UOP Welcomes its 22nd President

Bill and Pat Atchley

Bill Atchley

by Doyle Minden

ATCHLEY ASSUMES PRESIDENCY

Dr. Bill L. Atchley became the 22nd president of the University of the Pacific on July 1, succeeding Stanley E. McCaffrey who retired after 16 years as head of California's first chartered institution of higher education.

He is the fourth head of the University since its move to Stockton from San Jose in 1924. His predecessors were Tully C. Knoles who served from 1919 to 1946; Robert E. Burns, 1946-1971, and McCaffrey, 1971-1987.

Atchley comes to the University from Washington, D.C., where he was president of the National Science Center for Communications and Electronics Foundation, an organization devoted to improving the use of high technology in classroom teaching.

Prior to that position he was president of Clemson University in South Carolina from 1979-85.

In announcing the appointment of Atchley, Robert M. Eberhardt, chairman of the Board of Regents, stated: "We are extremely pleased to have a man of Bill Atchley's academic and administrative experience assume the leadership of the University. Dr. Atchley will continue the forward momentum of the University of the Pacific which has been generated by Stan McCaffrey over the past 16 years. We believe Dr. Atchley will help us achieve many of the goals we have for making Pacific an institution of even higher quality in the years to come."

Atchley, 55, and his wife Pat are natives of Cape Girardeau, Mo. and they have three children: Julie, a graduate of Southeast Missouri University; Pam, a graduate of Clemson, and David, who will graduate from Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C. next spring. Atchley earned a Bachelor of Science degree and a Master of Science degree, both in civil engineering, from the University of Missouri, Rolla and a Ph.D. in civil engineering from Texas A&M.

While at Clemson, he launched that institution's largest fund raising effort with an $89 million "Challenge to Greatness" campaign in 1982. Also, during Atchley's administration Clemson became the repository for the official papers of U.S. Senator Strom Thurmond and established the Strom Thurmond Center for Excellence in Government and Public Service. Atchley worked with Texas Governor John B. Connally, national chairman of the drive, to raise $25 million to endow the Center.

Prior to going to Clemson, Atchley was dean of the College of Engineering at West Virginia University from 1975 to 1979 and professor of engineering mechanics at the University of Missouri, Rolla from 1966 to 1975.

While at West Virginia University, Atchley established the College of Engineering's Effective Teaching Center, initiated a working research contract agreement with the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, directed a group which brought a $24 million fluidized bed to WVU and served as budget officer for a $63 million rapid transit system.

He also has served on a wide range of advisory boards. He was science and energy advisor to Governor Hearne and Governor Bond of Missouri, Governor Moore, Governor Rockefeller and the legislature of West Virginia, and to Governor Riley of South Carolina.

His civic activities have included serving as chairman of the Governor's Commission on Energy, Economy and Environment in West Virginia, a member of the Board of Directors of the Morgantown Chamber of Commerce, a member of the administrative board of the First Methodist Church, and chairman of the Council of Ministers for the Wesley Methodist Church.

In addition, he has held a wide range of directorates and committee assignments, including chairman of the Council of Presidents for the state-supported colleges and universities of South Carolina, and chairman and committee member of several energy-related commissions.

He continues to hold membership in a wide range of professional engineering associations.

His non-academic experience includes two seasons as a professional pitcher with the New York Giants organization.

The new president expressed his great pleasure upon arriving on the campus to assume his new duties. "Pat and I are pleased to be a part of the University of the Pacific," commented the President, whose given first name is Bill, not William. "We look forward to becoming acquainted with the faculty, students and alumni of the University in the coming weeks and months. The University of the Pacific has a distinguished history and a tradition of caring for students and concern for quality education. It is my hope that we can build on that foundation to make Pacific an even finer University."

A series of meetings and receptions are being planned on the campus and by Alumni Pacific Clubs throughout California to provide opportunities for Dr. and Mrs. Atchley to meet the UOP community. A formal inauguration of the 22nd President will be held later in the academic year.

PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH

When Bill Atchley assumed the presidency of the University of the Pacific on July 1, it completed a process that had been initiated more than a year earlier.

The process began in May, 1986 at the Commencement Convocation when President Stanley E. McCaffrey announced his intention to retire effective July 1, 1987 after nearly 16 years as head of the University.

In June, the Board of Regents established the procedure to select a new president by naming two committees to conduct the search.

The actual search was conducted by a 15-member campus committee headed by Gordon M. Schaber, dean of the University's McGeorge School of Law. The campus committee provided the seven-member Regents Committee, headed by Board Chairman Robert M. Eberhardt, with the names of three to five candidates not ranked in any order of preference who would be invited to the campus for interviews. The final selection of Atchley was voted upon by the full Board of Regents following a recommendation from the Regents committee.

The campus committee consisted of a chairman and six deans appointed by the Board of Regents, six faculty members elected by the Academic Council, a student designated by the student government association, and an alumnus selected by the Pacific Alumni Association.

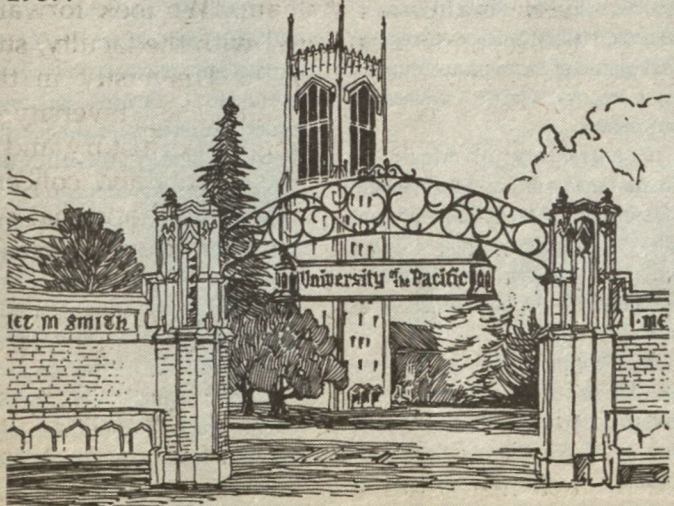

By August 1986, the campus committee had established a search procedure and determined qualifications of the candidates. The names of candidates were received from a wide range of sources, including advertisements in national publications. This phase of the search continued throughout the fall. Also, a professional executive search firm was retained to assist in the process.

By Dec. 1, a total of 205 prospective candidates had been presented to the search committee. Of this total, 169 nominees and applicants became active candidates.

The initial screening lowered the number of active candidates to 51. This group included 23 university or college presidents, 22 vice presidents, two deans, and four individuals who were not currently in higher education.

In March, Search Chairman Schaber announced that three candidates had been invited by the Regents Committee for campus visits to meet with members of the UOP community. Each candidate met with a wide range of committees during their visits and concluded with meetings open to all members of the campus community who were free to ask questions.

On April 9 Board Chairman Eberhardt announced the appointment and acceptance of Bill Atchley as the 22nd president of the University effective July 1, 1987.

Regents Endorse Collider

The University's Board of Regents has given its blessing to the proposed Superconductor Super Collider, endorsing its placement in the San Joaquin Valley. In unanimously passing the resolution, the regents cited research, financial and educational benefits that the $4.4 billion high-energy particle accelerator would bring to the San Joaquin Valley.

The Regents pointed out the thousands of jobs which building and operating the collider would produce, and the availability of scientific personnel at the facility (only 14 miles from Stockton), which, according to President Stanley McCaffrey, would "...bring to our area a scientific community virtually unmatched anywhere in the nation or the world."

The resolution also urged that the State of California "continue making every effort to accommodate the concerns of land owners in the region of the site with respect to environmental impact and agriculture."

Student Named as Presser Foundation Scholar

Tracy Martin, a voice performance major in the Conservatory, has been awarded a prestigious Presser Foundation Scholarship.

The $1,500 scholarship was bestowed upon recommendation of the Conservatory faculty for Martin's outstanding achievements as a music major. Martin is currently maintaining a 3.96 grade point average.

The award is funded by the Presser Foundation, headquartered in Bryn Mawr, Penn.

Law School Wins Moot Court Championship

McGeorge School of Law recently captured the 1987 Roger Traynor California Moot Court Championship. McGeorge defeated UC Davis in the final round of the 14-school competition, in which students presented hypothetical appellate cases before a panel of judges. The victory was UOP's third in the annual event's 17-year history.

McGeorge students Bill Oxley and Mark Meckler, assisted by third-year student Patricia Curtin, won the oral competition. A California Supreme Court Justice and three judges of the California 9th Circuit Court of Appeals presided over the event. McGeorge Professor Brian Landsberg served as the team's adviser.

Late Regent Holt Atherton Honored

The late Holt Atherton, a Texas businessman instrumental in the building of the new library facilities, was honored on May 1.

A portrait of Atherton, who died in March, 1986 at age 65, was unveiled and a conference room dedicated in his name.

Named to the Board of Regents in 1980, Atherton made a major contribution to the Holt-Atherton Center for Western Studies and led the major fund drive to build the new University library.

Tony Perino, a junior mathematics-economics major from Thousand Oaks, was selected as the Greek Man of the Year.

Two first-time awards were bestowed: The Award of Merit to Alpha Chi Omega and an invitation to 17 members of the Greek system to become charter members of the Order of Omega, a national leadership organization recognizing those fraternity women and men who have been particularly outstanding.

The charter members are: Norman Allen, Phi Delta Theta; Elizabeth Arnone, Patricia Fellows and Sharon Reese, Kappa Alpha Theta; Kara Ascarrunz, Dana Hazard and Erica Warren, Delta Gamma; Kraig Kawada and Marc Villers, Omega Phi Alpha; Carole Ketscher, Tanya Roth and Catherine Wall, Delta Delta Delta; Sonja Paoletti and Cheryl Petro, Alpha Chi Omega; Tony Perino, Archania; Alden Smith, Phi Delta Chi, and Christopher Woo, Kappa Psi.

Mile Feat Commemorated

On June 1, 1957, Don Bowden, competing for UC Berkeley, accomplished an American track milestone when he clocked 3 minutes and 58.7 seconds on UOP's Baxter Stadium track. He was the first American to run the mile in less than four minutes, and at the time his mark was the world's third fastest for a four-lap mile.

On May 1, Bowden was present as UOP officials erected a historical marker honoring his feat. The marker was placed adjacent to Raymond Great Hall, approximately 20 yards from the finish line of the no-longer existing Baxter Stadium track.

Music Education Classes Offered

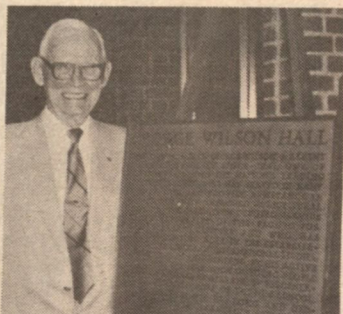

Dr. Lois Harrison, Chair of the Department of Music Education, will be conducting two three-day workshops dealing with teaching both secondary and elementary students.

The first workshop, Music Education for the Non-Performing Secondary Student, offered Aug. 11-13, will emphasize strengthening critical thinking skills related to music.

The second workshop, Elementary Music Education Workshop, to be held Aug. 18-20, is designed for elementary classroom and general music specialists. Seven musical activities — listening, singing, playing, moving, creating, reading and writing — will be employed to teach the elements of music through a conceptual approach.

Attention will be given to the partnership between the classroom teacher and music specialist.

The two courses will be held from 8-11 a.m. and 1-3 p.m. in the Choral Rehearsal Hall. Cost for each course is $55 for one unit of extended education credit.

George Wilson gave a moving speech at the dedication ceremony for Wilson Hall.

George Wilson Hall Dedicated

The headquarters of the new School of International Studies, formerly the El Centro Building, have been named in honor of long-time UOP Regent George Wilson for his 46-year service to the University and efforts in helping establish the new School. Wilson is a rancher in Clarksburg.

Commencement Awards Presented

Pacific's commencement exercises, held May 15-17, featured the presentation of two honorary degrees and three "Order of the Pacific" awards.

Retiring President Stanley E. McCaffrey received the University's highest award, the "Order of the Pacific." McCaffrey was also honored by the University Board of Regents, which renamed the University Center in his honor and established an endowed scholarship fund in his name.

Also receiving Order of the Pacific Awards were two retiring faculty members, Robert Smutny, professor of classics at UOP for 32 years, and his late wife, Ernestine, a faculty and library staff member at UOP for 24 years.

A.W. Clausen, president of the Bank of America, and Lawrence A. DeRicco, retiring president of San Joaquin Delta college, both received honorary Doctor of Laws degrees.

Krakora Fund Initiated

Stocktonian Sharon Brookhart graduated from the College of the Pacific in 1960 with plans to begin a teaching career. However, Sharon soon became disenchanted with the air of permissiveness and lack of parental support that hindered discipline in the classroom, and left her teaching career to accept a position in an East Bay bank.

About the same time, L. J. Krakora had immigrated from Czechoslovakia by way of Canada and found his way to the East Bay where he met Sharon. Despite their

by Liz Konold

Nine teams of callers competed in the recent Phonathon 1987, raising over $22,000 from 550 donors for the Annual Pacific Fund. Members of the Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity won the top team prize of a free river raft trip donated by Trowbridge Recreation, Inc. The Delta Sigs received $3,815 in pledges from 125 donors.

Other teams competing were actives and pledges of the Delta Gamma sorority and the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, the Public Relations Student Society of America, a faculty/administration team captained by Vice President Judith Chambers, student members of Dr. Carol Ann Hall's public relations classes, and a group of independent callers.

Julie Rapp, a junior from Laguna Beach, was the top overall individual caller, winning a cordless phone and dinner at Luigi Murphy's. Scott Mori, a junior from Placentia, was runner-up. Winner of the "tops in spirit" was Julie Matraw, a senior from Danville who chaired the Phonathon.

Callers contacted alumni from the classes of 1970 through 1985 to increase their participation rate and gifts to UOP. The annual Pacific Fund raises $1 million per year to provide additional money for needs such as scholarships, faculty research and development, and resources for the library and language labs.

23-year age difference, the two were married in 1964 and eventually settled in St. Augustine, Fla. where Sharon died in May 1986.

In memory of his wife, Krakora created an endowed scholarship fund with a special gift of $50,000. The scholarship will be awarded each year to a female student working part-time to put herself through college. The student must also be an American citizen who has set a good example of high citizenship qualities.

Krakora is so proud of the fund honoring his wife's achievements during her life that he plans to have a bequest of $250,000 added to the fund upon his death. The University is pleased to help provide this recognition to the memory of Sharon Brookhart Krakora, class of 1960.

Pharmacy School Awarded Grant

The School of Pharmacy was recently awarded a $22,438 grant from the SmithKline Beckman Corporation to enhance its internship program.

Dr. Robert Gehres, assistant professor of pharmacy and coordinator of the grant, says the award will support development of a placement examination for UOP students entering their experimental pharmacy education rotations.

Chosen from 52 applicants, UOP was one of 15 pharmacy colleges to receive grants.

To become certified, a candidate must possess an accepted level of fund raising experience, successfully raise a significant amount of money for nonprofit organizations, and contribute to the advancement of fund raising and philanthropic management. In addition, each candidate must pass an examination which tests fund raising skills and knowledge in all aspects of the field.

The NSFRE is an educational organization based in Alexandria, Va., with a membership of over 7,500 professional fund raisers from throughout the country.

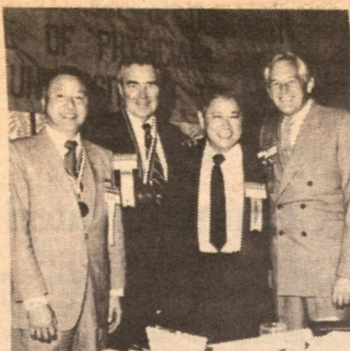

Grant Received for School of International Studies

The Consortium for the Advancement of Private Higher Education (CAPHE) recently awarded the University a $45,552 grant to support the new School of International Studies.

The grant provides for a five-week seminar this summer to aid the school's faculty in instituting the school's curriculum. Courses will be offered beginning in the Fall semester with an expected enrollment of 150 students.

CAPHE president Michael O'Keefe emphasized, "(The UOP) project impressed our reviewers as a thorough... interdisciplinary approach to international education." President Stanley McCaffrey added, "We believe this seminar will be of vital importance in assuring that the curriculum of the School will be well planned... It should prove extremely helpful in preparing the total academic program of the new School for its beginning in the fall semester."

UOP, which will match the grant, received the third highest award and was one of 28 independent universities out of over 100 possible recipients from across the U.S. chosen by CAPHE.

Regent Herbert Yee, President Stanley McCaffrey, School of Dentistry Alumni Association President Theodore Lee and Dentistry Dean Arthur Dugoni attended the UOP Alumni Association annual meeting.

A talented crop of young players has Coach Bob Cope fired up for the coming season.

FOOTBALL '87

Optimism High for Tiger Gridders

For Tiger head coach Bob Cope, last year's season is a painful memory of what could-have-been. Field goals on the last play of three games, and touchdowns in the last two minutes of two other games transformed five wins into disheartening defeats. Thus, a possible 9-2 record dropped to a disappointing 4-7 season.

But Coach Cope does not believe in dwelling on negatives in the past. Instead he points out the positives of the Pacific program as it enters the fifth year under his direction. Cope has guided UOP to several big wins, but none more stunning than last fall's 24-20 upset of Minnesota, which later beat Michigan and earned a Liberty Bowl berth. Under Cope, the Tigers have also defeated Oregon and Hawaii, and ended long losing streaks to PCAA foes Fresno State, San Jose State and Utah State.

"I'm really excited about this team," says Cope. "It is definitely the most talented team we have had since I've been here. This team has great ability, tremendous work habits and a real desire to be good. We are young, but I do believe that talent and hard work overcome inexperience. I would rather be young and talented than old and bad."

Pacific is definitely young, having graduated 31 seniors, 22 of them starters. This year's senior class numbers only 17. Freshmen and sophomores account for 41 spots on the roster, joined by 15 junior college transfers.

However, Cope believes the wishbone offense he instituted two years ago will run smoothly even with new faces. Last year's rushing unit finished seventh nationally, averaging 287 yards per game, the best UOP mark since 1973. Pacific was 17th in total offense nationally, averaging 406 yards per game, tops in UOP history.

Cope has targeted three key areas of emphasis for his team in 1987: eliminating turnovers, continued improvement on defense and introducing the big play in all areas.

Toward that end, Cope spent much of spring drills putting his team into every conceivable pressure situation in practices and scrimmages. He feels the repetition of pressure situations during spring camp will pay dividends this fall.

Admittedly, the 1987 schedule is brutal. Pacific plays on the road against Pac 10 teams three times in the first four weeks, two of those teams (Arizona State and Washington) are among the favored Rose Bowl contenders. The Tigers travel 7 of 11 weeks this fall.

Following is a position-by-position look at the Tigers.

QUARTERBACKS: Hue Jackson, the only quarterback ever to run the Pacific wishbone in its two years, is gone. Spring drills figured to be a battle between sophomore Rodney Powell (6-1, 208) and redshirt freshman Ron Beverly (5-11, 185). But complicating the picture was Laney College transfer Jay Frost (5-10, 175), who led the Tigers in passing in the spring game and took the varsity to a pair of touchdowns.

RUNNING BACKS: All three backfield positions will feature new starters, led by senior Anthony Simien

(5-7, 164), a small but deceptively tough, elusive runner. Junior redshirt Rand Chatman (5-8, 190) was impressive in spring drills and senior Keith Parker (6-1, 200) sparked late last season. The other returning tailbacks are junior redshirts Vernon Hadnot (6-2, 193) and Jon Holmes (6-0, 190). The fullback spot has several contenders, among them Chris Mendenhall (5-11, 225), who missed all of spring drills with a knee injury.

OFFENSIVE LINE: Leading the way is one of the PCAA's top interior linemen, senior Dennis McGowan (6-2, 250). Six sophomores return: Bob Nordbeck (6-4, 250), Ted Diehl (6-3, 230), Jamie Nott (6-2, 270), Doug Smith (6-4, 250), Michael Thompson (6-4, 275) and Bill Zankich (6-5, 265).

TIGHT END: A battle is shaping between sophomore Erick Miller (6-3, 235), who started eight games last fall, and senior Dan Waters (6-3, 224), who started one game.

WIDE RECEIVER: As a group, the Pacific receivers are among the best in the league, according to Cope. "For a team that runs the wishbone, we have better receivers than we probably ought to have," he says. Heading the list are seniors Kennedy Bryant (5-10, 170) and Booker Guyton (5-10, 180). Strong depth is provided by juniors Troy Cole (6-1, 165) and Derek Rogers (5-10, 170), sophomore Doug Tackett (6-3, 210), and freshmen Leonard Hernandez (6-0, 172), Pat Hannigan (6-2, 185) and Dave Miller (6-2, 175).

PLACEKICKER: A new starter has to be found between redshirt freshman Jon Derr (5-9, 155) and transfers Bryan Jones (6-1, 175) and Mark Gran (5-10, 175).

DEFENSIVE LINE: The defensive line looked promising during spring drills. Only three regulars return from last year, led by senior Marvin Williams (6-3, 223) and joined by sophomore Richard Harris (6-0, 250) and senior Ken Calender (6-2, 250). Other returnees are seniors Alan Green (6-3, 256) and Mike Jones (6-3, 250), sophomores Kendrick Brown (6-2, 200), Glen Ellis (6-3, 218) and Dan Hampton (6-2, 232), and redshirt freshmen Dean Wilhelm (6-3, 205) and Gordon Cooper (6-3, 220).

OUTSIDE LINEBACKERS: Cope feels the Tigers are as good as any team in the league at this position. The major reasons are senior Dave Thistle (6-2, 210) and Mike McMaster (6-2, 195), a standout at rover last year. Other bright spots are sophomore Andrew Thomas (6-1, 220), Delta College transfer Mike Woznick (6-1, 197) and junior Javier Cid (5-11, 185).

INSIDE LINEBACKERS: Two new starters have to be found here. One figures to be senior Mark Roberts (6-1, 210), a scholar athlete and the team's top returning defensive player. Other contenders are junior Mike Hawkins (6-2, 228), son of former Pacific and Raider great Wayne Hawkins, senior Todd Herrington (6-0, 215), and sophomores Chad Kurashige (6-0, 227) and Dave Lopez (6-3, 230).

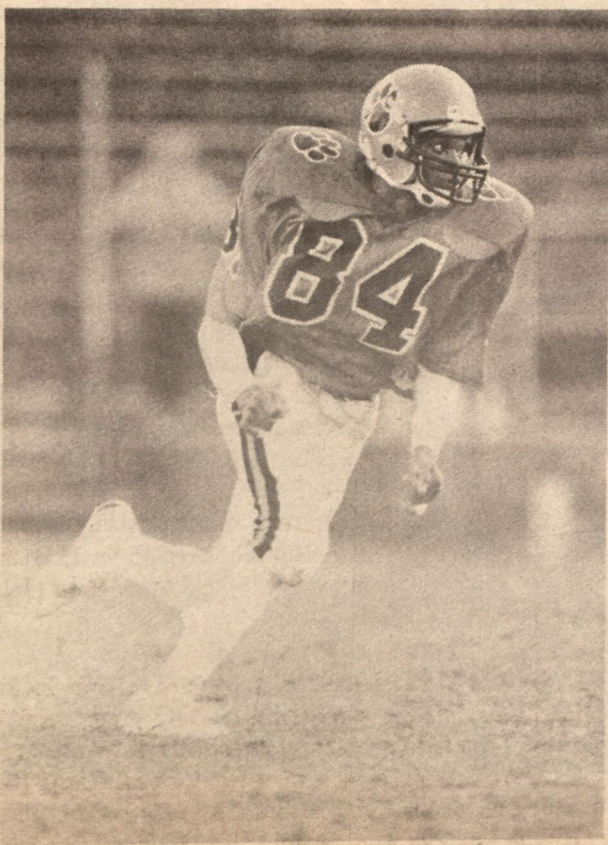

SECONDARY: Cope feels the Tigers have as much ability here as they have had in years. Versatile senior Mike Fischer (5-9, 180) started all 11 games at cornerback and returned punts and kickoffs, including a 97-yard TD runback against UC Davis. Talented veterans include seniors Cedell Bush (6-0, 187) and Rawland Crawford (5-10, 170) and sophomores Greg Koperek (5-10, 170) and Deron Spencer (5-9, 175). Long Beach CC's Rich Pembroke (6-1, 190) and David Brown (5-8, 180) from San Diego Mesa JC are highly touted transfers.

PUNTER: Returnee Pat Weisensee (5-10, 175) will be challenged by Junior College All American Bryant Jones (6-1, 175) from West Hills JC, who averaged over 45 yards per kick last fall.

HOMECOMING 1987

Tiger Stripes Forever!

Homecoming Weekend Oct. 23-25 promises to be unusually festive this year, with many class reunions and special gatherings.

Celebrating the bicentennial of the Constitution as well as the 63rd anniversary of UOP's Homecoming, the parade theme is "Tiger Stripes Forever."

Friday night's events include the Jazz Band Concert in the new Faye Spanos Concert Hall. The Block P Dinner, featuring the conferring of the A.A. Stagg Awards, will be held at the Hilton Hotel at 7:30 p.m., preceded by a social hour at 6:30.

Saturday morning's activities begin with the Past Presidents' Breakfast. The Alumni Association invites all past presidents of ASUOP, AWS and the Alumni Association to join them so that these outstanding leaders can keep abreast of developments at UOP.

The parade, with more marching bands than in many years, will start at 9:30 a.m. on its journey down Pacific Avenue to Stadium Way.

President Bill Atchley will greet alumni at the All Alumni Awards Luncheon at 11:30 a.m. in Grace Covell Hall. The Class of 1927, celebrating its 60th reunion, has reserved special tables at this event, which features the distinguished alumni awards.

The football game, against Fresno State, kicks off at 2 p.m. You may order your tickets from the University Box Office, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95211, (209) 946-2474. All alumni are invited to gather at the Hilton Hotel UOP Reception after the game.

Special anniversary celebrations begin that evening with a post-game reception in the Raymond Common Room to commemorate the Class of '77's 10th reunion.

The 25th reunion of the Classes of '61 and '62 will be celebrated at a dinner after the football game.

The Hilton Hotel will be the location of a dinner celebrating the 35th reunion of the Classes of '52 and '53.

The classes from '43 to '48 are also planning to "reune" at the Hilton. They will dine together and then invite other reunion classes to join them for dancing.

The 45th reunion of the Classes of '41 and '42 will take place at Le Bistro. Ed Fay and Bill Biddick are coordinating this gathering. In fact, all the reunions are planned and organized by volunteer committees with help from the Alumni Office.

Radio production alumni are planning a very special reunion on Sunday morning. A brunch honoring John and Bobbin Gay Crabbe, radio pioneers, will be followed by a tour of the newly refurbished KUOP studios.

Plan to return to the campus for the entire weekend! For more information, contact the Alumni Office, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95211, (209) 946-2391.

A GLITTERING NIGHT TO RE

Gala Dedication Opens Faye Spanos Concert Hall

All dressed up and no where to go was certainly not the predicament for more than 900 people who attended the dedication celebration for the sparkling new Faye Spanos Concert Hall on Saturday, May 2.

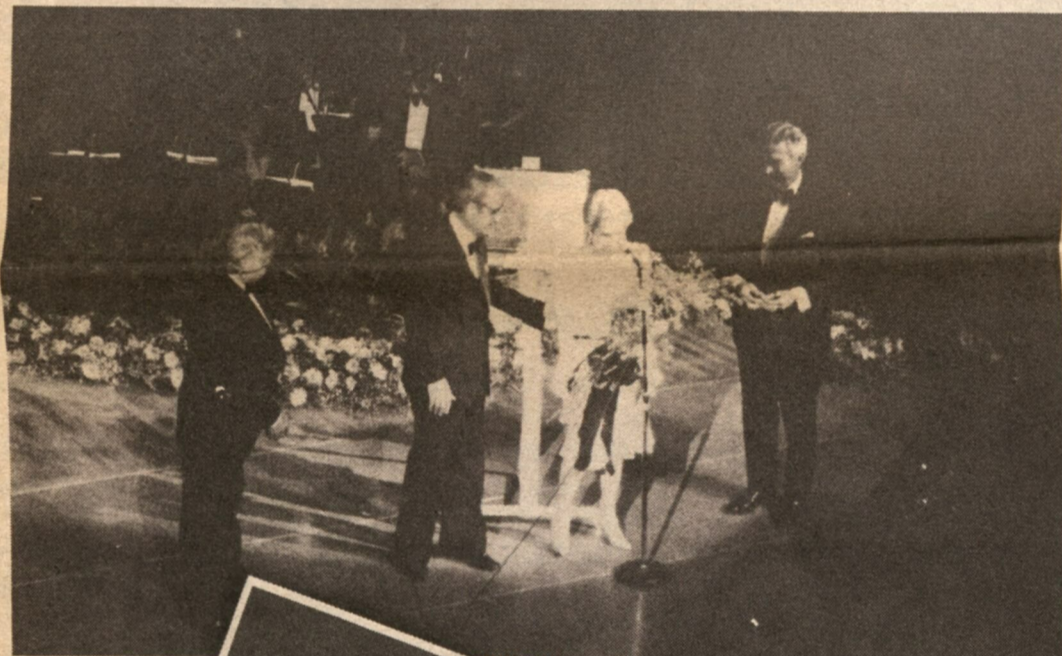

The black tie event featured unforgettable performances by Bob and Dolores Hope and Vic Damone and Diahann Carroll, as well as the University Conservatory Orchestra and A Cappella Choir. Telly Savalas served as emcee. Among those attending the event were Governor and Mrs. Deukmejian.

Hope's comedy monologue, interspersed with several songs, lasted nearly an hour-and-a-half and was especially memorable. It was actually Hope's second visit to the UOP Conservatory — he appeared there with the Les Brown Orchestra as part of a radio show in the late 1940s.

The dedication raised more than $125,000 for a Conservatory of Music scholarship fund that has been named in honor of Faye Spanos. The concert hall was named for Faye to recognize her special interest in the arts as well as the contributions her husband Alex has made to the restoration of the historic Conservatory of Music and to other projects at the University.

Prior to the entertainment portion of the program, President Stanley McCaffrey presented Faye with a commemorative plaque which officially dedicated the concert hall in her name.

The festive evening also included a pre-event dinner-reception and a post-performance reception, both in Grace Covell Dining Hall.

PACIFIC PROFILE

DAVE FREDERICKSON

by Dr. Maurice McCullen
(with Glenna Lee, Editor)

In a recent special interview, Pacific Review Editor Glenna Lee talked with Dave Frederickson (COP '66), Executive Assistant to the Assistant Secretary for the Department of Energy's Management and Administrative Office and advance media coordinator on assignment for the White House in Washington D.C.

In 1976, Dave Frederickson was one of the Ten Outstanding Young Men in America, according to the United States Jaycees. Far from culminating his achievements, that award served as a harbinger of things to come.

Since graduation, Frederickson has founded his own public relations firm, been media consultant for three presidential campaigns, produced and anchored two television series, become a community leader in Houston, Texas, and held a variety of governmental posts in Washington D.C. Mapping out this man's career requires a spread sheet!

But he doesn't use the word "career," preferring instead "concurrent vocations." Frederickson juggles so many pursuits simultaneously that what he does requires another term. The key word, "vocation," suggests the man. He loves what he does, involves himself intensely, and feels that he has a special aptitude for creating images to explain aspects of American life.

Frederickson's success has surprised none of his teachers and friends at Pacific, where he was an award-winning graduate in chemistry/communications and one of 23 campus leaders selected nationwide for Who's Who among American college students. Nor to anyone's knowledge have eyebrows raised in his adopted hometown, Houston, where he was one of Five Outstanding Young Texans in 1975. Or even in Washington, D.C., where he directed the advertising and promotion campaign for President Ronald Reagan's second inauguration.

Frederickson's eventful professional life makes for a long and impressive "vocations biography." And since his various pursuits all seem to take place at the same time, sketching out a chronology is tricky business.

BACKGROUND FOR SUCCESS

Born blind in one eye and partially paralyzed on his left side, Frederickson faced obstacles early in his life and resolved to overcome them. Surgery saved his remaining eyesight and, with support from his family, he began to develop threads of interest that would shape the fabric of his future: a lifelong fascination with politics, a talent for good journalism (sportswriting replaced sports in his youth), and a desire to become a doctor in order to heal the handicapped as he had been healed.

Frederickson attained an admirable all-around record at Tulare Union High School, excelling in theater, student government and school and community choirs. In 1977, he became one of ten alumni inducted into Tulare High's All-Time Hall of Fame, joining Bob Mathias and administrator Elmo Zumwalt, Jr. Named the school's outstanding journalist as a senior, he took his California State Scholarship to U.C. Berkeley. As a sophomore, he transferred to Pacific to be near Margaret Peers (Pharmacy '66), his steady girlfriend from Tulare High.

At Pacific, Frederickson's life really started coming together. He and Margaret were married in Morris Chapel in May 1963. In addition to being the groom, Frederickson sang the incidental music for the service.

He credits his vocal coach and friend, Dr. Charles Schilling, with the advice that helped Margaret and him, as two students, achieve their goals successfully.

"He was a wonderful influence on our lives," Frederickson remembers. "We went to him when we were going to get married and he counseled us that we had a decision to make — we could either be married people who also went to school, or we could be students who happened to be married. He said that some students put their marriage so far ahead of other things that they slight their student lives. He urged us to continue to play active roles in campus life.

"It was simple advice," Frederickson concludes, "but some of the best we've ever received. We've never had to look back and say 'Boy, if we hadn't been married, we could have done this or that!' We've remained individuals — together."

Clearly, Schilling was a valuable mentor for the couple. Frederickson remembers other instructors at Pacific with equal fondness: Dean Edward Betz, professors Edwin Ding, Monroe Hess, Herschel Frye ("a buddy"), journalism adviser Gene Ross, PR Director Hal Kambak, President Robert Burns and especially Emerson Cobb, then chairman of the Chemistry Department. Cobb was a demanding teacher, but Frederickson remembers one important facet of his mentorship — a facet he and Margaret remember as being typical of the faculty as a whole: "He never cared a lot whether I was going to be a great chemist. What really mattered to him was whether I was going to be a decent human being — He was more than a teacher and adviser — He was a friend."

Frederickson's summary imparts an eloquent testimony from a student to his teachers: "As much as anything, Pacific gave us an atmosphere of care and support. It helped us to see that the obstacles we have encountered in our careers have been only apparent roadblocks. Most of them have turned out to be temporary. I think that the thing we learned at Pacific is that there are people who care and it doesn't matter how severe the problem or how difficult the obstacle — there is always somebody who is willing to take an interest and be supportive."

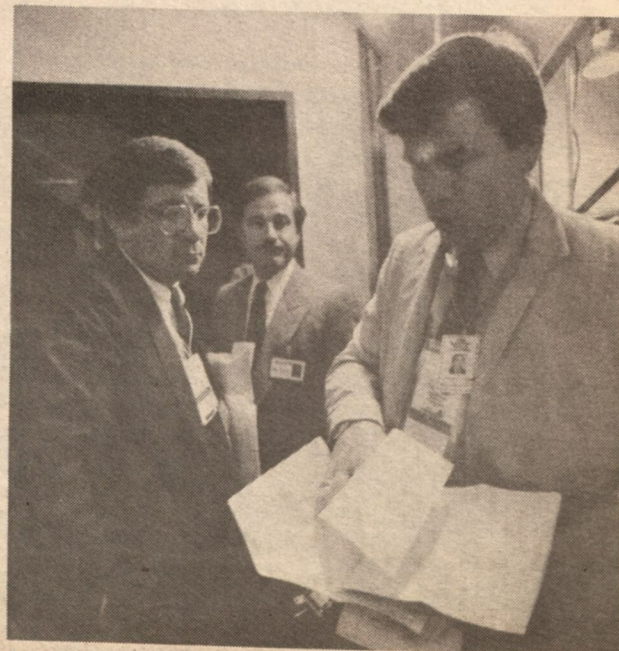

Care and support — they were necessities for Dave and Margaret in those days. Marriage, part-time work, a demanding academic schedule and extra-curricular activities constituted a 24-hour workday for them, and that didn't include Dave's major college emphasis. "I was a reporter for the Pacific Weekly (today's Pacifican) for three semesters. Then I became the news editor, and in my senior year I was the editor," he recalls. "During that year

Taking a break from his anchor duties, the versatile Frederickson runs the camera on the 30-hour KHTV-39 Houston Kickathon for Muscular Dystrophy.

(1965-66), the Weekly won the Columbia University/Overseas Press Club award for the best college weekly in America."

As editor, Frederickson won a trip to New York and Washington, where Bill Moyers (then Lyndon Johnson's Press Secretary) discussed his work in a White House session. "To find myself there," he says with a far-away look in his eyes, "was hard to comprehend. That was where my interest in the White House began, in January of 1966. And ironically, ten years later, in January of 1976, I was working for President Ford."

"I think that hearing Bill Moyers tell how he succeeded, knowing that he had a similar small-town background, sort of convinced me that if other people could do it, then it was do-able. 'I can do it, too,' I said to myself — and it was a great feeling!"

Frederickson's Pacific experience brought many of the threads of his young life together: politics, journalism, performance, marriage, the confidence to succeed. But his intended medical career did not materialize. His became a medicine to media story — from chemistry to communications!

ESTABLISHING A CAREER

Waiting for medical school in Houston in 1966, Frederickson began his career in medical research and pharmaceutical sales. In 1968, he had an opportunity to join a consulting firm in the petroleum industry via his degree in chemistry. He soon used his writing and editing skills to move into the advertising and public relations side of the business. In his "spare time" he worked for the GOP, the Methodist Church and other community organizations. In 1970 he took over William Archer's primary campaign for the U.S. Congress. Archer won! Doors began to open. Chemistry became history.

Positions in advertising and public relations led to the formation of David W. Frederickson and Co., a firm he headed for more than eight years. In 1971, his community-wide service resulted in a news and public affairs television program, "FACET," which he anchored and produced. Frederickson stayed on for 11½ years, hosting headliners like Phyllis Diller, Maurey Amsterdam, Billy Graham and William Safire as well as various community, state and national leaders — more than 550 episodes and 1,500 guests. He picked every topic for the award-winning FACET, which became the longest-running local public affairs television program in Houston. "It was very rewarding," he says. "It was challenging, exciting... and great fun!"

Concurrently, from 1974-84 Frederickson's

political and public relations vocations merged, uniting his path toward presidential service. He was press chairman for the 1975 GOP Southern Republican Conference, which led to a White House press staff position as press assistant to Gerald Ford. He then helped direct press relations for John Connally's presidential campaign, after which he joined the Reagan campaign staff in May 1980 as a press assistant. In 1982, he became Assistant Administrator of Public Communications for the Small Business Administration. Asked to create a television show focusing on small business, he designed, produced and anchored the "Small Business Report," which originated on the Chamber of Commerce satellite network "BIZNET." About 200 TV stations, commercial and public, syndicated Small Business Report — which also aired on nearly 800 cable systems.

Frederickson left the Small Business Administration in 1984 to tackle a variety of special assignments. He says, jokingly, "I'm a stringer for the White House." Before assuming his position with the Energy Department in June, he served as special assistant to the Assistant Secretary for Elementary and Secondary Education. In his present role, he helps direct a staff of 1,200 professionals and a workforce of 135,000 federal government and contract employees. His office manages a $20 million budget and is responsible for the daily operations, management and administration of the Department of Energy.

At the same time, he continues to serve as an advance media coordinator for the White House on such major assignments as President Reagan's summit trips and Liberty Weekend.

As his wife says, "He always works on at least two things at the same time." She accompanies him on occasion, while continuing her pharmacy career with People's Drugs in Washington, D.C., where she serves as the pharmacy manager and assistant store manager.

Billy Graham makes a point during an interview on "Facet," the news/public affairs program which Frederickson hosted on KHTV-39 in Houston for 11½ years.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Why does Frederickson do it all? "Obstacles become challenges," he shrugs. "One thing leads to another." Easy enough for, as friends and colleagues note, a "dynamo" like Frederickson. When interviewed, Frederickson enthusiastically peppers his answers with words like "fun," "exciting," "rewarding," "life" and "commitment."

Understandably, when asked to pick a highlight from his many experiences, he has trouble narrowing it down. Reviewing some of his adventures, he launches into one of his favorite stories: On a survey trip for a whistle-stop tour with President Ford, Frederickson and other staff members stopped in Springfield, Ill. and lunched at the Abraham Lincoln Hotel. The name alone produced strong vibrations among members of the survey team. Seeing that it was a quaint place, with good food and a large regular clientele, the group decided to book the hotel for a luncheon on their return trip the following Saturday. Asking for the catering manager, they found a "sort of short, kind of wide, white-haired lady probably in her late sixties." She was the owner — "very pleasant, but very busy."

She asked the size of the group and was informed that it would number 350. Looking thoughtful, she decided that she couldn't disappoint her regular brunch customers. Then she wondered what company the group represented. She was told "the White House." She wrote that down and asked who would be attending. The spokesman said casually, "Well, the President would have lunch here."

Starting to write, her pen stopped mid-stroke. "The President?" she said wonderingly. "MY President will lunch in MY hotel? Oh, Sir," she gasped, "we can do whatever the President would like!"

"That story represents the best part of my work," says Frederickson seriously. "The opportunity to see America the way it really is, up close, is what fulfills me the most. You find out that America IS real — that it's made up of men and women, boys and girls, who one-by-one still represent what you think America is.

"That doesn't mean there aren't problems — there are a lot of those. But in each of our communities there are Rotary clubs and Sunday school classes. You go in and you work with them and suddenly you find that every one of them shares this little piece of belief — in what the president is, in what the country is and in what they can do for it. At that moment in time you know exactly what it means to say, 'We the People... Celebrate America!'"
