HISTORICAL BACKGROUND OF MACE

The mace, originally a weapon of offense used in medieval warfare by a king or a great noble, has been refined into a symbolic device which is used on ceremonial occasions. As an academic symbol, the mace dates back to the 16th century England when Queen Elizabeth I presented a replica of her own royal mace to the corporation of the University of Oxford in 1589. She ordered that it be used in all ceremonies to represent the royal presence and the authority granted to the University to issue degrees under the royal insignia. King Charles I made a similar gift to Cambridge University in 1625.

In this same tradition, the late President Robert R. Burns commissioned Stuart Devlin, internationally known London silver designer, to design and construct a mace for the University of the Pacific. The mace is approximately four feet long, weighs approximately 15 pounds, and is constructed entirely of silver with gold plating. It was a gift to the University by Mrs. Winifred Raney, Regent of the University, and was first used in 1966.

SIGNIFICANCE OF ACADEMIC REGALIA

Distinctive academic dress can be traced back to the universities of the Middle Ages. In the early centuries of its existence, the costume was worn as daily garb, and the several parts each had its practical use. In more recent centuries its use in complete form has been reserved for special, ceremonial occasions.

European universities tend to display considerable variation in their academic regalia. In the United States, however, a standard pattern was adopted over a half-century ago to which virtually all American colleges and universities adhere. This governs the material, style, color and trimmings of the gown and hood, the style of the cap, and the color of the tassel.

The field of learning in which the degree was awarded is shown by the color on the edging of the hood, and in some cases by the color of the facing and crossbars on the doctor's gowns. Some of the more frequently seen colors are: white (Arts and Letters), pink (Music), dark blue (Philosophy), light blue (Education), scarlet (Divinity), golden yellow (Science), lilac (Dentistry), olive green (Pharmacy), and purple (Law).

Graduates or candidates for the Juris Doctor Degree who are elected to The Order of the Coif wear, as part of their academic regalia, the traditional white coif attached to their mortarboard.
