Tonight's Game . . .

SPARTAN, TIGER SERIES HAS LONG HISTORY

Way back in 1895, San Jose State opened a gridiron rivalry with the then College of Pacific, which at the time was located in San Jose. (UOP did not move to Stockton until 1924). That year, the two teams fought to a 0-0 tie and again the next fall the score ended in a deadlock, this time 6-6. From this rather inauspicious start, the rivalry has grown to be one of the outstanding collegiate gridiron series on the West Coast.

Tonight's game marks the 40th renewal of the rivalry. Over the years there has been a host of outstanding players who have competed in these games. The list of these grid greats would be far too long to include here.

San Jose State has won the past three games in this series, which has been marked by long winning streaks. The Spartans went 12 years without a defeat against the Tigers between 1932 and 1946, winning 11 games and tying one. University of Pacific had a seven-game winning streak from 1954 through 1960.

As is true of all long rivalries, past records mean very little when these two teams meet. Last fall, for example, the Spartans entered the game with a 0-6-1 record. Pacific, on the other hand, had a 5-2-0 mark, including a 13-12 upset win over Washington State. San Jose State, however, won the game, 24-22, with Dave Johnson catching two Rand Carter passes for touchdowns and Walt Roberts running back a punt for the third six-pointer.

Tonight, the records are nearly reversed. University of Pacific won its first game of the season last Saturday evening, 14-0, over Brigham Young at Stockton. San Jose State needs this victory to even its season mark at 5-5. The Spartans hold wins over Kansas State (16-0), Washington State (13-8), Oregon (13-7), and Fresno State (56-27).

The two teams have played three common opponents during the year, Fresno State, Idaho and Utah State. Both lost to the Vandals at Moscow (UOP, 6-64, and San Jose State, 12-28) and to the Aggies at Logan (UOP, 14-40, and San Jose State, 0-20). Against the Bulldogs, the Tigers came out on the short end by a 7-29 count, while the Spartans won with their highest single game point production in 14 years.

Tonight's game marks the final Bay Area appearance of John Rohde as Head Coach at the University of Pacific. The popular Rohde, who is in his third year as the head man at the Stockton school, announced his retirement from coaching several weeks ago to enter private business in Sacramento. His successor next year will be Don "Tiny" Campora, presently an assistant with the Tigers.

San Jose State concludes its season with tonight's game. Pacific, however, has one remaining game, December 6th, with the University of Hawaii at Honolulu.

DR. JOHN T. WAHLQUIST
San Jose State College President

Presidential Profile

AN INTEREST IN ATHLETICS

Being president of one of the country's major institutions of higher learning is a time-consuming job. Yet, since taking over at San Jose State, Dr. John T. Wahlquist has always found enough spare moments to be an active supporter of the school's athletic program, both intercollegiate and intramural.

His interest in sports came naturally. There were four boys in his family and all were active participants in athletics. An older brother, Fred, earned all-state football honors as a guard in high school in Utah.

Dr. Wahlquist got his start in athletics as a youngster in his home town of Heber City, Utah. There, each July 24th, the town celebrated Pioneer Day with one of the major activities being a baseball game for youngsters 15-years and younger.

President of San Jose State College since 1952, Dr. John T. Wahlquist is a graduate of the University of Utah. Born in Heber, Utah, in 1899, he received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1930.

Dr. Wahlquist joined the University of Utah faculty in 1924 and became dean of the School of Education there in 1941, a post he held until coming to San Jose State. In addition, he has been a visiting lecturer at the University of Cincinnati, George Washington University, University of Washington, San Francisco State College, University of California at Los Angeles and the University of Southern California.

One of the country's leading authorities on education, he has authored numerous books which are widely used. During his tenure as President of San Jose State, the school has enjoyed the most phenomenal growth in its history.

For three years, he was the catcher for one of the teams.

In high school, he played basketball and, as a freshman at Brigham Young University, he again made the cage team as a guard. During this first year at BYU, Dr. Wahlquist was supporting himself through school by doing janitorial work. He ordinarily did his job of sweeping out the college auditorium early in the morning before classes, but he soon found it difficult to work, play basketball and study. One morning, he arose early to do his job, only to find when he returned to his room, that it was just 3:00 a.m. Soon thereafter, he went to his coach, Eugene Roberts, and explained that he felt it was necessary to give up basketball. Roberts approved the young freshman's request, but continued to take an active interest in his career. He was, until his death, a close personal friend of the President.

When the spring of his freshman year arrived, Dr. Wahlquist found the call of the diamond too great. "I couldn't restrain myself," he remembered. "I borrowed money so that I could play baseball and was a catcher on the team."

Also during this first year at Brigham Young, he won the school's heavyweight boxing championship, weighing 163 pounds at the time.

The next year, Dr. Wahlquist left college to begin teaching and, in 1920, went to Hooper, Utah, where he coached basketball and found time to play on the town team. Following his year at Hooper, he became principal of a 10-teacher school at Plain City, Utah.

His wife of 40 years fondly remembers her husband's interest in youth during this time. "He was always organizing some kind of activity for the youngsters and always had a baseball or basketball team. At Plain City, he started a summer activity program, the first experience these youngsters had had with an organized schedule. He coached two boys' baseball teams and even found time to be a catcher for the town team."

Baseball has always been a favorite love for Dr. Wahlquist. "When we went East for the first time," Mrs. Wahlquist related, "he wanted to see Babe Ruth play and we watched several games during our stay. Later, we spent a very memorable afternoon touring the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown."

Always an active man, Dr. Wahlquist has been an ardent tennis and golf enthusiast. "I used to play tennis quite energetically, until my youngest son, Carl, started beating me." While on the faculty at the University of Utah, he was an avid golfer, but since coming to San Jose State has had to curtail much of this activity because of the demands of his job.

Today, his chief hobbies are hiking and gardening. "Even now," Mrs. Wahlquist says, "he loves to hike whenever we go to the mountains." At home he cares for the many shrubs and fruit trees around the Wahlquist property.

Since assuming his role as President of San Jose State College, Dr. Wahlquist has taken an active interest in the intercollegiate athletic program. He is a frequent visitor at workouts of Spartan athletic teams and attends nearly all home games, those at Stanford, California, Pacific and Fresno and makes at least one other football trip each year. Whenever he is at home on the day of a game, both the family television set and radio will be tuned to sports events.

Shortly after his arrival at San Jose State, the school was faced with the prospect, because of finances, of cutting back the athletic program. However, Dr. Wahlquist wasted no time in indicating to the athletic staff that he wanted the school to continue its growth towards a strong overall intercollegiate program. In addition, he appointed the school's first director of intramurals and, today, is extremely proud of the outstanding intramural program the college maintains.

In 1952, he organized an athletic advisory board, consisting of alumni, faculty and students. This was done because he felt that all these elements should have a say regarding the ultimate direction of the San Jose State program. The final decision, however, is always his own and, to this day it has always been toward maintaining a major athletic program at San Jose State.

In 1958, he helped organize the Spartan Foundation. This group of interested alumni and friends of the college has played a major role in the growth of the extra-curricular program at the school. Today, he is a member of the Foundation's Board of Directors.

Dr. Wahlquist has also been a leader in San Jose State's exploration of possible future membership in the Western Athletic Conference, which includes the University of Arizona, Arizona State University, Brigham Young University, the University of New Mexico, the University of Utah and the University of Wyoming.

In talking about future facilities in San Jose, Dr. Wahlquist envisions a stadium for the city which would seat up to 55,000 persons. "Such a facility," he says, "would be available for the University of Santa Clara, San Jose State and professional teams in football, baseball, track and field, boxing and other spectator sports. Our own Spartan Stadium, because of its elliptical design, does not lend itself to enlargement and, too, it would be much more practical for the city to build a facility that could be utilized by a great number of organizations. Our San Jose State master plan has a spot for a basketball pavilion which would also be used in connection with our regular academic program. This, however, is still in the future.

"At any rate, we should be proud of our entire intercollegiate program at San Jose State and, so far as I am concerned, it will continue to grow."

Charles Douglas (left) and Bill Parker are co-captains of San Jose State's highly successful water polo team which is competing this weekend in the State College Tournament at Los Angeles State. The Spartans finished second in last year's state meet, losing to Long Beach, 12-4.

The San Jose State cross country team, headed by Danny Murphy (above), will be out to defend its NCAA title Monday at East Lansing, Michigan. The squad, which has been undefeated in competition this fall, will also participate Thanksgiving Day in the USTFF, Chicago.

BUICK MOTOR DIVISION

Adventure is a car called Riviera

If you think a car is just for getting from here to there, forget it. The Riviera isn't for you. Buick engineers planned the Riviera in the same uncompromising mood that produces a Gran Turismo racer. They gave it an exceptionally low center of gravity; individually tuned front and rear suspension systems; a 340 h.p. engine. They were out to put some adventure back in driving. And it takes less than ten minutes in the comfort of a Riviera's left front bucket seat to discover how well they succeeded. See the '64 Riviera—a great new international classic car—at your Buick dealer's. Fall in love with it. Make the grand gesture and buy it. What else could make you feel as shamelessly smug or give you as much satisfaction?

AND IT'S A BUICK

The Spartan Foundation . . .

"An Investment Today in Living Dividends"

Five years ago, a group of persons in the San Jose area interested in the future growth of San Jose State College formed the Spartan Foundation. This group, which has had the enthusiastic support of business, industrial and governmental leaders in the greater San Jose area, has been instrumental in the growth of the extra-curricular activities program at the school.

For the past two years, the Foundation has helped sponsor the Honors Convocation here, recognizing those students who have made an outstanding academic record. It also has added the music and athletic programs.

Membership in the Spartan Foundation is not limited to those who have attended the school. Rather, it is open to all who wish to help its continued growth academically and culturally. Contributions or inquiries regarding membership can be made to the Spartan Foundation, Inc., 650 Race Street, San Jose.

MEET UNIVERSITY OF PACIFIC STARS

DON SHACKELFORD

All through the football history of the University of the Pacific, producing outstanding linemen has been a common occurrence.

This season, Don Shackelford is ready to become another member of the Tiger greats joining John Nisby, Gene Cronin, Wayne Hawkins, Carl Kammerer, Bill Striegel, A. D. Williams, Don 'Tiny' Campora and others.

Big Shack stands 6 foot 3 inches and weighs 245 pounds. He is 21 years old and calls Tulare his home.

What makes Don an outstanding lineman? "Speed, agility, strength and desire," says Coach John Rohde. "Don fires himself up before a game . . . he is always ready."

Shackelford has been a starter at UOP since moving up to the varsity in 1961. He has started every game, a rarity at Pacific.

Since his third game as a sophomore the professional scouts have been watching him. They feel he will go high in the draft at the end of this current season.

Shackelford plays equally well on defense and offense but line coach Don Campora feels he is best on offense. Pro scouts have said he is best on defense. Either way "Shack" is invaluable to Pacific's Tight T offense.

His pursuit on defense is matched by his outstanding tackles and he loves to spend Saturdays in the opponents backfield.

Offensively the big tackle likes to move downfield and bowl over defensive backs when he isn't called upon to open a hole for the Tiger backs.

He is a physical education major and hopes to coach after college and work with his father in farming.

BOB SCARDINA

Bob Scardina comes home tonight. The Pacific left guard is finishing up his senior year at UOP and tonight he gets a chance to play before the home folks in his native San Jose where he attended high school (James Lick).

Bob is the man often forgotten about up front on the UOP eleven.

But this forgotten man is on the minds of the coaching staff. This 5-10, 205 pounder is the type of ball-player normally described as a steady performer.

For three seasons Bob has been just that . . . a steady performer. In Pacific's Tight T offense a lot of pressure is exerted on the guards because they frequently have to pull out and lead the ball carriers. This is Bob's forte. His speed gets him to the corner in time to make that key block.

On defense, Bob is a good tackler and loves to get into the opponents backfield on passing plays after jumping into the line from his linebacker's position.

Scardina gives the Tiger's ground attack a lot of room to run with his blocking ability and that is why he is the forgotten man . . . a steady performer.

THIRTEEN SJS SENIORS IN FINAL GAME TONIGHT

Thirteen San Jose State players conclude their collegiate careers with tonight's game. Each one of these seniors has added a great deal to the school's grid program and all will be missed in 1964.

Here is a brief rundown on each of these players at San Jose State:

RAND CARTER — One of collegiate football's outstanding passers, Rand has gained 1,691 yards through the air in the past two years for the Spartans. His best games this fall have been right here in Spartan Stadium against Kansas State and Arizona State. In the former contest, he completed 13 of 17 attempts for 131 yards and one touchdown. This performance earned him "Back of the Week" honors in Northern California. Against Arizona State two weeks ago, he completed 10 of 15 passes for 178 yards and another touchdown. A physical education major, he hopes to teach and coach following graduation.

JERRY COLLETO — At 5-7, Jerry is one of the smallest collegiate players in the country. Yet, for the past two seasons, he has never failed to gain the fancy of crowds wherever the Spartans have played. A smart and quick runner, he has averaged 5.3 yards per carry for the past two years and has been a most valuable replacement for Walt Roberts. His 91-yard punt return for the first touchdown against Oregon earlier this month, established a new San Jose State record.

VINCE DARONE — Told to forget football because of a history of shoulder injuries, Vince ignored this advice and has been one of the key players in the Spartan line this fall. An outstanding fullback in high school, he was moved to guard this season to fill a badly needed gap. During this period, he has been credited with 22 defensive points and blocked a Fresno State punt last week for a third quarter safety. He plans to teach and Coach at the junior high level.

RON DEMONNER — During his career at San Jose State, Ron has added valuable depth at the end position. This fall, he has caught four passes for 81 yards. Following his graduation, he hopes to continue graduate work in his major field of physical education.

PETE DEMOS — Another player who has added valuable depth to the squad during his career with the Spartans, Demos has been plagued by injuries most of this fall. An outstanding defensive halfback, he is a sociology major.

WALT FIRSTBROOK — A first team performer for his three varsity seasons, Walt has alternated between guard and tackle. As a sophomore, he was a tackle. Last year he saw action at both spots and, this season, has been used entirely at the tackle post. He has had 29 defensive credits so far this fall. Walt plans to go into some field of business after graduation.

LARRY HANSEN — Generally rated the best lineman on the team, Larry was among those receiving consideration for All-Northern California "Back of the Year". A tackle last year, he was switched to the guard spot this season where it was felt his speed and mobility could be better used. One of the co-captains for the team, he has had 34 defensive credits this fall. Larry plans a career as a teacher and coach.

CASS JACKSON — Cass has enjoyed an outstanding season this fall, both defensively and offensively. He leads the team in pass receptions with 32 for 356 yards. He is second in pass interceptions with four and, on defense, he is fourth with 48 credits. His defensive play against Oregon drew considerable plaudits from writers and coaches alike. He also plans a career as a teacher of physical education.

JERRY LUDY — One of the top guards on the team, Jerry has been a steady performer during his career with the Spartans and has alternated from time to time on the first unit. He plans to coach following graduation.

TONY MACHUTES — Until this fall, Tony was an end for the Spartans who saw only limited action with the varsity. However, at the start of this campaign he was moved to tackle and has been on the first unit ever since. His highest thrills as a varsity performer came against Washington State when he caught a pass for a touchdown on a tackle eligible play. This was his first reception and his first touchdown as a collegiate performer. Tony plans to teach and coach following graduation.

STEVE MUMMA — One of the top two centers on the team during his career, Steve has added valuable depth at this spot. He has alternated on the first unit and has received credit for 15 tackles this fall. He plans to teach and coach.

TOMMY MYERS — One of the co-captains of this year's team, Tommy has done an outstanding job as a defensive linebacker this fall with 34 defensive credits. He is a guard on offense. A mathematics major, he plans to go into industry after he has finished his work at San Jose.

WALTER ROBERTS — One of the Coast's top halfbacks for the past three years, Walt has a career rushing average of 4.5 yards per carry. In addition, he holds the San Jose State record for the longest run from scrimmage, 92 yards against Arizona State as a sophomore. Last week, he returned a kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown against Fresno State. Any time he gets his hands on the ball he is capable of going all the way for six points. He plans to teach and coach.

"Courage, Competition and Character"

by DR. JOSEPH KAPLAN
Department of Physics, U. C. L. A.
Chairman of International
Geophysical Year

Many years ago when I became actively involved in intercollegiate athletics, I tried hard to clarify in my own mind the role of intercollegiate athletics in the university or college. This was not a casual exercise on my part, because I was involved in the development of a relatively new campus of the University of California, and also because of the increasing pressures on all of us of preparation for World War II, and the increasing emphasis on research and graduate work at a University which was destined to become one of the most remarkably developing institutions in the Nation.

Thus the University climate for athletics was a changing one. There developed much more emphasis than ever before on academic achievements, the Nobel Prize, election to the National Academy of Sciences, creative and research activities. One might have expected that intercollegiate athletics, particularly in football and other highly competitive and much publicized areas, would begin to fade into the background until it was practically a minor activity in the University. In large metropolitan areas, the development of professional football and basketball offered a new threat to the popularity and prosperity of the traditionally crowd-pleasing major collegiate sports.

That this fading out of the picture by intercollegiate athletics has not taken place is in itself a remarkable phenomenon of our times. There are real, deep-seated and meaningful reasons for this, of which I will present the three that appear to me to be the most significant. At the same time I will present reasons why the current emphasis on intercollegiate athletics must not be allowed to diminish.

The three reasons to which I referred earlier are basically related to the three most significant characteristics of the modern intercollegiate athletic picture. These are contained in my three word title, "Courage, Competition and Character". To one who is active in the field of international scientific affairs, and who is more than casually aware of the problems that we face as a nation, these three words summarize the real needs of our time. For this nation to survive as a leader among the free nations of this world, we must have courage, we must be able to compete and we must maintain the best in our national character.

Intercollegiate athletics is an area of activity in which all three of these are intimately involved. Both team sports and individual effort require courage, character and the competitive spirit. The demonstrations that one sees of these important elements in our modern existence are easily understood. The language of athletics has almost universal appeal, thus the lessons to be learned are relatively easily communicated. I like the space program because it provides us with a simple mechanism for bringing the beauties of science to the public. I like intercollegiate athletics because it provides an equally effective and simple technique for bringing to the public the meaningfulness of the competitive spirit, character and courage.

Our space activities demonstrate our willingness to cooperate with other nations. Our emphasis on sports, particularly in our colleges and universities, shows the world that we value the attributes to which my title refers. Taken together, these make for a nation in which other people can have real confidence.

A Spartan Salute

MARCHING BAND GAINING OUTSTANDING REPUTATION

The 13-7 defeat of the University of Oregon at Eugene has been one of the major highlights of this football season for the San Jose State Spartans. Those in attendance at Hayward Field that afternoon, however, did not leave merely talking about the fine game the Spartan footballers had played. There was as much conversation about the outstanding performance of the Spartan Marching Band, which had made the trip through the cooperation of the San Jose State Associated Students. In fact, one newspaper headlined the next day: "Oregon was outbanded, outbatoned and outscored . . ."

Such statements have not been uncommon wherever the band has appeared this fall. The general comment from those who have seen the group has been: "This is as fine a collegiate marching band as one could find anywhere, including the 'Big Ten' where outstanding bands are a commonplace thing."

The all-male Spartan Marching Band consists of 120 pieces. Of this group, 35 are woodwind instruments, 10 percussion and the remainder brass. Qualifications to join the band are simple—one must have an ability to play an instrument and have a knowledge of marching fundamentals. Any boy in school who can meet these requirements is eligible to participate.

In addition, there are several other individuals and groups which are also part of the Marching Band. This includes majorette Maxine Furuike; the Band-Aids, a group of 18 girls, and five boys known as the Lancers.

A junior at San Jose State, Maxine Furuike was the national baton champion in 1959 and is recognized today as one of the outstanding performers in this field in the country. Throughout the year she has been featured in a variety of specialty acts and tonight, she will perform a routine with a burning baton at halftime.

The Band-Aids, whose dance routines rival those of any group appearing professionally, tonight will give their interpretation of a football team in action. Karen McKinney, another junior and a professional dancer, heads the choreography for this group.

The Lancers draw their name from the spears they use in performing their intricate routines. This group is headed by Jerry Dagg, a senior in music.

Needless to say, there are countless hours of practice that go into the band's performance. There are no actual tryouts for the band, but it doesn't take one long to pick out those who will be able to do the things expected of them during a performance. Once the band's membership is chosen then work on the actual performances gets underway. Rehearsals generally run one hour each day. In addition, on the day of the band's show, there is a final dress rehearsal which may be repeated to iron out any last minute problems.

The man who is responsible for the success of the band is Roger Muzzy, an associate professor of music here and the group's director for the past eight years. The personal choice of Dr. John T. Wahlquist, college president, who wanted a band which would be second to none in the country, Muzzy attended the University of Wisconsin where he received both his bachelor's and master's degrees. He has done additional graduate work at the University of Iowa.

Tonight's pre-game show is typical of that which the band has featured throughout the year. Based on a theme of nationalism, it includes precision drills and concludes with the playing of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Today has been Song Girl Day at San Jose State with some 250 girls from high schools throughout the Santa Clara Valley taking part in a clinic. These girls, tonight, join the Spartan Band at halftime for a massive routine to the music of "Mr. Touchdown."

MAXINE FURUIKE

The Spartan Marching Band has appeared at all three San Jose State home games, at the University of California and the University of Oregon this fall. Their efforts and those of other members of the student body in creating spirit have not gone unrecognized by the members of the football team and the football coaching staff. Everyone is truly grateful for the support that has been shown.

The Spartan Marching Band has one more performance scheduled for this fall on Sunday, December 15th. That afternoon, it will perform before a national television audience at halftime of the Green Bay Packer - San Francisco 49er game at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco.

FUTURE SCHEDULES FEATURE NEW OPPONENTS

Tonight's game concludes what many persons have called the toughest football schedule San Jose State has played in its long athletic history. During the past season, the Spartans have met three teams from the Athletic Association of Western Universities (California, Stanford and Washington State), one from the Big Eight (Kansas State), one from the Western Athletic Conference (Arizona State), one from the Big Sky Conference (Idaho), one from the California Collegiate Athletic Association (Fresno State) and three major independents (Oregon, Pacific and Utah State).

The Spartans have now completed football schedules through the next four years and there are only one or two open dates on the 1968-70 schedules. During this period, they will continue to play a representative schedule against many of the West's most outstanding collegiate teams.

Next year, for example, the Spartans will have four home contests against Idaho, Washington State, Fresno State and a newcomer to the schedule, San Diego State. In addition, they will meet three other new opponents (Montana State College at Bozeman, Montana; West Texas State at Canyon, Texas; and Colorado State at Ft. Collins, Colorado). San Diego State has been one of the outstanding teams in the California Collegiate Athletic Association this season and is expected to have another fine team in 1964. Montana State is a member of the new Big Sky Conference and West Texas State and Colorado State both are independents.

Beyond 1964, the Spartans have an increasing number of games scheduled with Rocky Mountain opponents, meeting the University of New Mexico, Texas Western University, Brigham Young University, the University of Wyoming, the University of Arizona and the University of Utah at one time or another between now and 1970.

One highlight of the future schedules will be the opening game rivalry between the Spartans and Stanford at Stanford Stadium. In all but two years between now and 1970, these two teams will start their seasons against one another. Next year, the Spartans and the Indians will tangle in the second contest of the fall and in 1967, the third game.

The University of California returns to the schedule in 1966 to become a regular season opponent. And, of course, one of the major highlights of every year will continue to be the rivalry with tonight's opponent, the University of Pacific.

TWO FULL FLOORS TO SERVE YOU

Three ways to quarterback the most important drive of the day —your drive home

1. Don't buck the line of traffic, stay in it. Fancy open field running doesn't pay on the highway.
2. When dusk falls and your visibility is limited, slow down and turn on your lights. What you can't see can hurt you.
3. Don't try to beat the clock by speeding. Remember, when time runs out on the highway, everybody loses.
