

12-1-1983

Pacific Review Nov/Dec 1983

Pacific Alumni Association

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/pacific-review>

Part of the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation

Pacific Alumni Association, "Pacific Review Nov/Dec 1983" (1983). Pacific Magazine and Pacific Review. 316.

<https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/pacific-review/316>

This Newsletter is brought to you for free and open access by the Publications at Scholarly Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Pacific Magazine and Pacific Review by an authorized administrator of Scholarly Commons. For more information, please contact mgibney@pacific.edu.

Pacific Review

Volume 71, Number 3

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC

NOV/DEC 1983

Inside:

community activist,
concerned parents,
creative alumni programs,
and more.

UOP Today

In This Issue:

UOP Today/2
Busy Alumni/5
Water Polo/5
Marilyn Park/6
Questions About Wills/7
Alumni Awards/8
Stagg Honorees/9
Reflections/9
Parents Get Involved/10
Pacific Profiles/12
Tiger Tracks/13
Homecoming/16

On The Cover: We caught the Pacific Singers during a magnificent rendition of Silent Night as they rehearsed for their December 2nd Christmas concert. This chorus, conducted by Dr. William Dehning, comprises half the A Cappella Choir.

Parents:

If this issue is addressed to a son or daughter who no longer maintains an address at your home, please send the correct address to:

Central Records
Third Floor, Burns Tower
University of the Pacific
Stockton, CA 95211

Pacific Review

Volume 71, Number 3, Nov/Dec 1983

Richard Doty
Editor

Doyle Minden
Staff Writer

Kim Gainza
Thomas W. Mooney, II
Contributors

Bob Berryman
Rick Cabral
Photographers

Pamela Y. Mattox
Production Manager

Leslie D. Houbein
Production Assistant

The Pacific Review is published by the University of the Pacific, second-class postage paid Stockton, California 95211, six times a year, every two months, August through July. It is designed to inform readers about the University, its people and its events. Pacific Review (ISSN 0164-9426).

Regional Meetings Planned

A series of 16 informational meetings for prospective UOP students and their parents are scheduled for January and early February by the Admissions Office.

Alumni, parents of current students and friends are invited to participate in meetings in their area. All meetings are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. unless otherwise noted.

All 16 will include a newly produced slide show on the academic programs of the University and presentations by admissions representatives, financial aid personnel, the faculty and other University officials. Refreshments will be served. Advance reservations may be made by contacting the Office of Admissions, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95211.

Following are the dates, regions invited and meeting locations:

January 10, Tuesday, Marin County, Holiday Inn, San Rafael; January 11, Wednesday, Sacramento, Red Lion Motor Inn; January 12, Thursday, San Jose, LeBaron Hotel; January 15, Sunday, 3:00 p.m., Denver, Denver Marriott Hotel; January 17, Tuesday, San Francisco, Airport Hilton; January 18, Wednesday, Concord, Sheraton Inn-Airport, and January 19, Thursday, Oakland, Claremont Resort Hotel.

Also, January 23, Monday, Fresno, Piccadilly Inn; January 24, Tuesday, Bakersfield, Hill House; January 25, Wednesday, Santa Barbara, Santa Barbara Biltmore; January 26, Thursday, Monterey, Hilton Inn Resort; January 29, Sunday, 3:00 p.m., San Diego, Hotel del Coronado; January 30, Monday, Anaheim, Hilton at the Park; January 31, Tuesday, Pasadena, Huntington-Sheraton Hotel; February 1, Wednesday, Los Angeles, Marriott Hotel at Los Angeles International Airport, and February 7, Honolulu, Ala Moana Hotel.

Model OAS Conference Held

The crisis in Central America was foremost in the minds of delegates to the 13th Annual Organization of American States (OAS) Model Conference that was held on campus Nov. 16.

The delegates discussed the situation in Grenada and civil unrest in Nicaragua, along with the influx of Marxist teachings in Central America, as they tried to come up with an agreement for peace in this embroiled region of the world.

Students at UOP's Spanish-speaking Elbert Covell College, along with other members of the University community, represented more than 20 countries of the Western Hemisphere as they discussed the conference theme of "The Crisis in Central America."

In keeping with the spirit of OAS, the debates were in Spanish and English. Representatives of several foreign consulates were invited to observe the proceedings.

Proposals generated at the Model OAS Assembly were sent to the actual OAS in Washington, D.C., said Dr. Larry Pippin, a political science professor and faculty adviser to the event.

Seaport Study Involves Professors

What are the factors that determine how prices are set at the Port of Stockton?

This is one of the questions that will be asked by three University faculty members who have received a $30,000 grant that will focus on the theory and practice of pricing seaport services.

Dr. Willard T. Price, Dr. Donald W. Bryan and Peter B. Kenyon of the School of Business and Public Administration received the one-year funding from the U.S. Department of Commerce's SEAGRANT Program through the Institute of Marine and Coastal Studies at USC.

Price, who has been involved in seaport studies for five years, said a main purpose of the project will be how charges are determined at several West Coast seaports, including the Port of Stockton, and how these fees compare with pricing theories for publicly operated ports.

Price, whose field encompasses public enterprise management, said the research also will deal with the role of seaport associations in the pricing structure at various ports and with the establishment of federal user fees to recover the costs of federal expenditures allocated to ports for projects like channel dredging.

"The reason for this project is to determine public policy options in seaport management practices," said Price, who is in charge of the grant work at UOP.

Building Named For Clifford Hand

North Hall, one of the first buildings constructed on the Stockton campus of the University, is being renamed the Clifford J. Hand Memorial Hall in honor of the late UOP Academic Vice President.

The Board of Regents voted to name the building in honor of Hand, who served at Pacific as a professor and administrator for 26 years before his death from cancer on Sept. 27.

North Hall was one of the original residence halls, but in recent years it has housed academic programs. The Regents noted that with Hand's concern for academics at the University, it would be appropriate to name a facility in his honor that is used for this purpose. The building's original name was derived from its location on campus in relation to other facilities.

In announcing the name change, Dr. Stanley E. McCaffrey, UOP president, said: "This recognition of Cliff Hand by the University is most appropriate in providing a significant permanent memorial of his quarter of a century contribution to the progress of Pacific and the enrichment of lives of countless students, faculty and colleagues. We are very pleased that the Regents have approved this rare but richly deserved tribute to the memory of a late dear friend and colleague."

Colliver Lectures

"Search For Unity: World Council of Churches And The Local Church" was the theme for the Colliver Lectures on Nov. 20-21 at the University.

Dr. Michael Kinnamon, a visiting professor of theology and literature at the Christian Theological Seminary in Indianapolis, Indiana and former executive secretary, Faith and Order, World Council of Churches, was the main speaker at the 27th annual event.

The program for both lay persons and the clergy included workshops dealing with such issues as economic justice, ecumenism and the local church, peace and justice, racism, women's issues, human rights: unifier or divider, and baptism, eucharist, ministry.

In addition to Kinnamon, other guest speakers included Richard Litherland, pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church in Stockton, Scott Kennedy of the Resource Center for Nonviolence in Santa Cruz, and Barbara Brown Zikmund, dean of the Pacific School of Religion.

Students Learn Economics Of Agriculture

Learning about ground water contamination and working with the farmers' market that sells fresh produce in Stockton are just two of the activities involving a group of University students this semester.

They are learning about the farming business in a course on agricultural economics.

Dr. W.H. Segur, an economics professor with 15 years of experience in the agricultural community, is directing the course for upper division economics majors.

In addition to the regular classroom lectures and tests, the students listen to a variety of guest speakers and are engaged in various research assignments.

The guest speakers have included Don Villarejo, executive director of the California Institute For Rural Studies; Robert Griffin, vice president of agricultural finance at Security Pacific Bank; Mack Warner, director of the Rural Economic Alternatives Project that is the local farmers' market; and Elizabeth Martin, director of the California Agrarian Action Project.

Four of the students are doing research with Martin to examine the ground water contamination that is caused by chemical spraying.

"We are attempting to take economic theory and apply it to agriculture situations on the national and local level," said Segur, who holds his doctorate in agricultural economics from the University of California at Davis. He said several issues facing agriculture in California are being reviewed in the class, and these include international trade, labor, water, and land usage.

One of the students in the class, Cheryl Morgan, is from a family that operates a 2,000 acre ranch near Concord. She has a career interest in agricultural law. "I'm learning a lot about agricultural financing and the way different commodities are marketed," she said.

Morgan, a senior from Clayton, said she has discussed many class issues with her family, and she feels many of the guest speakers have added a great deal to the course.

Volleyball Regionals At UOP

The women's volleyball team at UOP will have the home court advantage in the NCAA Northwest Regional playoffs, as the Dec. 10-11 tournament will be held in the Spanos Center.

The Tigers of Coach Terry Liskevych are currently ranked second in the nation with a record of 32-2. Their only losses were on the road at Stanford and to top ranked Hawaii in the finals of the UOP Wendy's Classic.

Already this season the UOP team has won the NorPac League title with an undefeated mark of 9-0, the NorPac championship tournament at UOP, and, for the second consecutive year, the UCLA National Invitational Tournament.

Liskevych has stated this year's team is the best he has coached at UOP, and he is optimistic that the Tigers can reach the NCAA finals at the University of Kentucky on Dec. 17-19.

Leading the Tigers this year have been setter Jan Saunders and hitters Julie Maginot, Therese Boyle, Eileen Dempster, Lisa Franco and Robin Burns. Dempster was voted the Most Valuable Player at the UCLA Tournament, where she, Boyle and Saunders were named to the All-Tournament Team. At Wendy's, Saunders, Dempster and Maginot were All-Tournament. At the NorPac Tournament, Maginot was MVP and Dempster and Saunders were All-Tournament selections.

Law School Plans Summer Program In Europe

The 11th Annual International Law program in Europe is planned for next summer by the University's McGeorge School of Law in Sacramento.

Geared for law school students, the program also allows participation as auditors by members of the bench and bar. Students can earn up to five units of credit.

Three programs are planned, and they will be located in Scotland, Austria and Hungary. The Edinburgh Institute in International Business Transactions will be July 1-22, the Salzburg Institute in International Legal Studies will be July 8-28 and the Budapest-Vienna Institute in East-West Law and Relations is planned for July 25 - Aug. 4.

All of the programs combine academic courses in comparative and international law with opportunities for observing European society, culture and legal systems.

Mock Political Convention

A mock political convention for high school students is planned for Friday, Dec. 2, at the University.

Approximately 120 high school juniors and seniors from throughout Northern California are expected to attend the event. Conventions for the Democrats and Republicans are planned to include nominees for President and discussion of two issues, educational reform and the situation in Latin America.

Purpose of the event is to interest the participants in the workings of government. Outstanding delegates and delegations will receive certificates of excellence.

The UOP Political Science Department is sponsoring the convention, with Dr. Jerry B. Briscoe as the faculty coordinator and Karin Shaw of Sacramento, a senior majoring in international relations, serving as the student coordinator.

Success Noted In KUOP Fund Drive

The relocation of the station's transmitter is already paying dividends for KUOP-FM, the public radio station owned and operated by the University.

With an expanded base of listeners, the station surpassed its $30,000 goal in a two-week fund drive in October.

Station Manager Richard Terry reported that $33,944 was pledged from 1,048 donors during the October campaign. "We are elated over the success of this effort but, at the same time, we want our listeners to realize that their support is vital to KUOP operations because of reductions in our funding from other sources," said Terry.

The KUOP official said pledges in the drive came from listeners in 20 different counties, with the largest number being from residents of San Joaquin and Stanislaus Counties. He said most of the donations were in the $25 to $50 range, with occasional gifts of $100 and more.

Terry noted that since KUOP has relocated its transmitter to Mt. Oso near Patterson, the expanded listening audience has resulted in major increases in on-the-air fund raising campaigns. "Six months ago we raised $28,000, and before the transmitter move we had goals in the $12,000 range," he said.

KUOP, located at 91.3 on the FM dial, is an affiliate of the National Public Radio network.

Opera Programs At UOP

A power failure forced cancellation of the opening night of two dramatic opera productions on campus last month. Dido and Aeneas and The Outcasts of Poker Flat, were presented Nov. 18-20 in the Long Theatre.

The Drama Department and Conservatory of Music combined forces for the major production, which opened a day late due to a power failure that affected the South Campus.

Dr. Sy M. Kahn of the Drama Department directed the production, with George L. Buckbee of the Conservatory faculty as the music director.

Kirby Warren

Tiger Runner Breaks Dick Bass Record

Running back Kirby Warren was one of the few bright spots for the Tiger football team this year. Although first year coach Bob Cope and the players suffered through a three win and nine loss season, Warren broke the single season rushing record.

Dick Bass had the old mark of 1,361 yards in 1958, and Warren broke it with a total of 1,423 yards.

Warren, a senior from Las Vegas, recorded 148 yards in the last game of the season, a 31-21 loss at Hawaii, to earn a place in the Tiger record book. Up until this season, Warren was hampered by injuries and gained little notice, even though he was All-State and an honorable mention All-American in high school.

This year for the Tigers he was a workhorse back, frequently carrying the ball 25 to 30 times per game. Warren had seven games of more than 100 yards, including contests with 191 yards against Fresno State and 177 yards against Utah State. He was among the top ten in the nation in rushing and is expected to be among the first picks in the pro football draft.

International Dinner

The annual International Dinner staged by the University International Students Association attracted more than 100 people on Nov. 12.

The event featured entertainment, in addition to authentic food prepared by students from such countries as Chile, Mexico, Norway, Indonesia, Japan and China.

Chaplain Views Campus Ministry

Talk with the Rev. Gary B. Putnam for only a few minutes and you will understand why he chose the campus ministry for a career field.

"The big payoffs are here," he says in reference to the college years, "because the students are making major decisions about their life."

The campus minister cited selecting a spouse, developing a self identity and choosing a career field as examples of the key decisions facing many college students.

Dr. Putnam, 43, was named University Chaplain in August. He came here after 11 years as a campus minister and Wesley Foundation Director at Iowa State University.

"I have a chance to deal with life in its most intense forms and find college students to be pretty open at this stage of their life," explains Putnam. A major responsibility he feels toward his position is helping the students deal with the four life questions of who am I, what shall I do with my life, with whom shall I do it, and where is there any meaning in life. "Collegiate years are when you deal most intently with these four questions. I feel the Christian faith is relevant to life. If it is, it has to deal with these questions," he says.

Putnam, whose background includes United Methodist Church service outside of a campus setting, believes universities are very prominent in society because of their size and impact. "Societal issues are discussed on a regular basis, the future leaders of the country are there, and it is really a place to explore and search," he says in viewing the campus scene.

The minister sees his role as serving as a pastor in the broadest interpretation of that word for all segments of the University community. "In addition to leading worship services (regular Sunday services in Morris Chapel are planned during the academic year), a pastor is a person who cares about people's life experiences, which relates to the four questions. Also, students, faculty, administrators and others place an incredible amount of trust in a campus minister and come to you, I feel, not because they want answers but because they don't want to feel alone. The deepest fear of humanity is being alone; that's when people despair."

The campus minister, whose position was funded after a successful endowment fund drive by UOP and the United Methodist Church, said Pacific students seem more cosmopolitan or international than those he dealt with in Iowa. "But college students are college students. They are still trying to figure out what they want to do with their life and how they relate to the opposite sex."

A Gift For All Year

the

PACIFIC HISTORIAN

A gift for yourself first? The Pacific Historian, published four times a year since 1957 by the University of the Pacific, bridges the gap between scholarly research and the interests of western people who take pride in their heritage and surroundings. Eye catching illustrations add impact to the wide range of informative, thought provoking articles on the Pacific Slope of North America.

Interested? Complete the coupon below for a FREE SAMPLE COPY plus a bonus FREE BOOK. Already subscribe? Send a GIFT SUBSCRIPTION. It's a gift that keeps on giving. And extend your own subscription now, also at the limited introductory rate. Using the coupon below will allow you the introductory rate for renewals and gift subscriptions. Regular rate: $15 per year.

☐ Enroll me as a new subscriber and send my first issue and free book. If I am not pleased with my first issue, I will notify the editor within 15 days of its receipt for a full refund, but keep my free book.

☐ $12 check enclosed

☐ Bill me

☐ Send me a free sample copy of the PACIFIC HISTORIAN. If I like it and enter a subscription, I will also receive a free book.

☐ Extend my present subscription. I enclose payment:

☐ One year, $12

☐ Two years, $23

☐ Three years, $33

☐ Send a one-year gift subscription to the person(s) listed on a separate enclosed sheet. Notify them of the gifts in my name. (List full names and addresses.)

My name _____

Address _____

City/State/Zip _____

MUST have Zip Code

Special instructions for gift notice: _____

Mail to: The PACIFIC HISTORIAN, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95211.

Alumni In Action

Alumni clubs, continuing education programs, both on and off campus, and several travel opportunities are included in a round-up of alumni events.

Recently formed clubs have been meeting during the past several months, and plans are being made for more events during the spring. Following is a report from the various clubs:

LOS ANGELES - Ted Tiss '54 is becoming an active correspondent for the Los Angeles Pacific Club. He reports a gathering of about 250 alumni prior to the UOP-Fullerton game this fall, with a pre-game tailgate party hosted by Hal and Sally Lane (their son, Brad, is a junior defensive back for the Tigers). Steve Beck '80 did a brisk business selling LA Pacific Club T-shirts. The spirit was dampened only slightly by a losing score.

Mark Rogo '75 chaired another meeting of the club in November at the Comedy Store in Los Angeles, and the final meeting of 1983 was held on Dec. 3.

Other events are planned for the spring, and those interested in attending should contact Frank or Francis Jimenez, 11351 Flanders Road, LaCanada, CA 91011 (213) 790-7291. Also, Tiss can be contacted at his business address, Tobin & Associates, 14411 Hamlin Street, Van Nuys, CA 91401.

SOUTH BAY - Jan Lassagne '53 reports a successful gathering at Villa Felice with more than 125 persons attending prior to a jazz concert at Paul Masson Winery.

Another gathering was held in November with the group attending the UOP-Stanford volleyball match which, incidently, was the first defeat for the nationally ranked Tigers.

Jan says there will be a late February or early March wine tasting event featuring UOP faculty member Roger Barnett, a popular lecturer on wines. She is looking for a good location "with a view in San Jose" as a location for the event. Call her at (408) 446-0597 or (408) 739-3285 if you have any suggestions or just want to attend.

STANISLAUS - Dawn Mensinger says about 100 alumni attended a Dave Brubeck '42 concert and a reception following the event at the River Oaks Golf Club. Other events are in the planning stages for the spring; those interested should contact Dawn at (209) 869-4471.

HAWAII - Helen Brinkmann '53 reports that the Hawaii Pacific Club got together for a tailgate party prior to the UOP-Hawaii football game on Nov. 19. This was preceded by "Pupu Party" and election of officers on Nov. 17. Election results were not available for this issue of the Review.

Information on other activities can be obtained by contacting Helen at 1760 So. Beretania 15B, Honolulu, HI 96826.

FRESNO - Plans call for the Fresno group to hold two major events a year, one in the spring and another in the fall according to Shirley McConnell '50. Roger Barnett of the UOP faculty was featured at a gathering in October. Dr. Elliot Kline, dean of the School of Business and Public Administration, spoke at a November meeting. Persons interested in becoming involved in future events should contact Mr. or Mrs. Kirk Sakamoto at (805) 832-7429.

SAN FRANCISCO PENINSULA - A joint meeting with the South Bay group last fall was quite successful, according to Dale and Bob Black '73. A meeting was scheduled for early December to plan spring events, in addition to a March 11 program with a speaker from the School of Business and Public Administration. Persons interested should contact the Blacks at (415) 573-7165 or Bob Stetson '73 at (415) 857-0944.

OTHER ALUMNI ACTIVITIES

Following are other events that have been scheduled either by alumni or specifically for alumni. Details on these programs can be obtained from the Office of Lifelong Learning, UOP, Stockton, CA 95211, (209) 946-2424.

BUSINESS COURSES - Quality Circles, an introduction on how to make them work in your organization, Feb. 15 and 16, 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.;

Training and Leading Quality Circles, Part II of the Quality Circle Series, March 23 and 30, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.;

Pre-supervisory Development Program: Modular I, Leadership and Supervisory Role, May 4, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Modular II, Motivation and Productivity, March 23, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.;

Measuring Employee Performance, a seminar designed for persons who must give performance appraisals, April 5 and 6, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.;

Effective Time Management for Executive Secretaries and Administrative Assistants, April 25 and 26, 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

All courses are taught by professors of the School of Business and Public Administration and are offered on the Stockton campus.

TODAY'S WORLD - A special series for alumni and the community will be presented by the UOP Office of Lifelong Learning. Each program in the series will present a topic of current interest. The day-long Wednesday events begin with continental breakfast at 8:30 a.m., include lunch and an afternoon social hour. Feb. 15: Computers in Today's World, Dr. Roy Childs and Dr. Harvey Williams. March 21: Exploring the Mid-East Crisis, Dr. Jerry Hewitt. April 18: Latin America and the U.S., Dr. Harvey Williams. May 16: A cruise on the Delta. June 20: Stockton's Immigrants, Dr. Sally Miller. July 18: Drugs and the Senior Citizen, faculty from the School of Pharmacy. Aug. 15: Media in Today's Society, representatives from print media and broadcasting. Sept. 19: Gray Matters Revisited, exploring autobiographical writing. Oct. 17: Computers, Second Time Around, Dr. Childs and Dr. Williams. The cost is $115 for the entire series; $75 for five sessions; $20 per session. For reservations contact the Office of Lifelong Learning.

Water Polo Makes A Splash

The water polo team of UOP Coach Dennis Nugent is in an unenviable position.

They have one of the best teams in the school history, are rated among the top ten in America, have two All-America candidates and play their home games in the Olympic size Kjeldsen Pool on campus.

That's the good news.

Now the bad news.

They are only the sixth or seventh best team in California, probably won't finish higher than third in the PCAA, and, like all the non-revenue sports at UOP, have a limited budget support base.

Despite these obstacles, Nugent and team captain Mike Ennis don't reflect pessimism. Rather, they possess a realistic view of the purpose of college athletics and enjoyment the sport presents.

"The problem we have in terms of competition is that all the best water polo teams in the country are located in California," explains Nugent. He said UC Berkeley is probably number one, with UCLA, USC, Cal State Long Beach and UC Irvine completing the consensus best five. "There hasn't been a non-California champion since the NCAA started a water polo tournament in 1970," adds Nugent.

The Tigers, whose record going in the PCAA season ending tournament was 13-12, have played several matches against these powerhouse teams. They have, according to Nugent, only an "outside chance" of getting to the NCAA tournament.

"We feel that you have to play the best to be the best," adds Nugent, who says this year's team has the most talent of any he has coached during his four years at UOP.

The Tigers' national ranking this season has varied from fifth to eighth. They have played 10 games against the top five teams in the nation. Although UOP has won only five, several losses have been by one or two points.

"Many of the games have been close," explains Nugent, "and it's exciting to see this caliber of play. Water polo is a fast moving sport and fun to watch for an educated spectator. A lot of the action is similar to basketball, with screens, shifting defenses and fast breaks."

Continued on page 11

Continued on page 12

Marilyn Park In Overdrive

Marilyn Earley Park, COP '58, owns and manages her own interior design and space planning company, Design Showroom, in Sacramento. But this month she's dabbling in a little exterior design work.

It seems the K Street Mall, a busy shopping area in downtown Sacramento, needed a little sprucing up for the holidays. Marilyn, with a reputation for reliability sprinkled liberally with dogged determination, took the assignment. "It was an interesting challenge," she says. "After all, good design is good design."

This month, a 40-foot evergreen tree, sporting 65 24-inch-in-diameter manzanita Christmas balls, 5,375 twinkling lights and dozens of red and gold plaid bows, stands as Marilyn's answer to the K Street blues.

The tree serves as a microcosm of Marilyn's life. Stepping out of established boundaries (or refusing to establish them in the first place), she reaches out of her immediate realm to meet a challenge.

Marilyn grew up in San Francisco, attended Stockton's St. Mary's High School and Stockton Junior (now San Joaquin Delta) College. Having earned a debate scholarship to College of the Pacific, she enrolled her junior year and majored in English with a speech minor. Here, she blossomed under the tutelage of debate coach Paul Winters, history professor Malcolm Moule and English teacher Clifford Hand, among others. "Close faculty relationships left an indelible mark on my current life," she says, "and later, when I was in a position to help women get into business or help people do something new and different, I remembered that."

At Pacific, Marilyn took advantage of leadership opportunities in student government. She belonged to Epsilon Lambda Sigma (now Delta Gamma) sorority and traveled with the debate team.

Following graduation, Marilyn moved to Sacramento for a management trainee position with Hales Department Store. Six months later she was head of personnel for the 400-employee store, a result, she admits, of being in the right place at the right time. These early experiences proved vital to later, greater tasks in organizational and business management.

Marilyn married Dean Park, an engineer, and had children in a time when few young mothers worked. Still, volunteer activities provided an out, and she joined her first charity effort when her eldest was just a few months old. For 12 years, before returning to full time work, she gave time to the United Cerebral Palsy Association of California, the Children's Home Guild, the Sacramento Blind Society, Delta Gamma, and the many and varied activities (ranging from Girl Scouts to Little League) deemed essential by four children. In short, she did "just about anything anybody asked me to do."

Busy Schedule For This Alumna

Marilyn Park has combined a successful business in interior design with a busy life of community involvement.

Marilyn re-entered the work force with a job at a furniture store. Later, an interest in interior design led her to open a retail showroom, from which her present company evolved. Today, fifty percent of Marilyn Park and Company's clients are commercial, but they get the same personal considerations merited clients designing a home.

With two offspring in college and two entering next fall, Marilyn owns her own business, is vice president for the Sacramento Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce, on the executive board of the Private Industry Council, on the board of directors for Motherlode Savings and Loan, and involved with the Community Interaction Program.

In 17 years with the Cerebral Palsy Association she has worked her way through local and state-level offices to hold the district vice presidency for the western states. "Twenty years ago, all we did was provide babysitting services to mothers of handicapped children," she says. "Today it's exciting to see how much is happening. Some of those same children are now in the mainstream of society."

This year the Association named her Humanitarian of the Year and then nominated her for the Woman of the Year award given by the Soroptimists for outstanding community service. She received the award. The honor, however, in which Marilyn takes most pride, is her 1981 Distinguished Businesswoman of the Year from the Sacramento Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce.

"The award recognizes both sides of my life," she says. "I think you can do volunteer work and still run a successful business and balance them."

On the judging team for this year's Distinguished Businesswoman award she's pleased to see that the "women in non-traditional fields" category, which drew just two nominations four years ago, now has 19. "If there's one thing I've told my daughters," she says, "it's that there is no limit to what you can do with your education."

Busy, but fulfilled with the demands of family life, career and community involvement, a non-traditional profile has kept Marilyn Park in Sacramento's mainstream. Will she ever slow down? She thinks not. "If I retired from this, there'd always be something else. I can't see myself not doing something to contribute to the community," she says. "It's really a selfish attitude; you get out of it twice as much as you put in."

Lastly, Marilyn keeps her career alternatives open. She's already received two calls from people who want to see if she's in the Christmas tree decorating business. "Well," she says, "you never know..."

—P.Y.M.

Increase Your Will Power

Bequests from alumni and friends are important to the future of Pacific, but most people know very little about the role of wills in relation to their university.

During the past five years the Office of Development has provided informational mailings about preparation of wills to alumni in classes from 1935 through 1962. The office now provides this information to each class of alums in their 20th year after graduation from Pacific. As a result of this, we have had much correspondence concerning wills, their importance and their preparation. These questions are typical of those received from Pacific alumni and friends.

My husband and I have placed everything we own in joint tenancy. Do we need a will?

Every adult needs a will because joint tenancy cannot provide for all contingencies. Do you own your home, furnishings and equipment, your colorful collection of etchings, the Chriscraft runabout, thoroughbred horses, and that beautiful antique Porsche in joint tenancy? What happens if you both perish in a common disaster? A properly drawn will is a valuable document for everyone.

My husband has a will. Do I need one too?

A married woman needs a will even if she has little or no property in her own name. Should her husband die first and leave everything to her, and she should die without a will, all that she would have inherited would be distributed by the laws of intestacy in the State of California.

My wife and I have wills and want to know the best place to keep them.

Your attorney should keep the original signed copy, and you ought to keep a photocopy or carbon copy in your safe deposit box. Some people also like to keep another copy at home in the family desk. Of course, it is vital that you share the information about the location of the original will with your adult children, and with key members of the family if you do not have children.

Can I, as a UOP alum, perpetuate my gift to the Annual Pacific Fund by using my will?

Yes, you can! Have your attorney add a codicil to your will bequeathing a sum of say $5,000 to UOP. It could go like this: "I give to University of the Pacific of Stockton, California, the sum of $5,000 to be known as the Jane Browne Wight Memorial Fund. This fund may be invested with other funds of the University that are administered by the Board of Regents. The net income of the fund is to be used to perpetuate the annual Jane Browne Wight gift to the Annual Pacific Fund campaign." Likewise, a bequest could establish a permanent scholarship, a student loan fund, or some other perpetual memorial.

Can't I make a will myself?

Yes. California law does provide for a holographic, or personally written, will. The will must be in your own handwriting, it must be dated, and the will must be signed at the bottom. A holographic will should be on plain paper, not letterhead, and should not be signed by witnesses.

Also, since early 1983 California law provides that any resident of California of sound mind and over the age of 18 may execute a California Statutory Will. Copies of this form have been made available by the State Bar of California for use by California residents. This will must be witnessed by two persons, preferably three.

Notwithstanding all of the above, we caution against do-it-yourself wills for fear of oversights, ambiguous language, contradictions and mistakes. It is best to have a professional prepare such an important paper. It is good advice to visit your attorney.

I keep having to change the dollar figures in my will for specific bequests I have made in order to keep up with inflation. How can I avoid having to do this?

You can make bequests of percentages. For example, 5 percent to Maude, 10 percent to UOP, 15 percent to James, etc.

Chance Encounter Benefits Pacific

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gifts come to the University for a variety of reasons and sometimes from surprising sources. Here is the first in a series about unusual gifts to Pacific.

A chance encounter by a San Francisco attorney with the University is expected to result in a gift to UOP of approximately $100,000.

Lawyer Samuel S. Morton, who died last year, left one-fourth of his estate to Pacific. University development officials estimate this will total about $100,000.

Morton was not a Pacific graduate or parent of a UOP student. His only connection to the campus was through the years that he served as trustee for a testamentary trust for Mrs. Irene Edmonds. She died in 1968 and left him in charge of dispersing a gift of $100,000 to the University over a period of years that concluded in 1977.

It was during this time, report UOP officials, that Morton became interested in Pacific from his visits to the campus and meetings with UOP officials on the estate matter. He often expressed his admiration for the quality of the University and its key administrators with whom he came in contact. In 1970, while serving as trustee for Mrs. Edmonds, he prepared his personal will which named UOP and three non-educational institutions to share his estate. The University did not learn of this action until Morton's death late last year.

The future bequest of the late attorney is for general University use, which, notes UOP personnel, will help the current budget in these times of financial constraint.

I've named my brother-in-law as executor of my estate because he is much younger than my wife or I. What happens if he is unable to serve?

Your attorney will see to it that you have a well written will with proviso for at least one contingent executor. That is why many wills may have an individual (such as your brother-in-law) serve as executor and then state that the contingent executor is to be your bank, or local trust company for sake of permanency.

Would a bequest to Pacific provide any tax savings for my estate?

Yes. Gifts by bequest are tax deductible. The amount of the tax benefit, however, depends upon the size of the estate and the size of the bequest to Pacific. In leaving a major portion of your estate to Pacific you might be able to avoid any large tax consequences to your estate.

My wife and I wrote our wills years ago. How often should we review them?

There are a number of events that would call for revision of a will. A short answer might be to review your will every three years. Here are some events that could trigger reviewing your will: Divorce, remarriage, death of a spouse, marriage of your children, arrival of grandchildren, death of children, death of one or more of the witnesses to your will, disposal of a major piece of property mentioned in your will, added estate assets that need to be mentioned in your will, change of state or permanent residence, or a decision to leave a portion of the estate to an additional charity, such as University of the Pacific.

Do schools like UOP receive only bequests in the million dollar range?

Certainly not. Pacific has been the beneficiary of many, many bequests during its 132-year history with only a few in the million dollar range. Most bequests to Pacific have been in the range of several thousand dollars, although in some cases the University received the residual amount, or the assets remaining after specific bequests have been given to family and friends.

Are gifts by bequest significant in the life of the University?

Yes! In the past ten years gifts from bequests have been the largest single gift category outside of capital gifts. They have exceeded the sum from friends, corporations or groups, and generally they are larger than gifts from the total of living alumni. The University is extremely grateful for these thoughtful gifts.

Do people only bequeath money or cash to Pacific?

No. Bequests come in many forms: securities, farms, city lots, art and treasures, personal property such as pianos, books, records, furniture, jewelry, plus boats, homes and automobiles. All bequests of value are important to the future of the University.

For personal attention to your questions concerning wills, call or write to Tom Mooney, Director of Planned Gifts, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95211 or phone (209) 946-2501.

—T.M.

Annual Alumni Awards Announced

A retired businessman, an accountant, a judge and a physicist were honored at Homecoming by the Pacific Alumni Association for their contributions to the University, the public and their profession.

At the annual Alumni Awards luncheon Robert Combellack of Placerville and Jerald Kirsten of Lodi were cited for outstanding service to the University, Duane Sewell of Livermore was honored for outstanding professional service and Noel Manoukian of Carson City, Nevada was cited for outstanding public service. The Pacific Family Award went to the Fellers family.

Combellack, Class of 1941, is a retired businessman who has been active in the Pacific Alumni Association for several years. He was described as "the number one UOP booster in the Mother Lode since the 1930s and one of the most effective student recruiters on behalf of the University." UOP Regent and alumnus Loren Dahl was mentioned as "only the first of many, many students recruited by Bob Combellack," who is now serving as vice president of the UOP alumni organization.

Kirsten, Class of 1947, is a certified public accountant and former mayor and city councilman in Lodi. He has been active in the Alumni Association, Pacific Athletic Foundation and as the alumni representative on the Athletic Advisory Board. The citation he received said "No person has greater love or affection for his alma mater than Jerald Kirsten."

He served as graduate manager and director of Intercollegiate Athletics after receiving his degree from UOP. He was president of the Alumni Association in 1962-63 and chairman of the Annual Pacific Fund in 1977. He has served on the Athletic Advisory Board for several years and is known to many as "Mr. Rhizomia" for his efforts on behalf of Rho Lambda Phi. He also has encouraged many individuals to support Pacific through bequests and gifts.

Sewell, Class of 1940, is a physicist who has served as assistant secretary for defense programs at the federal Department of Energy. He previously spent more than 20 years with the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory as a pioneer in the field of high energy physics.

He was praised for "significant first hand experience in the development of uses for nuclear energy in the United States during the past 40 years." Sewell has played an active role in national defense planning and has served on numerous state and national committees related to nuclear energy.

TOP: Outgoing Alumni Association President Doug Pipes with award winners Noel Manoukian, Duane Sewell, Robert Combellack and Jerald Kirsten (left to right). BOTTOM: Alice Fellers Baun, '27, is surrounded by several members of the Fellers family as she holds the Pacific Family Award.

Block P Honors Three

Manoukian, Class of 1961, is currently chief justice of the Supreme Court of Nevada. He is a former deputy district attorney in Douglas County who served as a district court judge for four years before being named to the State Supreme Court.

He was cited for his many years of activity in the legal profession, plus significant volunteer work with the American Cancer Society, Boy Scouts of America, Rotary International, and Chamber of Commerce.

The Fellers family has ties with UOP that go back to 1882 graduate Lorenzo Fellers. Four generations of the family have attended Pacific, and many UOP alumni with the name Baun and Delavan are among the 17 Fellers family members who are UOP graduates. The award was accepted on behalf of the family by Alice Fellers Baun, a 1927 graduate who married Ted F. Baun. He served for more than 25 years as chairman of the UOP Board of Regents.

—R.D.

Weslie A. Stouffer of Ripon, Everett W. Stark of Burlingame and Robert M. Eberhardt of Stockton were named the 1983 Amos Alonzo Stagg Award recipients.

The three former football players received the honor at the Block P Society dinner during the Homecoming weekend. The award, established in 1981, honors alumni who have been successful in sports at Pacific and in their career while exemplifying the qualities of Stagg, the legendary football coach who directed the Tigers from 1933 to 1946.

Stouffer, Class of 1928, was student body president at Pacific and editor of the yearbook. He went on to a career in education that included 24 years as principal and superintendent of Ripon High School and 13 years with the San Joaquin County Schools Office. The retired educator is known as "Mr. Ripon" for his countless civic activities in that community.

Stark, also from the Class of 1928, played football on the same team as Stouffer and lettered in the sport for three years. He held several student body offices at Pacific, and after graduation Stark helped recruit several San Francisco area athletes into the Pacific program. He served as president of the Pacific Alumni Association in 1935-36.

As an insurance executive, Stark has developed plans that were used overseas, and he directs the San Francisco firm of Everett W. Stark and Co.

Eberhardt is a 1951 graduate who played briefly for Stagg on the 1946 team before military service interrupted his college years. A career of banking that spans nearly 30 years started after he graduated from Pacific. He has been associated with the Bank of Stockton since 1956 and president of the bank since 1963 — the same year he joined the UOP Board of Regents.

Eberhardt has served as president of the Independent Bankers Association of Northern California and California Bankers Association. He has served as president of Ducks Unlimited, an international conservation effort, and he was named "Mr. Stockton" in 1976 by the Board of Realtors.

The local bank executive was named chairman of the UOP Regents in 1975 and has been a booster of Pacific sports and benefactor of the University for numerous years. —R.D.

Reflections

Rhizites Return With A Boom

The "Boomers" were back in force in October, and their attendance was felt by nearly all alumni who returned to the campus for Homecoming.

Although they had been banished from the campus in 1966 for behavior then thought to be unbecoming of gentlemen of stature, Rhizites refuse to fade away. They returned to campus to celebrate the 125th anniversary of the founding of the second oldest fraternity in the west.

And, celebrate they did.

Adorned with legendary black bowlers (that's a hat in case you happened to graduate within the past decade or so), and singing their traditional song, "Old Rhizomia Booms," the Rhizites made a full day of it, beginning with traditional refreshments at 8 a.m. They participated in the annual parade, practically outnumbered the other guests at the annual alumni awards luncheon, cheered the Tigers in a losing cause at the football game, and then, according to their printed schedule, retired for a well deserved "nap time" before resuming festivities with a dinner and dance at the Stockton Country Club.

Although remembered by many for their lack of restraint, Rhizomia was founded as a literary fraternity with a most serious purpose. Records are scarce, but legend has it that in 1858 members of Archania Literary Society, founded in 1854, were split over the issue of slavery, states rights and other North-South issues that led to the Civil War.

A group of Northern sympathizers, according to some reports 10, left the group to form Rhizomia Literary Fraternity on November 25, 1885.

Another version leaves out reference to the Civil War and states only that 10 students met in a classroom to plan an association "for mutual improvement in elocution, composition and debate." Both versions include mention of the adoption of the American Eagle as the symbol for the new group.

Regardless of origin, rivalry between Rhizomia and Archania became a tradition. Things developed into more than just clean fun in San Jose after World War I. Some Archites broke into Rhizomia's quarters and borrowed some derbies, eagles and other artifacts. The Rhizites retaliated by releasing the hinges from the Archites' door and removing all the furniture. Both groups escaped prosecution by arranging a friendly exchange.

Another infamous Rhizomia event is the historic Band Frolic of 1957. A faculty committee, composed of ex-Rhizites President Robert E. Burns, President of the Board of Regents Ted F. Baun, and Conservatory Dean Russell J. Bodley, suspended the fraternity for three years because of its sketch titled "The Outhouse of the August Moon."

There was only a handful of Rhizites on campus when the suspension ended. Soon after they voted to become a chapter of the Phi Sigma Kappa national fraternity. Phi Sigma Kappa members still called themselves Rhizites, but, according to the 1967 Naranjado, on "November 3, 1966, at 4:30 p.m. Phi Sigma Kappa was pronounced dead after 108 years." A mock funeral was held on the porch of the fraternity house, and for two years the former Rhizomia building housed two other local fraternities. In 1968 it became the home of a chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, a national fraternity.

Dr. Kara Brewer, director of alumni and parent programs, summed up Rhizomia's role in the University at the annual alumni awards luncheon at Homecoming.

"Paradoxically, although Rhizomia no longer exists as an undergraduate organization — nor has it for some 17 years — it still remains in reputation and influence a significant part of the University of the Pacific. In general alumni affairs, in local alumni groups, in financial support of the University, Rhizites have continued to play important roles in the University life. And, we congratulate them, that, because of their loyalty, Old Rhizomia still BOOMS!"

(Research for this article was provided primarily by Mel Bennett '29 and Harold "Jake" Jacoby '28, both faithful Rhizites.)

—D.M.

Parents Do More Than Pay The Bill

IF there is any segment of the campus constituency that frequently gets overlooked for its contributions, it would have to be the parents.

Students get recognition for their activities at the University, the successful alumni are frequently in the news, professors are honored for teaching excellence and research achievements, and the administrative leaders are a visible part of the campus.

But little mention is ever made of the parents, who are responsible for paying the bills so their sons and daughters can receive a college education at Pacific.

This seeming injustice is understandable because a majority of the parents remain in the background. They see their children on occasional weekends and holidays, but they take a low profile the rest of the time.

Exceptions to this generalization do occur, however, and these parents are a vital part of the campus community.

"Parents of Pacific students are extremely important individuals," explains Clifford L. Dochterman, vice president-executive assistant. "In this kind of university, the parents form a significant part of the partnership, along with the faculty and administrators, in helping young people attain their educational objectives. The University values highly the continued interest and support which Pacific parents demonstrate in so many ways each year," he says.

These different ways the parents get involved cover a wide range of activities. In the fraternity and sorority systems, for example, the traditional Dad's Day in the fall brings the fathers to the campus for a weekend of activities that include a barbecue, softball and attending a Tiger football game. The mothers aren't left out, either, as several of the Greek houses have a mother's club program and Mom's Day sometime during the year. The mothers of Omega Phi Alpha fraternity, for example, have donated money to help with house renovating expenses and furnishings.

Mary Dieudonne, the house mother at Alpha Chi Omega sorority, says parents have financed construction of a barbecue at the house. One of their biggest projects over the years involved raising money to add a bedroom to the house to expand the quarters for Dieudonne.

"The parents are always doing things to help out," she explains, "and this has included a father supplying the paneling to help redecorate the dining room and the mothers providing Christmas stockings for the girls."

Parents get involved in the admissions process by hosting receptions for prospective students at various locations throughout California. They also help with the logistics for the several regional meetings that involve new student recruiting.

Athletics is another area of campus life that involves parents. Figures from the Pacific Athletic Foundation (PAF) show about $20,000 annually comes from parents of UOP athletes, and about 50 PAF members are parents of students.

Volleyball Coach Terry Liskevych says parents of the women's team have contributed some $10,000 in recent years to help the program, and they also attend several of the matches as a group during the year. Football coach Bob Cope and basketball coach Tom Gary and Susie Roberts of Saratoga are co-chairmen of the Parents Fund Drive of the Annual Pacific Fund.

O'Neill say most of the parents belong to the booster groups for these two sports.

In terms of fund raising, there is a Parents Fund Drive portion of the Annual Pacific Fund that last year generated more than $35,000 for the University, and several parents have become involved in major gifts to Pacific over the years.

Although most of the parents who are involved have current students at the University, this is not always the case. Hugh Barton of Modesto, whose daughter attended Pacific several years ago, recently helped arrange a reception with UOP President Stanley E. McCaffrey for leading Stanislaus County dignitaries. Barton also is serving on a national committee to help finance the renovation of Weber Hall as the new home for the School of Business and Public Administration.

An official Parents Advisory Board exists at the University, and informal meetings are arranged twice during the year by the Alumni Office. Many of the 30 to 40 parents who attended these sessions became acquainted with Pacific when they attended the orientation available to the parents of all incoming freshmen.

The parent orientation is a summer program where mothers and fathers spend one or two days on the campus to become acquainted with college life. "This is a fantastic program, and it's where we got involved," says Gary Roberts of Saratoga. Roberts and his wife Susie are the parents of UOP senior Gary Roberts. They are active with the Parents Advisory Board and co-chairmen of the Parents Fund Drive portion of the Annual Pacific Fund.

"We have always been involved parents, whether it be through the church, scouting or other things," says Mrs. Roberts, "because our children are very important to us. We try to make their life as rich as possible but still give them the freedom to grow."

Roberts says they were impressed with Pacific when they arrived, unannounced, for a campus visit with their son on a weekend. "There was no one around, but we saw someone in the Admissions Office and knocked on the door. It turned out to be the Dean of Admissions (Les Medford). He proceeded to go out of his way to answer all our questions and show us around the campus. The follow-up correspondence also was handled in a very personal manner, and this meant a lot to us," says Roberts, a retired Navy officer who now is an engineer with GTE Systems in Mountain View.

While Roberts is involved with the University through fund raising, Rosemary Mein of Lafayette serves in another capacity. She and her husband, Edward, are the parents of Andrea Mein, a senior majoring in education.

Nicholas Frazee of San Diego visited with his daughter Jennifer while he was on campus for Dad's Day at her sorority.

While Mrs. Mein talked about her interest in Pacific during a recent visit to the campus, her husband was off with their UOP daughter enjoying Dad's Day at Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

"We have hosted two receptions in our home for prospective students," she explains, "and these events are really fun. I would encourage other parents to do this because you meet some very interesting people and learn a lot about the University. I have a very positive attitude about Pacific," she continues, "and feel it is nice to let people know what the University has to offer."

Rosemary Mein has hosted receptions for prospective UOP students at the family residence in Lafayette.

Mrs. Mein, a retired school teacher, is president of the Mom's Club at Kappa Alpha Theta. She also attends regional meetings in the Bay Area and is a regular at the Parents Advisory Board sessions. Like the Roberts, she was first acquainted with UOP through the parent orientation for freshmen. "The atmosphere is so friendly and open," she says about that event, "and they really want the input of the parents."

With so many civic, social and family activities facing people today, why did she and her husband take more than a passing interest in UOP? "I get involved in many activities and really love education because its something you can do forever," she replied. "I'm also very interested in my children having the most rewarding experiences possible, and the more you give the more you receive. I feel sorry for parents who aren't involved."

Similar comments were heard from Nicholas Frazee of San Diego. He and his wife Leslie are the parents of Jennifer Frazee, a senior majoring in English. Frazee, who owns a paint and wall covering manufacturing business, is involved in the UOP Library fund raising campaign. He has made a major pledge to this project and is a member of the national committee seeking funding for the $6 million project.

"The University has done a fine job for Jennifer, and I wanted to do something because of this," he explains. "I am fortunate to be in a position to help. After looking at the prospects, I felt the library would be an extremely beneficial project because strong universities have a strong library."

Frazee, who was on campus for Dad's Day at his daughter's sorority, says he looks forward to that activity. "I thoroughly enjoy visiting with the girls who have become good friends of my daughter, and it's a pleasure to meet their fathers and enjoy their company for the weekend."

Perhaps Frazee says it best when asked to comment on his involvement as a Pacific parent: "I have been very pleased with the school because of Jennifer. It has provided her with an excellent education and advancement of social skills. My involvement is to help say thank you to the University, and, at the same time, be able to benefit additional students in the years to come."

—R.D.

WATER POLO Continued from page 5

Nugent, who has been at Pacific since 1980, also coaches the men's and women's swim teams. Many of the men compete in both swimming and water polo, including Mike Ennis.

Ennis is the goalie for water polo and team captain. He has been active in water sports all his life and was, along with Mike Haley, an honorable mention All-American last year.

Ennis, who is from Tracy, came to Pacific on a water sports scholarship. "I wanted to use my athletic ability to get to college," he says. Ennis, a pre-med major, is a diver on the swim team. But he enjoys water polo more. He has always played goalkeeper and feels the individualism of the position relates to his personality. "If I touch the ball a lot and get 10 to 12 saves, I'm having a good day," he says, "but you do get hit a lot. It's definitely a contact sport. Many people don't realize this because so much of the action is under the water."

Nugent, whose teams were ranked ninth in 1981 and seventh last year, says the players swim two to three miles a day while training for matches, which are 28 minutes long in an area 30 meters by 20 meters and seven feet in depth. Because he only has 12 scholarships for swimming and water polo, several of his 16 players are "walk ons" who receive no tuition assistance.

"We could pad our schedule and have impressive records by playing mediocre opponents," says Nugent, "but that's not what we want to do. We want to play the best, but we also realize that winning isn't everything. There must be a balance among athletic, academic and social experiences for college students. We put up with a lot of inconveniences and limitations to compete at our level, like traveling by vehicles to Southern California instead of flying and staying in homes instead of hotels."

Both Nugent and Ennis mentioned a "family" concept that the team has developed, and one of the reasons for this is the handicaps the team must overcome.

"There is a mutual bond and respect on the team, and I think we are a very cohesive group," explains Ennis. "I wouldn't trade the experiences and friendships I have had with my teammates for anything. I see them more than my own family. It might be this way in any sport, but maybe we feel it more because we have such a small group." When asked if he is bothered by the budget situation, Ennis said it bothered him for a while, "but you just suck it up and go - and that makes for some of the fun times."

He feels that parents of the team members deserve credit for much of the success the players enjoy. "When we travel to places where the guys are from, they cook our meals and put us up in their homes. They are really great. I can't say enough about how much they support us."

—R.D.

Pacific Profiles

Linda Nelson

SETTING some objectives and working to achieve them has brought Linda Nelson, '76, from a part-time job at a hospital in Lodi to the presidency of a Northern California public relations association.

Linda graduated with a degree in communications with two objectives in mind: she wanted to work in public relations and she did not want to leave the Stockton area.

Stockton and San Joaquin County are not noted for their abundance of top level public relations jobs, and, realizing this, Linda's first position was as a clerk with a quick-printing firm in Stockton. This was followed by a year as a food products sales representative.

Through her internship adviser when a student, Professor Alan Mikels, Linda finally heard about a part-time position as director of community affairs at Lodi Memorial Hospital. It was a three-quarter time position, but it was in the Stockton area and in the field of public relations.

Linda entered the health care public relations field just as interest in improving communications was increasing. "Public relations work has been around in hospitals for only about the past dozen years," she says.

Soon after she joined the hospital her position was changed to full-time, and then an assistant was added. In 1980 the hospital formed a separate foundation for fund raising. Since then Linda has spent most of her time in that field, with another assistant now handling most of the public relations duties.

During the past year she was elected president of the Hospital Public Relations Association of Northern California, an organization that includes both fund raising and public relations executives. She also became active in the National Association of Hospital Development and serves on several regional committees.

She sees continued growth in the field and increased challenges for members of the profession. At the rate she is going, Linda Nelson rapidly is becoming one of the leaders in a growing field.

Linda Nelson is president of the Hospital Public Relations Association of Northern California.

John Siegel is president of KBHK, Channel 44, in San Francisco.

John Siegel

IT'S a long way from the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico to the presidency of Channel 44 in San Francisco. But John Siegel has made the adjustment and enjoyed the nine years in-between.

Siegel, a 1974 graduate of UOP's Callison College, was recently named president of KBHK after the independently operated television station was purchased by United Television Incorporated (UTV).

"We are going to be a major factor in this market," says the 31-year-old Siegel. "There is tremendous potential for growth, and we aim to enhance the quality of our programming, improve our over-the-air look and expand our share of the audience."

These aims constitute projects Siegel never believed he would be pursuing when attending UOP. His fondest memories are the two springs that he spent with Professor Mickey Gibson on anthropology field trips to the Yucatan region of Mexico. "I enjoyed UOP a lot, and especially Callison College," he says. "It was a fantastic place for a self starter because you could design your own program and respond to professors who were interested in what you were doing." He recalls the names of several favorite Callison faculty members like Gibson, Jerry Hewitt, and Lars Gantzel, plus John Williams, who was then at Raymond College, and even a Callison secretary, Catherine Beauchamp. Siegel, a New York City native, also keeps in touch with several of his UOP classmates and mentioned David Murphy, Chris Thalken and Steve Pfeffer.

After Callison, Siegel earned a law degree from University of San Francisco, worked for a major law firm in Oakland and then spent three years as a legislative assistant to Senator Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut.

"I always wanted to be a litigator," he says in discussing his interest in the legal profession. He worked on the law review at USF and was a clerk in San Francisco for Justice Raymond Sullivan of the California State Supreme Court.

When Ribicoff retired, Siegel served as tax counsel to Chris-Craft Industries, Inc. and became involved with television management as vice president and director of the company's television subsidiary, which owns 48 percent of UTV.

The Chris-Craft UTV operation is the fourth largest non-network television group in the U.S., with stations in Los Angeles, Portland, Salt Lake City, Minneapolis-St. Paul, San Antonio and now San Francisco. "We are the largest television group west of the Mississippi, with more television households than any other group operation in this area," says Siegel.

ALUMNI Continued from page 5

SPRING ALUMNI OFFERINGS, CONTINUING EDUCATION COMMITTEE - Cross Country Skiing, March 2-4, 1984. Snow Camping for Beginners, class on UOP Campus, April 7, Camping trip, April 13-15, 1984. Rock Climbing for Beginners, June 22-24, 1984. Backpacking for Beginners, July 27-29, 1984. Intermediate Backpacking, August 16-19, 1984. Walking tour of San Francisco with Roger Barnett, Saturday, April 28, 1984. Mark Twain's Western Years - A tour to Virginia City and the Mother Lode, Saturday, May 19, and Sunday, May 20, 1984.

TRAVEL/STUDY COURSES - The following travel and study programs are being offered during the spring and summer of 1984 and are open to alumni, parents and friends of the University: Marine Biology in Alaska, a cruise to Prince William Sound, Aug. 4-12. Tropical Natural History, 10 days at Saint Lucia in the Caribbean, May 18-30. Batik as Fine Art, art in Kauai, Hawaii, June 26-July 5. Three Faces of England and France, University of Nantes, France, June 22-29; University of London, July 2-7; University of Durham, England, July 9-16. Presented by the Institute of European Studies, participants can choose one, two or three weeks. Experiencing Southern Wales and London, one week in Cardiff, Wales and two weeks in London, June 22-July 14.

Alumni and friends interested in offering a course or having suggestions for courses they would like to have offered should contact Durlinn Anema, director of Lifelong Learning.

-D.M.

TIGER TRACKS

'30s

Everett S. Akers, COP '38, and his wife, Gertrude, live in Long Barn. They are both retired.

Roland D. Campbell, COP '38, is president of California Roofing Company. He and his wife, Marnya Phelps Campbell, COP '41, live in Los Gatos. Their son, Happer P. Campbell, COP '69, is vice president and general superintendent of the same company. He lives in Saratoga with his wife Vicki.

Raymond C. McGlothen, COP '38, and his wife, Marguerite Reimers McGlothen, COP '52, both retired teachers, live in Sparks, Nevada.

Genevieve Moran Miller, COP '39, and her husband Harold, live in Redwood City. They are retired teachers.

Carmen Tindall Wilson, COP '39, is a retired teacher living in Auburn.

'50s

William C. Carey, COP '52, is superintendent of Newberg School District. In addition, he is president of Options Press, a publishing company. He lives in Salem, Oregon.

Walter A. Baun, Engineering '53, is president of Clovis Ready Mix in Clovis. He lives in Fresno with his wife Betty.

Roy "Skip" Ottoson, COP '54, has recently been appointed superintendent of the El Paso de Robles Youth Authority School in Paso Robles. He lives in Paso Robles with his wife Pat.

Dr. Bruce W. Shore, COP '56, is spending a year at the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London with his new wife and her two children.

'60s

Delbert J. Alberti, COP '63, has been chosen as superintendent of the Auburn Union School District. He lives in the Sacramento area with his wife and their three children.

Dr. John E. Alsup, COP '63, is an associate professor the New Testament at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary. He lives in Georgetown, Texas, with his wife Carole, a word processor.

Dr. Thomas E. Barnett, COP '63, is an otolaryngologist. He lives in Lodi with his wife Elsa, a medical technologist.

Lynn E. Crigler, Conservatory '63, is the music director for Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam, Connecticut, where his wife, Carol Gillis Crigler, COP '64, is a musician. The couple resides in New York City.

Carol Attaway Douglass, Conservatory '63, is an admissions officer at the University of Illinois, following eight years of teaching in a music school in Herford, West Germany. She currently resides in Champaign, Illinois.

Helen Heibel Ghiringhelli, COP '63, is an elementary school teacher. Her husband, John, is a tavern owner. The couple lives in St. Helena.

Julie Labij Ivanyi, COP '63, is a production artist, and her husband George is an art director, both for Graphic Designers, Inc. The couple resides in Sherman Oaks.

Linda Harnett Lerner, COP '63, works for the personnel division of Westin Hotel Company Corporate Office in Seattle. Her husband, Gary, COP '61, is chief of counseling and rehabilitation at the Veteran's Administration. They live in Bainbridge Island, Washington.

Leslie Marchant McCulloch, COP '63, is a clinical laboratory technologist/radioisotopic specialist at Greater Bakersfield Memorial Hospital. She lives in Bakersfield.

G. Douglas Goodale, COP '64, is the sales manager for Paper World Inc. His wife, Caryll Hayden Goodale, COP '64, is a teacher. The couple lives in Castro Valley.

Judy Camblin Henander, COP '64, is a self-employed motor movement consultant. Her husband, Dick, COP '63, is vice president of finance and treasurer of Intecom Inc. They reside in Dallas, Texas.

Judith B. Huchingson, COP '64, has begun a two-year term as province collegiate chairman of Delta Gamma sorority. She currently lives in Lafayette.

Marta Merwin Kyte, COP '64, has been named Stanislaus County Teacher of the Year. Her husband, Steven, COP '64, is the Turlock city manager, where the couple lives.

Frederick R. Murdock, Pharmacy '64, owns Pharmaceutical Investment. He lives in Stockton with his wife, Toni Teachout Murdock, Education '65.

Sandra Geneco Russell, Education '64, and her husband, Bill, COP '65, own Quail Lakes Athletic Club in Stockton, where they live with their two children.

Linda Hoffman Vaughn, COP '64, and her husband, Gene, COP '63, own and operate two private schools in Orange County. The couple resides in Cypress.

Jack K. Hasegawa, COP '65, is general secretary and executive director of Dwight Hall at Yale University. He and his wife, Nancy, a writer, live in New Haven, Connecticut.

Robert W. Irwin, COP '66, is senior vice president of American Savings and Loan. He lives in Stockton with his wife, Mary Parsons Irwin, COP '67.

Dr. Samuel L. Meyer, COP '66, is president of Datatron, Inc., and was recently elected to membership in the Young Presidents' Organization, Inc., a worldwide educational organization for people who have become presidents of companies before the age of 40. He lives in Laguna Hills with his wife Margaret.

Janet Maxwell Swagerty, Education '66, lives in Mountlake Terrace, Washington, with her husband, Keith, COP '67, a self-employed financial executive.

Carol Betz-Schmidt, Raymond '67, coordinates children's ministries at Epworth United Methodist Church. She lives in Berkeley with her husband, Christiaan, a retail clerk.

Gene E. Bigler, Raymond '67, is an associate professor of political science and political economy at Hendrix College and has published three books. He lives in Conway, Arkansas with his wife Karoline, a legal secretary.

Barbara North Bogner, COP '67, is a high school English teacher. She lives in Palo Alto with her husband James, a photographer/cartoon illustrator.

Joseph M. Erwin, COP '67, is the curator of primates at Chicago Zoological Park and is editor of the American Journal of Primatology. His wife, Nancy, is an editorial assistant for the same publication. They live in Brookfield, Illinois.

Linda Daseler Foley, COP '67, lives in Stockton with her husband, Pat, COP '70, a teacher and varsity girl's basketball coach at St. Mary's High School.

William L. Hamilton, COP '67, has recently become a member of the Atlanta Chapter of the Financial Executives Institute, an international organization of corporate financial officers. He is currently vice president of finance/administration of the Norrell Corporation in Atlanta. He resides in Dunwoody, Georgia.

Claudia Cummins Hanna, Pharmacy '67, is a pharmacist in Calistoga and Napa. She and her husband, William, COP '67, own Hanna Vineyards in Napa, where they live. He is a vineyardist, vice president of the Napa County Farm Bureau and a major in the Air Force Reserve.

James E. Jacobsen, Pharmacy '67, is a pharmacist in Ontario. He lives in Diamond Bar with his wife Patricia, an L.V.N., and their three children.

Dr. James S. Puterbaugh, COP '67, has recently published an article entitled "Cardiovascular Effects of Exercise — A Controlled Study in Firemen". He is an M.D. who lives in Portland, Oregon with his wife Candy, a journalist/homemaker.

Janet Korn Valenty, Raymond '67, is a medical technologist. She and her husband, John, who is in the wholesale distribution business, live on a 47-foot sailboat in San Diego.

Patricia Fellers Williams, Conservatory '67, is a childbirth educator. She lives in Concord.

Jennifer Lodato Brock, COP '68, is a travel consultant. She lives in Walnut Creek with her husband Daniel, a real estate broker.

Candace Williams Foote, COP '68, is a registered nurse, labor and delivery, at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco, where she lives.

Kathern Mumm Gaskins, Raymond '68, is an industrial officer with the United States Air Force. Her husband, David, is a supervisory logistics officer, also with the Air Force. They reside in Carmichael.

'40s

Richard "Dick" Bentley, COP '40, is doing consulting work after retiring from Aeroquip Corporation where he was a sales engineer. He lives in Glendale with his wife Evelyn.

Lola Madill Parlier, COP '40, is a teacher. Her husband, Dale, COP '38, is a retired insurance agent. The couple resides in Stockton.

Emrys Lloyd, COP '41, has retired from the Los Angeles City Fire Department. He lives in Placentia with his wife Pat.

Charles M. Pond, COP '44, is a priest and rector of a parish in Chicago, Illinois.

Thomas H. Liddicoet, COP '49, has been appointed to the math and science department at Armstrong Preparatory School in El Cerrito. He was formerly in the research and development department at Chevron Chemical Company. He resides in El Sobrante.

Mary E. Greuner, COP '68, is a self-employed small business consultant. She shows Arabian horses throughout the U.S. and Canada and has won National Championship honors. She resides in Oakland.

Ranae Swendseid Hyer, COP '68, has just returned from four years in Japan as head of personnel for Bank of America's Asia Division. She currently holds the same position for Bank of America in San Francisco, where she lives.

Terry L. Maple, COP '68, is an associate professor of psychology at Georgia Tech. He lives in Stone Mountain, Georgia, with his wife, Adelaide, and their two children.

Marlaina S. McEwen, COP '68, is a realtor associate in Stockton, where she resides. She has been active in the California Human Services Organization and Planned Parenthood of San Joaquin County.

Glen A. Nissen, COP '68, is an assistant vice president with Wells Fargo Bank. He and his wife, Mary Osborne Nissen, COP '67, live in San Carlos with their three children.

Rebecca Ihrke Riendeau, Conservatory '68, is a music instructor and registered music therapist. Her husband, Dennis, COP '68, is a dentist. They reside in Lewiston, Idaho.

James Robertson, COP '68, is vice president and manager of Bank of America in Kowloon, Hong Kong, where he lives with his wife Betty.

Janis Pastore Smith, COP '68, is involved with painting, stained glass work and quilting. Her husband, Andrew, COP '69, is a partner in a CPA firm. They reside in Stockton.

Cynthia MacCormack Swearingen, COP '68, is a travel agent with the Travel Bureau of Sacramento. She lives in Citrus Heights.

'70s

William M. Jones, Conservatory '70, is an associate professor of music at Rhode Island College in Providence, Rhode Island and editor of the Rhode Island Music Educators Review. He resides in Foster, R.I.

Stanley M. Gibbs, COP '71, is an electrical engineer with Hewlett-Packard. His wife, Patricia Gwartney-Gibbs, COP '71, is an assistant professor at the University of Oregon. The couple lives in Eugene.

Susan Luckey Gong, COP '72, is a staff psychologist. She lives in Jamaica Plain, Massachusetts.

Douglas E. Swint, COP '72, is a merchandise manager for Sears. His wife, Barbara Hosson Swint, COP '72, is an instructional aide. They reside in Fremont.

Dale Young Black, Covell '73, is the director of personnel at the San Francisco Airport Hilton. Her husband, Robert, Covell '73, is a senior research assistant for the Electric Power Research Institute. The couple lives in San Mateo.

Allison Branscombe, Callison '73, is the housing policy supervisor for the State of California Housing Department. Her husband, Robert Remen, is a transportation planner for the State Transportation Commission. They reside in Sacramento.

Jeanne Ashby Coburn, Conservatory '73, is a freelance baroque violinist. Her husband, Robert, Conservatory '72, is a visiting assistant professor at Lewis and Clark College. They live in Portland, Oregon with their son.

Walter S. Dimmick, Engineering '73, is a mechanical engineer. He lives in Atherton with his wife Jackie, a printer.

Tred R. Eyerly, COP '73, is a lawyer with Alaska Legal Services Corporation. He lives in Anchorage.

James S. Hoch, Conservatory '73, is an assistant professor of music at the University of Hawaii. He lives in Hilo.

L. Keating Johnson, Conservatory '73, is the director of bands and assistant professor of music at Washington State University. He lives in Pullman, Washington with his wife, Janet Wiita Johnson, Conservatory '72.

Caryn Woo Lai, Pharmacy '73, is a staff pharmacist at Valley Medical Center of Fresno. She lives in Fresno with her husband, Harold, an attorney.

Paul M. McCormick, Education '73, is a marriage, family and child counselor. His wife, Patricia, is a clinical social worker. They reside in Stockton.

Julia M. McCreary, Raymond '73, is a computer systems analyst/project leader for development of enlisted personnel systems for the Department of Defense. She lives in Heidelberg, West Germany.

Mariann Annand Novarina, Pharmacy '73, is the assistant director of pharmacy at Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital. Her husband David is a quality control manager for an electric company. They reside in Watsonville.

Marjorie Hoey Siverson, Education '73, is a teacher in Gilroy, where she lives with her husband and daughter.

Paige Boynton Spires, COP '73, is the employee development coordinator for Caesars Tahoe. Her husband, Brad, is director of marketing for the same firm. They live in Stateline, Nevada.

Susan Pisoni Tavernetti, COP '73, is an instructor of film criticism/history at De Anza College. Her husband, Russell, is an electrical engineer. The couple lives in San Carlos.

Nancy E. Thomas, COP '73, recently opened her own law practice in Walnut Creek, where she lives.

Carolyn J. Vail, COP '73, is a resource specialist for the San Juan Unified School District. She resides in Carmichael.

Anthony L. Vaughn, COP '73, is the director of labor relations for Columbia Pictures Industries, Inc. He lives in Los Angeles.

Gary S. Verzani, Covell '73, is the food service manager for Stanford University. He lives in Fremont.

Jean Komarek Wiltz, Education '73, is a mental health associate and coordinator of an infant home training program for the handicapped. She lives in Stockton with her husband Jack and their three children.

Mary Larkins Woelfel, Callison '73, is a health educator. Her husband, Joseph, Pharmacy '70, is the director of pharmacy services at Lodi Memorial Hospital. They reside in Lodi.

Joan Nielsen Abbott, Pharmacy '74, is a pharmacist. She lived in Japan for three years and worked as a civilian pharmacist in a U.S. Navy hospital. She currently lives in San Diego.

Gary B. Chaim, Pharmacy '74, has been appointed pharmacy manager of the Anaheim Clinic of Family Health Program in Southern California. His wife, Susan Bannon Chaim, Pharmacy '75, is a staff pharmacist for the University of California Medical Center in Irvine. They live in Laguna Niguel.

Christopher Macon, COP '74, is the new athletic director, assistant varsity football coach and full-time physical education instructor at Yuba City High School. He previously was an assistant football coach at Solano Community College at Vacaville.

Robert Mottram, COP '74, is a physical therapist and athletic trainer, in private practice in sports medicine in Everett, Washington, where he resides.

Moheb M. Rizkallah, Pharmacy '74, is a clinical pharmacist at the Letterman Army Medical Center in San Francisco. He has had six papers published and lives in Daly City with his wife Mary.

Kyle K. Wyatt, COP '74, is a historian who lives in Monterey. In July he will be traveling to Japan for a year to teach English to businessmen.

Candace Caron, Pharmacy '76, is the director of pharmaceutical services for Mercy Hospital of Folsom, and is a consulting pharmacist to the Visiting Nurses Association and to the Hospice Care of Sacramento. She lives in Sacramento.

Linda S. Collins, Graduate '76, has received her Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Delaware. She lives in Bayshore, New York.

JoAnn Dahlkoetter, Conservatory '76, competes in international triathlons, conducts classes in running and the triathlon, and is writing a book on mental imagery for athletes. She lives in Goleta.

Leslie Ehlert, COP '76, is a speech, language and hearing specialist living in Fresno. She has written a speech therapy remediation program that has just been published.

Joe Furtado, COP '76, is the credit union manager for Stanislaus County. He lives in Stockton with his wife Debbie, an office manager for a doctor.

Jaydee R. Hanson, Callison '76, has been selected one of the Outstanding Young Men of America for 1983, which honors outstanding civic and professional contributions. Hanson lives in Arlington, Virginia.

Marty J. Arburua, COP '77, has received a Juris Doctor Degree from Western State University College of Law. He resides in Hollywood.

Cinde L. Delmas, COP '77, has been appointed director of marketing for a real estate brokerage firm. She currently resides in Mill Valley.

Mark F. Friend, COP '77, is the director of business services for UOP. His wife, Birgitte Ryslinge Friend, SBPA '79, is a communications systems representative for AT&T. They reside in Stockton.

James F. Pierce II, Engineering '77, is an engineering group leader for Underwriters Laboratories, Inc. His wife, Judy, is an engineer for the same firm. They live in Santa Clara.

Terrence D. Williams, McGeorge '77, is an attorney. His wife, Noreen Santella Williams, COP '83, is a speech pathologist. They reside in Stockton.

Laura Wolf Bean, Conservatory '78, is a piano teacher and dental receptionist. Her husband, Jeffrey, COP '78, has his own dental office. They reside in Santa Rosa.

Craig M. Sweet, COP '78, is a United Methodist Church pastor. He lives in Washburn, Illinois with his wife Kathleen, a student.

Andra Cook Bohnet, Conservatory '78, is a part-time instructor at Texas Tech University. Her husband, Keith, Conservatory '79, is a student and teaching assistant at the same university. They live in Lubbock, Texas.

Andrew B. Bassetti, COP '79, received his J.D. with honors from the University of California at Davis and is now practicing law with a firm in Seattle. His wife, Richelle Gerow Bassetti, COP '79, graduated from McGeorge and is now a prosecutor in the Criminal Division for the City of Seattle. They both reside in Mercer Island, Washington.

Frank E. Halvorson, COP '79, is the general manager for Prospect Motors in Jackson.

Jeff Leider, COP '79, is office manager for the family business, Crystal Springs Golf Club in Burlingame. His cousin, Linda Collins Barre, Callison '71, also works there as catering manager. She resides in San Mateo with her husband Patrick and their two sons. Jeff resides in San Francisco.

'80s

Mary Pope Allen, Education '80, is an instructor at the Institute of Development Management and is currently designing a continuing education course for adults in English skills. Her husband, John, is technical director for the Rural Industries Innovation Centre. They live in Africa.

Kevin D. Anderson, COP '80, is completing a residency program in Downey at Rancho Los Amigos Hospital. He resides in Long Beach.

Steven A. Beck, SBPA '80, is a salesperson for Morton Machinery Co, Inc. He is also active on the Los Angeles Pacific Club Board. He resides in Los Angeles.

Jan E. Knox, SBPA '80, is concession specialist for the National Park Service, Sequoia National Park, and lives in Three Rivers.

Lisa Waterman Wainwright, Conservatory '80, is employed by Bank of America in San Francisco as a computer operator. Her husband Doug works for Chevron as a geophysical analyst. They live in Berkeley.

Katherine Buller Blumer, Conservatory '81, is the choral director at Vintage High School. She lives in Napa with her husband John, who owns a music store.

Kim E. Dorney, SBPA '81, has been selected to serve a one-year internship with the City of Phoenix municipal government.

Julianne George, COP '81, is an administrative assistant and lives in San Francisco.

Marcia Lee Hall, Conservatory '81, was selected as Sixth Army Headquarters Soldier of the Year for 1983. She is currently serving in the U.S. Army at the Presidio of San Francisco as Flute Section leader with the Sixth U.S. Army Band.

Fritz A. Johnson, Jr., Raymond-Callison '81, and Kelley G. Coulter, Covell '82, are attending the American Graduate School of International Management in Glendale, Arizona.

Robert T. Mendel, Engineering '81, is a product engineer for National Semiconductor in Santa Clara. He lives in Sunnyvale.

Christopher A. Nance, Conservatory '81, is a rehabilitation music therapist at Porterville State Hospital. He lives in Porterville.

Richard K. Rogers, Education '81, has been promoted to director of personnel for Tracy public schools. He resides in Stockton with his wife Janet, a teacher, and their daughter.

Janine Shafer, Conservatory '81, recently won the Miss Alameda County title.

Carlos H. Almarza, SBPA '82, is the manager of corporate accounting for Carton de Venezuela, S.A., currently based in Caracas. He will soon return to the states to continue a career with Container Corporation of America, International Division. His wife, Diane, is a staff clerk for Pacific Telephone in San Francisco.

Roberta "Bobi" Bloom, COP '82, has been promoted to account executive at Doremus/West, Los Angeles, an advertising/public relations firm. She resides in West Los Angeles.

Gerald B. Burton, Jr., SBPA '82, is a junior assistant buyer for Macy's of California. He lives in Lafayette.

Debi J. Gross, SBPA '82, is corporate sales manager for the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco, where she lives.

George F. Harrison, SBPA '82, was recently appointed branch administration officer at the Isleton Branch of the Bank of America.

Carmen S. Jara, Raymond-Callison '82, is currently working on her Ph.D. in clinical psychology and lives in Memphis, Tennessee.

Scott Johnson, COP '82, has been accepted to Up With People, the internationally acclaimed educational and entertainment organization. During his year with Up With People, Johnson will travel over 32,000 miles around the world, living with host families in each of the 90 or more cities the group will visit.

Donna J. Kimura, Conservatory '82, is the educational coordinator/music instructor of the Yamaha Music Center in Alameda. She currently lives in Fremont.

Michele M. Lorilla, Engineering '82, is a geotechnical engineer/staff engineer. She lives in Seattle, Washington.

Elaine Nunn, Education '82, has been hired by East Burney Elementary School as a kindergarten teacher. She resides in Burney.

Bradley S. Nydegger, COP '82, is a student at the UOP School of Dentistry. He resides in San Francisco.

Susan A. Sluis, Pharmacy '82, is a staff/clinical pharmacist at a Detroit hospital. She is helping to implement clinical pharmacy services on one of the pharmacy satellites, and she is also employed at a pain clinic. She lives in Inkster, Michigan.

Kate Lejeune Wall, COP '82, is a reserve circulation assistant at Dartmouth College library. Her husband, Michael, COP '83, is a student at the Dartmouth Medical School. The couple lives in West Lebanon, New Hampshire.

Peter B. Anderson, Engineering '83, is a civil engineer with the state department of transportation. He lives in St. Helena.

William E. Bartz II, COP '83, is a law student at McGeorge School of Law. His wife, Gretchen Haas Bartz, COP '83, is a career development specialist for State Savings and Loan. The couple resides in Sacramento.

Thomas E. Buford, Pharmacy '83, is a pharmacist. He lives in Porterville with his wife Brenda, a registered nurse.

Terry S. Connacher, Engineering '83, is an electrical engineer. He lives in Brea.

John R. Dovala, Engineering '83, is an electrical engineer for Hughes Aircraft Co. He lives in Fullerton with his wife, Pamela Leard Dovala, COP '82.

Rhonda Cartwright Heinle, COP '83, is a law student at the University of San Diego. She lives in Chula Vista with her husband, Mark, a restaurant manager.

Neil M. Hjelmervik, Conservatory '83, is the director of music at Calaveras High School. He lives in San Andreas with his wife Lynn, a music teacher.

Cynthia F. Hoffman, COP '83, is currently pursuing a master's degree in cinema studies at New York University. She resides in New York City.

Gregory A. Mitchell, SBPA '83, is working towards a masters degree in both business administration and public administration as a recipient of a 1983 Wolcott Foundation Fellowship at George Washington University. He lives in Washington, D.C.

Wendy Jean Payton, Conservatory '83, is a graduate student at the University of Illinois, where she is working towards a master's degree in musicology.

In Memoriam

Edith Troxell Nelson '20

Births

To Dana B. Anderson, Pharmacy '74, and his wife Linda, a son, Jeffrey Brian.

To Kathryn Ryan Thaanum, COP '75, and her husband Michael, a daughter, Veronica Ann.

Marriages

Kathryn A. Abernathy, COP '66, and Robert A. Jones.

Christopher Szecey, Callison '71, and Mary Schmidt.

Wendy Blecha, Education '73, and Mark Loftus.

Dr. Richard E. Bruschi, Pharmacy '77, and Janet G. Bower.

Mark F. Friend, SBPA '77, and Birgitte Ryslinge, SBPA '79.

Janet M. Lanfranco, COP '78, and Peter Bunting.

Luann K. Jackman, COP '79, and Gary Champlin.

Danilo F. Padilla, COP '79, and Anita Santos.

Joy D. Patterson, COP '79, and H. John McAleer.

Richard A. Leahy, SBPA '80, and Michelle McDonald, COP '82.

Donald K. Ruddell, COP '80, and Mary A. Bradfield, COP '80.

Ilene Shiromizu, SBPA '80, and Ron Kuwahara.

Katherine Ann Buller, Conservatory '81, and John Blumer.

Chris T. White, Education '81, and Rache L. Ellingsworth.

Dr. Denise A. Wood, Pharmacy '81, and Kieth E. Walsh.

Carlos H. Almarza, SBPA '82, and Diane Arguijo.

Michael E. Bradley, Raymond-Callison '82, and Nancy Lee Rice, COP '82.

James K. Gorospe, Pharmacy '82, and Susan M. Tippet.

Paul V. Lerma, COP & SBPA '82, and Lori Koehnen, Covell '80.

Luanne R. Lyons, Education '82, and Richard A. Tirapelle.

Sue C. Huff, COP '83, and Timothy A. Ulmer.

Bonnie La Civita, COP '83, and Fred Alexander.

Clifton W. Milliron, Engineering '83, and Kelly E. Ogletree.

James Monroe, Engineering '83, and Nora Beardsley, COP '81.

Kevin W. Plouse, Engineering '83, and Lynn M. Ehrenberg.

Noreen Santella, COP '83, and Terrence Williams.

Linda S. Telfer, COP '83, and Gary Gideon.

HOMECOMING

1983

Many traditions were part of Homecoming, with the parade along Pacific Avenue, football game won by Idaho, 31-19, and selection of Queen Lani Battiste and King Saverio De Luca. Reunion celebrations included Rhizomia fraternity (see page nine for more on the Rhizites), which attracted, among others, Bob Nikkel (left) and Harris Fine in their "Bowlers." A new event this year was a 3.1-mile road race along much of the parade route that involved nearly 300 competitors.

