of letter to "Dear Daniel" from
"your mother")

Dear Brother

"Who is ee comin
on, and is ee well."

I am brim full of astonishment at the silence which has followed my visit and begin to think that it must be I did not make a good impression. Why does Emma never write to me. I have waited and waited for an answer to my letter but it has never come. I trust however that ere long we shall have something more satisfactory than even a letter.
I wish you could all make us a visit before the fall has passed away.

I return the patterns which Emma lent me and am much obliged. I would have sent them sooner but feared she was not at home.

My love to all.
Joanna.

Dear Daniel

I wrote you
a few lines on your birth day and have not had an answer but believing that a multiplicity of business and many worldly cares have engrossed all of your time I again write you.

I hope you and your family are enjoying good health. As Emma returned from her visit

The weather here has been excessively hot, so hot as to have injured the wheat crop considerably around here.

All of your friends around here are in their usual health.
Before her visit Sarah with her little Gracie spent a week in Portuge visiting all round.

I think David's health is unusually good this summer.
about two weeks ago I had a letter from John he is still in Oakland writing but intends spending two months this fall about the base of the Sierras -

We were surprised to see Mary walk in on Saturday very unexpectedly from Madison and she has returned again this morning she is teaching a class of young ladies oil painting - she is in good health and spirits - I hope her expectations will be realized - Anna is still teaching a very pleasant school Joanna and I are still alone Our health is not good at all and she thinks her eyes do not improve any I should like to know what can be done for her

I have been quite sick for two weeks but have nearly recovered my usual health

Three weeks ago I had a letter from your father he is still very busy making additions to his house and printing it also distributing tracts and he has sent to Bristol for a new supply

We are still anticipate
-ing a visit from you this fall with much pleasure cannot Emma and the baby accompany you

affectionately
