive Services and succeeds Wilbert "Woody" Smallwood.

CIP enables financially needy students from Stockton to receive a college education at UOP, and the program involves considerable tutorial assistance and counseling.

Gordon D. Schaber, dean of UOP's McGeorge School of Law, has been elected to the 17-member Council of the American Bar Association's Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar. The position carries a four-year term.

The council supervises legal education programs of accredited law schools in the U.S. and accreditation procedures for all law schools.

Dean Schaber has been serving as membership chairman for the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar for the last two years.

He also was recently elected to membership in The Fellows of the American Bar Foundation, the ABA legal research affiliate.

Dr. George H. Lewis, assistant professor of sociology at COP, has edited a book concerning the scientific method in the social sciences, titled "Fist-Fights in the Kitchen." He is also the editor of "Side-Saddle on the Golden Calf," a book on social structure and popular culture in America.

Dr. R. Coke Wood, director of the Pacific Center for Western Historical Studies at UOP, has been elected president of the Conference of California Historical Societies.

The conference is a statewide organization representing some 50 county historical groups in California.

Wood, a history professor at UOP, has been a member of the conference since it was formed in 1953. He served as executive secretary of the organization for 18 years.

Dr. David S. Fries, assistant professor at UOP's School of Pharmacy, has received a $49,438 federal grant from the National Institutes of Health for the 1975-76 school year. The funds provide for continued research involving heroin and morphine.

"The two main goals of our research are to develop a compound that will block or reverse the effects of heroin on the body and develop a drug with the painkilling benefits of morphine without the addiction liability of morphine," explained Fries. He noted that the projects are closely related because heroin is a derivative of morphine.

Dr. Walter S. Zimmermann has been named 1975-76 chairman of the UOP Academic Council, the faculty governance organization at the university.

Zimmermann, associate professor of natural sciences at Pacific's Raymond College, succeeds Dr. M. Lewis Mason as leader of the organization that represents approximately 400 UOP faculty members in all academic affairs of the university.

Elected to the Academic Council Executive Board with Zimmermann were Dr. Erling Erickson of College of Pacific, Dr. Wolfgang Fetsch of the Conservatory of Music, Horace Leake of the School of Education and Dr. Madhukar Chaubal of the School of Pharmacy.

PACIFIC REVIEW—Volume 10, No. 1, October, 1975. Published by the University of the Pacific, 3601 Pacific Ave., Stockton, CA 95211 eight times a year; October through June, except January. Editor: Chris May. Second Class Postage Paid at Stockton, California.

Edgar W. Case of Stockton has been named director of non-academic personnel at UOP.

Case, formerly the owner of a local negotiation and labor consulting firm, has nine years experience as an executive with teachers associations in California and Indiana.

As director of non-academic personnel, he is in charge of employee relations with all university personnel who are not part of the faculty or administration.

Jose L. Alva has been named director of the High School Equivalency Program at UOP.

Alva, previously the associate director of the program, has been affiliated with HEP since 1972. He was hired as a recruiter and advanced to the associate director position in 1973.

Alva is a 1966 graduate of Pittsburg High School who holds a A.A. degree from Diablo Valley College and a B.A. degree from UOP. He went through Pacific as a participant in the first undergraduate Teacher Corps program in the nation.

HEP is a federal program that allows children of migrant and seasonal farm workers to complete their high school education.

Alva replaces Angel Perea, who resigned to pursue graduate studies in Oregon.

Porfirio Cisneros has been named associate director of the program. He holds a B.A. degree from UOP and teaching credentials from California State University, Sacramento.

Dr. Dewey W. Chambers and Dr. Heath W. Lowry, both professors at UOP's School of Education, are the authors of "The Language Arts—A Pragmatic Approach." The book takes a look at the new approach on how youngsters learn how to read, write, listen and speak.

Ross A. Moerman of Stockton has been named director of promotions and community development at KUOP-FM, the public radio station at UOP.

Moerman, whose position is funded through a grant from the Corporation For Public Broadcasting, will be responsible for promotion, fundraising and membership drive activities at the radio station.

He is a 1972 UOP graduate who comes to the university after serving as director of public relations and marketing for Big Valley Cablevision in Stockton. While attending Pacific Moerman was active with KUOP and helped establish the station's broadcasts of Stockton City Council meetings.

HEW Awards Funds for Dental Project

Dental students at UOP's School of Dentistry are being trained in basic medical diagnostic skills as an adjunct to dentistry in remote areas where physicians are not available. This program is being financed by a $117,000 grant awarded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The grant will support a unique project to determine the feasibility of training dental students in selected primary medical diagnostic skills for referral to physicians, and to demonstrate the various roles that may be assumed by the dentist in a primary health care team.

"In many isolated rural communities, the dentist is the only health care provider," pointed out Dr. James Pride, the school's assistant dean for community and extramural dentistry who is the project director. "A vital service would be performed for such a community if the dentist were able to offer certain medical assistance, especially emergency diagnostic and referral services."

The prototype program has been put into effect at the community clinic in Elk, a village of 300 people located on the Mendocino Coast 100 miles north of San Francisco. The clinic, which serves a rural population of 3,000, was established in 1971 by Elk area volunteers who renovated an historic boarding house. UOP dental students and faculty members have provided dental care at the clinic weekends on a volunteer basis for the past four years.

The students will attend lectures at the dental school in San Francisco each Monday morning, spend the remainder of the week at the Elk clinic, then return to the school for one week. This sequence will be repeated three times for each group of four students, giving a total of 48 students 90 academic hours each in primary medical and dental skills training.

The new program will make it possible for several levels of health care to be provided by a team consisting of a physician, a nurse, a dentist-instructor, four advanced dental students and a dental assistant. The clinic will be open Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., with emergency medical service available 24 hours per day, seven days per week.

Athletic Program Begins With Five Fall Sports

With the opening of school in September, UOP's athletic teams begin once more their seasonal endeavors. This fall, UOP will field teams in five sports, three men's and two women's.

As usual, the football team dominates the fall sports picture, with a 12-game schedule that includes five home contests. However, there are some highlights in the "minor" sports' seasons for Tiger fans.

On the football field, the Tigers have 32 lettermen back from last year's 6-5 team. At the same time, UOP boasts more depth than last year, which should help avert the injury problem that plagued that team.

Head Coach Chester Caddas and his staff have been very pleased with the spirit and unity of the team, and that is one of the reasons for their optimism about this season.

"We have a good group of players this year," said Caddas. "They seem to be playing with more intensity and desire than last year's team. I feel that this kind of attitude among the players can be a major factor in a winning season."

Much of the pre-season discussion among the press has been over "who will replace Willard Harrell?" Harrell, the standout running back who graduated last year as the tenth all-time leading rusher in NCAA history, is now making a splash with the Green Bay Packers. In fact, the first time he ever touched the ball in an exhibition game, he ran a punt back 82-yards for a touchdown.

"You don't really replace a runner like Willard," observes one Tiger coach. "You have to construct your offense around the abilities of the players you have on the team."

The direct answer to the Harrell question is Oresner Brown, a 6-2, 195 pound running back who is nearly as fast and a much stronger runner than Harrell. The indirect answer is that UOP will have a more balanced attack this year, with Bruce Gibson and Bob Ferraro at fullback, John Ertman directing the veer option offense at quarterback, and Brown at tailback.

Leading the attack from the line will be All-America candidate Morrison England (6-2, 265) at offensive guard. England was an all-conference selection last year at tackle, and has made the switch with no difficulty.

The men's soccer and water polo teams, which will be playing this fall, are both in extremely tough conferences on a national level. The soccer team, coached by Eddie Araya (a UOP graduate) in his first year, plays in a league with USF and San Jose State, the number one and three ranked teams on the West Coast last year.

The water polo team, coached by Connor Sutton in his third year, is a member of the PCAA, as is the football team. Last year the conference champion won the consolation bracket of the NCAA championships.

The soccer schedule finds UOP playing USF in San Francisco on October 4, while they host California (Oct. 15), Chico State (Oct. 17) and San Jose State (Oct. 25). The water polo team plays host to two-time NCAA titlist California on November 7, and hosts the PCAA

Gifts Support Financial Aids Program

A Dorothy Bernard Craig Memorial Scholarship award has been established at the university by a bequest of approximately $5,500, received last month from the estate of her husband Wallace A. Craig, who died earlier this year.

Dorothy Bernard was a graduate (1916) of the College Park Academy in San Jose (formerly the college preparatory division of the university) and the Conservatory of Music (1918). She later obtained basic and advanced degrees in Chemistry and was head of the Physical Science department at San Francisco State Teachers College for several years. In her retirement years she devoted much time and energy to the activities of the Pacific Alumni Association and the California Association of Chemistry Teachers.

The gift was presented by her son, Wallace A. Craig, Jr., also a Pacific alumnus (MA, 1959) who is an American Red Cross executive in Southern California.

A $5,000 gift in memory of the late Walter Rosenberg was received by the Office of Development last month from his widow, Mrs. Walter Rosenberg, of the San Bernardo Rancho in San Ardo, California. He was a friend and benefactor of the university, and Mrs. Rosenberg has carried on this tradition.

Her gift will be used to provide "Walter Rosenberg Memorial Patron Scholarships" to needy and deserving Pacific students. Patrons of Pacific scholarships are named for donors of $1,000 or more who wish to support the student financial aid program at Pacific.

UOP has also received $10,000 from the estate of Algie K. Wilhoit, who died in 1972 and was a member of a pioneer Stockton family.

Her husband, the late E. L. Wilhoit, represented Stockton banking interests in helping to make it possible for Pacific to move here from San Jose in 1924. Wilhoit was a member of Pacific Board of Trustees for nearly 30 years. He was prominent in local civic affairs and held several executive positions with the bank of Stockton from 1910 to his death in 1961.

The $10,000 will be used to help support the university's extensive financial aid program, which annually assists more than half of the students enrolled at UOP.

Hints for Helping Yourself and Pacific, Too!

by James L. Norvell
Office of Development

The use of "tribute" or "memorial" gifts for honoring an esteemed person, either during or after his/her lifetime, has long been associated with institutions of higher learning. Such gifts perpetuate the name of the person honored and at the same time benefit the institution, its faculty or its students. Gifts may be in the form of real or personal property, cash or securities, and may be for unrestricted purposes, endowment, scholarships, buildings and equipment or for any other institutional purpose.

Tribute gifts are probably less common than memorial, perhaps because most of us don't get around to making this kind of recognition until after the person is gone. Anyone who has been within earshot of the Pacific Stockton campus, however, has been the beneficiary of a most remarkable tribute gift, "The Carillon of Faith," the musical peals of which are heard daily (and nightly) in the campus vicinity. The carillon was the gift of "her admiring husband" in honor of Faith Crummey Davies, an alumna and a Regent of the university. An attractive feature of tribute gifts is that they afford gratification to both the donor and the person honored, and both have the opportunity to see the result of the gift.

Memorial gifts may range from a few dollars to an entire building. One Pacific benefactor has followed the practice of making gifts to the library in memory of departed friends or relatives. Books acquired with such gifts are "plated" with an appropriate seal. Another benefactor recently increased her annual gift to the university to provide for a scholarship award to a Conservatory student in memory of the late Charles Dennis, former dean of the Conservatory.

Examples of other memorial gifts appear in stories elsewhere in the Review. Further information on memorial or tribute gifts may be obtained from the Office of Development.

Alumni Association Plans Special Hawaiian Holiday

Pacific alumni, parents and friends of UOP are invited to take advantage of the special Hawaiian Holiday being arranged by the Pacific Alumni Association to coincide with the UOP-Hawaii football game, Saturday, November 22 and the Thanksgiving holidays the following week.

The package includes round-trip air transportation from San Francisco, ground transportation to and from hotels and the game, three nights lodging each at Waikiki (Holiday Isle Hotel), Maui (Kaana-pali Beach Resort) and Kauai (Coco Palms Resort), a special cocktail party and buffet dinner, tickets to the game and sightseeing. The group

UOP Wins Award for Improvement

University of the Pacific received a $1,000 check from the United States Steel Foundation for having the most improved alumni fund among all major private universities.

Lester C. Tiscornia, UOP's national alumni chairman from St. Joseph, Michigan, accepted the award in Chicago on behalf of his alma mater. The presentation was made by James T. Hosey, vice president and executive director of the U.S. Steel Foundation.

Hosey, in making the award of the Mobius strip trophy and $1,000 check, commended Tiscornia on his leadership in Pacific's fund development during the past six years. It was during this time period that UOP came from a 2.5 per cent participation in the alumni fund to its leadership position.

The growth was capped by a 39 per cent increase in alumni participation during the 1973-74 fiscal year that resulted in the $1,000 award. UOP also was in contention for the award in the two previous years.

Following the announcement that Pacific had won this award, the John A. McCarthy Foundation approved a $15,000 challenge grant as an incentive to Pacific alumni, parents and friends to keep UOP in a leadership position by matching the McCarthy Foundation grant.

With this challenge, and with the $1,000 U.S. Steel Foundation award, the Office of Development conducted a "$31,000 in 31 Days" campaign in August. With help from Alumni Association President Loren Dahl and other volunteers, and with an encouraging response to the Office of Development appeal, a total of $20,770 had been received as of August 31, more than meeting the matching requirement. Surpluses will be applied to the budget balancing requirement for 1974-75. Funds received now (and they are always welcome) are being applied to the 1975-76 gift and grant requirement of over $1 million.

Peter DeCarlo, new manager of Weinstock's in Stockton, and Michelle Wells, UOP development assistant, view the Mobius strip award. DeCarlo was on campus to present the university with a $500 check from Weinstock's in support of the UOP Annual Fund.

Melvin Panizza, COP, and Barbara Ann Johnson, School of Education '67, were married in Morris Chapel on June 14, 1975. Barbara is working for the Port of Stockton and Melvin has his own gardening business. They will reside in Stockton.

Kathryn Tobias, Graduate School, has been with the San Joaquin County Council of Governments. She will be working on her master of arts degree in Urban and Regional Planning at Cornell University.

Vally Schlesinger, Elbert Covell College, is working for the Universidad del Atlantico where she teaches English literature and civilization. She also teaches English as a second language at the Colombian American Center.

Laurence Joseph Wrockloff, School of Education, and Nancy Ann Bower, School of Education '73, were recently married. Larry is employed at the Diagnostic School for handicapped children and Nancy is a substitute teacher. They will make their home in San Bruno.

Kenneth Alan Piper, School of Engineering, received his Master of Science degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Southern California. He is a full-time employee of Hughes Aircraft and has begun work on his master degree in Business Administration. His wife, Theresa (Galvez), School of Engineering '73, is an aerospace engineer at Rockwell.

Thomas E. Bugarin, COP, a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps, completed basic Marine Flight Officer training at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida. He will begin final phases of instruction leading to qualification as a radar intercept officer, bombardier/navigator, airborne electronics warfare operator or tactical air control officer.

Ingrid Rimland, Graduate School, is pursuing doctoral work in Educational Psychology here at the School of Education on a part-time basis.

Les Kayser, Graduate School, and his wife Joyce (Wagner), Graduate School '74, have received their master degrees in Education. Joyce is not the only Pacific alumnus in her family. Her father, Clarence R. Wagner, COP '50, received a Doctor of Divinity degree and served as a Pacific Trustee. Other graduates were her grandmother, grandfather and two cousins.

Frank W. Johnston, COP, and Sally St. Clair, COP '75 were married in June at the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin in San Francisco. They reside in Stockton.

Anne Claire Fagley, Callison College, and Larry Ginesi, who also attended the university, were recently married. Anne will be beginning work on her Master's degree in East Asian History at U.S.C.

Marsha Wame, COP, is a ninth grade algebra teacher at St. Mary's High School in Stockton.

Gregory P. Matzen, Graduate School, has been a keynote speaker at three symposiums (Los Angeles, Fresno, San Francisco) on statewide implementation of the California Pharmaceutical Association Preceptor/Intern Program.

Gretchen Guletz, COP, has begun nursing school at Sacramento State University.

Steven Culbertson, Conservatory of Music, received a Sibelius scholarship for study in Finland. He will spend the 1975-76 school year abroad at the Finnish Academy. The award is made annually to one American student going to Finland.

In Memoriam

James C. Bainbridge, COP '36, died in April, 1975. He attended Pacific on a football scholarship where he was coached by Amos Alonzo Stagg. He served on the Turlock City Council from 1966-1970. He was a supporter of many youth activities and was a member of the Turlock Masonic Lodge, president of the Turlock Rotary Club in 1957-58, a member of Turlock Chamber of Commerce and UOP Quarterback Club.

Milton H. Greenblatt, COP '40, died on September 16, 1974. He was a member of Alpha Kappa Phi Fraternity and played football under Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg. He lived in San Mateo and was a builder, developer and real estate broker for some 20 years.

Kenneth J. MacKenzie, COP '25, died on July 2, 1975. He was the first student to complete registration at the opening of College of Pacific in Stockton on September 26, 1924. While a student here, he was editor of the Pacific Weekly, president of the Y.M.C.A. and was involved in a college quartet. While in retirement he directed a choir at Leisure World in Seal Beach.

Correction: In the May issue of "Tiger Tracks," we referred to Eloine Ralph, COP '49, as "he." However, Eloine is a female and should have been referred to as "she." Also, Christine Anne (Madsen), School of Education '73, was married last January and the correct spelling of her married name is Steigelman.
