Redig, McCargo to lead UOP Board of Regents...

Dr. Dale F. Redig

Robert M. Eberhardt was elevated to the position of Chairman Emeritus. Dr. Dale F. Redig, a Board member since 1986, was named chairman; James S. McCargo, a member of the Board since 1989, was elected vice chairman.

"Bob Eberhardt has given unselfishly of his time, talent and resources for many years," said UOP President Bill L. Atchley. "The contributions he has made both in terms of leadership skills and in terms of financial support have helped make this University what it is today. Bob, the Eberhardt Family and the Bank of Stockton have been an integral part of the development of the University."

Eberhardt will continue to take an active role as chair of the University's "Fulfilling the Promise" $70 million capital campaign. Atchley noted that the Eberhardt family has been among the strongest supporters of academic programs and provided leadership in this area by being among the first to establish an endowment fund for faculty development. Bob Eberhardt has been a Board member since 1963 and Board chairman since 1975.

Redig is executive director of the California Dental Association. He served as dean of the UOP School of Dentistry in San Francisco from 1969 to 1978. Prior to that time, he had been at the University of Iowa School of Dentistry from 1961.

Jim McCargo, a 1973 UOP alumnus, is a Stockton businessman.

Reelected were Weldon Moss as treasurer; Nancy Spiekerman, secretary and Francis Ferguson, assistant secretary. Donald Smith, formerly vice chairman, will continue as a member of the Board.

"Don Smith has been an active and involved member of the Board since 1984," Atchley said, "and we all appreciate the numerous contributions he has made and I am sure he will continue to make to the University."

...Janssen, Kautz join governing body

Kathleen Lagorio Janssen of Lagorio Communications Company in Manteca and Gail E. Kautz '58 of Lodi have been named members of UOP Board of Regents.

Janssen, who is part-owner of the Ace Tomato Co. Inc., the Ace Apple Co., Inc. and the Delta Pre-Pack Company, is managing partner of Lagorio Communications Company, named 10th largest specialized mobile radio operator in the United States.

She has served on many professional and community organizations, including the American Association of University Women for nine years and on the board of directors of the Stockton Teachers Association for 10 years — serving as STA's president from 1977-78.

Last year, Janssen was named to "Who's Who in Telecommunications Industry" and in 1990 was named to "Who's Who in Women Executives."

Receiving her bachelor of arts in English from UOP in 1969 and master of arts from the University of San Francisco in 1978, Janssen has also received the California teaching and administrative credentials from UOP.

Janssen and her husband, Dean, have three sons.

After earning her associate of arts degree in speech and T.V. production from Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri, Kautz attended UOP and received her bachelor of arts degree with a degree in elementary education.

She is a former Regent of the El Toyon Chapter of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, board member and immediate past chairman of the California State Fair & Exposition, past president of the California 4-H Foundation and former member of the board of trustees for the San Joaquin County Historical Museum.

Kautz has been very active in fund raising activities for the 4-H Foundation and is also past chairman of the Childrens Home Auxiliary.

Kautz served as a delegate to the Republic National Convention in 1992 and has been active in fund-raising for the Republican Party.

Kautz is actively involved with the agricultural operation in Lodi and Ironstone Winery in Murphys. She and her husband, John, have three sons and a daughter.

UOP alum's career just 'grand'

When the world's largest hotel and casino, the MGM Grand Hotel Casino and Theme Park, opened recently in Las Vegas, someone had to design the music and the productions for 12 stage shows in the Grand Adventures Theme Park. Scott Liggett, a 1971 graduate of the Conservatory of Music and executive producer and staff composer for Alan Ett Music in Burbank, knew he was the man for the job.

"I went after this for two years," said Liggett, executive music producer and composer for what is the only theme park in Las Vegas. "It wasn't always easy... the entertainment department was going through a lot of changes and we constantly had to re-create business relationships."

According to Liggett, Las Vegas is headed toward family-oriented entertainment. Although persistence and the incorporation of family ideals helped the producer land the MGM account, the ambitious Liggett isn't finished yet. "I'm currently negotiating production deals for the entire hotel and casino," he said. "The entertainment division of the hotel is on the cutting edge of innovative entertainment; they appreciate what we do." Although headquartered in Burbank, Liggett is able to produce for the hotel with few business trips to the city itself. "Most of the production is done in Los Angeles, which is true of most of the music production for hotels in Vegas," he explained. "We do the composing and recording, meet with the directors and choreographers and export the end result."

Scott Liggett, Conservatory '71, executive producer and staff composer for Alan Ett Music in Burbank, composes a television commercial. His clients include: NBC, CBS, HBO, TNT, Fox Television, Castlerock Entertainment and the Emmy Awards.

Alums work together to support their Alma Mater

"Calling all friends and alumni of the University of the Pacific."

"How would you like to be involved in putting a state-of-the-art work station cluster in at UOP?" wrote Michelle Buscho, Computer Science '84, as she input the e-mail message at Hewlett-Packard and sent it to her fellow employees.

Thus was the beginning of a successful campaign through Hewlett-Packard's employee matching gift program that resulted in the purchasing of two high-powered workstations for UOP.

Like hundreds of other businesses and corporations across the country, HP matches employee gifts to non-profit organizations. What makes HP special, however, is that the company contributes three-fourths of the list price of the product(s) while the employee contributes the remaining one-fourth.

The idea was developed several years ago during a visit by UOP President Bill Atchley to Palo Alto.

At that time, several alums working for computer companies were interested in promoting the installation of more computer facilities on campus. Clearly, the biggest road block was the cost. It was then that the idea to help do something about it, was formulated.

"I know that in order for students to be competitive in the job market they need to be literate on workstations," said Wesley Cheng, an HP software project manager. "Workstations are powerful desktop computers with graphical user interfaces running multi-tasking operating system."

The process they followed was simple. After coming up with the initial idea, Buscho, an HP information technology consultant, and Cheng met with faculty members to determine what would most benefit the University. Buscho and Cheng confessed that it was their hope that UOP would begin to build a loyalty to HP hardware and ultimately purchase more HP workstations in the future. The next step was to secure the names of alums and friends employed by HP from UOP, then send the e-mail request and finally do the follow up.

"Having a partner was great because when I got busy, Wesley pushed me and when he got busy, I pushed him," Buscho said. One of the contributors, Ren Wang '82, a research and development engineer, commented that knowing the specifics about what equipment was to be donated helped motivate her to contribute.

With the inspiration and leadership of Michelle Buscho and Wesley Cheng '82, the commitment of six other UOP alumni and the support of Hewlett-Packard, the faculty and students at UOP will benefit from this "state-of-the-art" equipment this spring.

If you are interested in coordinating a matching gift fund drive through your employer, you can obtain a list of other UOP alums at your company by contacting Jennifer Held, UOP's director of Corporate Relations at (209) 946-2346.

Wentworth to head School of Education Endowment Campaign Committee

Dr. Frederick "Rick" Wentworth, superintendent of San Joaquin County Schools since 1991, has accepted the position as chair of the Endowment Campaign Committee for the Gladys L. Benerd School of Education, announced Dean Fay Haisley.

"We couldn't have asked for a better chair for our Committee," said Dean Haisley. "Rick understands our needs in the School of Education. He will be a real asset in helping us meet our $3 million goal."

Before being elected to superintendent of San Joaquin County, Dr. Wentworth served as teacher, coach, counselor and school administrator for more than 20 years in Escalon and Manteca. He also is a business owner and former mayor of the city of Manteca.

"UOP's School of Education is one of the most important assets in this community. It prepares our teachers and administrators for the challenges in teaching our students in today's ever-changing environment," Dr. Wentworth said. "Without the resource it would be very difficult to meet these challenges. I know the entire community appreciates this very important resource."

The Committee, the first to be officially formed and become operational, will assist in identifying individuals and companies who can help in reaching the $3 million goal. Other Committee members include Mrs. Pearl West, Dr. Dennis Brennan, Dr. Sue Eskridge, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Barton, Ms. Marci Massei, Mr. Clint Harlis and Mr. Harry Weinberg.

More than $51 million has been given or pledged to UOP's "Fulfilling the Promise" campaign, publicly launched last fall primarily to increase the University's endowment, scholarships for students and library resources.

Berryman has plans for Pacific Alumni Association

As president of the Pacific Alumni Association, ROBERT BERRYMAN knows where he's been as a UOP student, and as an alum, he knows what course he wants to take with the Pacific Alumni Association.

Midway into his term, Berryman, COP '83, has focused his administration on two goals: a strategic plan for the PAA and the improvement of contacts with UOP students.

"Developing a strategic plan for the Association is important for us at this juncture," Berryman said. "UOP is changing, our alumni base is growing and we need to make sure we're providing the support and services needed by both the University and its alumni."

Improving contacts with UOP students can be accomplished through career networking, alumni assisting seniors, and if possible, within the academic program itself, Berryman said. "The first contact with prospective students could be an alum. I believe there are ways in which alumni can provide a real-world perspective for students."

As a UOP student, Berryman was involved in student government, taught photography, served as a student advisor, photo editor and later editor-in-chief of UOP's yearbook and belonged to Omega Phi Alpha fraternity.

Berryman said he would like to see a student alumni association created on campus. "I know that's an oxymoron," he quipped, "but we need to establish some vehicle for students to communicate and interact assist them in their personal and career development goals."

A concept titled STAT—Students Today, Alumni Tomorrow—is being studied by UOP's Alumni Office to address this concern. "As a preparatory program for future alumni, STAT would get students involved with the Pacific family before embarking on their careers," said Terrise Giovinazzo, director of UOP's Alumni and Parent Programs. "These young people might be students for four years, but they are UOP alumni for a lifetime."

Another item on Berryman's agenda is building on the continued success of UOP's Feather River Inn. "I think it's important that the alumni know we have this beautiful picturesque resource for them and their families to use," he said.

with us. I realize that there are a lot of demands placed on students as they focus on studies and their own personal development, but they need to look ahead to see how alumni can

Significant improvements made in Engineering School

Many improvements have occurred this past academic year in the School of Engineering, according to Dean Ashland Brown.

The School is now offering more diverse academic programs with a new environmental engineering major option in civil engineering and an international engineering minor, he reported.

"Our Industrial Advisory Council continues to make new and timely recommendations," Dean Brown said. "Currently they are developing a 'Vision Statement' for our School and completing their final report on recommendations for the School's six engineering program curricula."

The caliber of students has also increased — eight 'Regent Scholarship Recipients' were enrolled in the School last fall. Four new faculty members were hired this past fall with engineering specialties that add new dimension to our School. Also a new Mathematics, Engineering, Science Achievement/Minority Engineering Program director was appointed.

Dean Brown is particularly excited about a partnership with the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory (LLNL).

"We signed a Memorandum of Understanding with LLNL last fall," he said. "This will educate the School's undergraduate students with today's cutting-edge technology."

PDA Engineering, a Costa Mesa software products and engineering services company, provided a PATRAN 3 software system to the School. The software package will be used to educate senior engineering majors with the latest mechanical engineering design analysis methods available in the industry. Valued by the company to have a commercial worth of $556,000, the package includes software available for 40 engineering computer workstations and training available for the UOP engineering faculty.

"This software will allow University of the Pacific students to combine knowledge developed in several lower-level undergraduate courses into a practical and marketable engineering analysis skill," said Dr. David Dimas, director of PDA Engineering's Institute of Technology.

Three levels of computer laboratories were also created to serve the needs of the undergraduate and the graduate engineering students.

The Khoury Hall computer lab

UOP School of Engineering
Dean Ashland Brown

contains 25 Hewlett-Packard Vectra 286 and 386 microprocessor-based systems. The School uses this laboratory for Freshman and Sophomore level computer graphics instruction and some discipline-based computer instruction.

A new computer laboratory located in Anderson Hall contains 25 Gateway 486/33 MHz microcomputers for Sophomore and Junior level graphic engineering design and various other undergraduate classes.

"This laboratory was made possible by gifts from Regent Ted Baun and Ralph McClure," Dean Brown said.

The most advanced laboratory, located in Anderson Hall, contains two Hewlett Packard Model 715/33 and one Hewlett Packard Model 715/50 workstations. These computers are networked with three similar units in the Computer Science Department in Hand Hall.

Liggett has long been involved with music production. His early career featured a stint as a musician and co-leader of The Stuart Little Band from Stockton, a popular opening act for such rock greats as Chicago, the Grateful Dead, Jefferson Airplane and Santana. "The band produced a rock-opera in 1970-71 called 'Ravel'," recalled Liggett, "which was before rock-operas really existed. The whole thing began as a poetry reading and evolved to become a popular live-stage show, complete with the UOP Orchestra and UOP dancers and mime."

After the band broke up in 1974, Liggett spent time in Lake Tahoe as a musician for house orchestras at several of the casinos. "That was an important time because I was learning various aspects of live-stage production. I needed to experience that end of the business," he said.

While working in Lake Tahoe, Liggett had the opportunity to play with many top name entertainers, such as Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis, Jr., Shirley MacLaine and Crystal Gayle. "I formed my own live-stage production company and produced live-stage shows for the Las Vegas, Tahoe and Reno circuit," he said. Liggett eventually created his own music production company and produced music for ESPN, Paramount Pictures, Nissan, American Airlines and the Los Angeles Ballet, just to name a few.

Today, as the executive vice president, music producer and composer for Alan Ett Music, Liggett continues his success: his clients include NBC, CBS, HBO, TNT, Fox Television, Castlerock Entertainment and the Emmy Awards. If you were to ask Liggett, he would probably tell you that life is just "grand!"

Pharmacy school meets nation's needs

In response to a growing need for more highly trained scientists, the University's School of Pharmacy has developed a dual-degree program that enables professional pharmacy students to pursue their Pharm.D. and Ph.D. concurrently.

"This program saves students two to three years in comparison to the amount of time they would spend completing the degrees separately," said David Fries, dean of the University's Graduate School. "We cut down the dual-degree completion time by providing judicious packaging of the courses and allowing some dual credit on course work."

Nationwide, there is a shortage of scientists in pharmaceutical education and the pharmaceutical industry. "When students graduate with the Pharm.D., they have often spent four to five years earning their bachelor's degree and three years in the pharmacy program. They're tired of school and it's hard to convince them to spend another four to five years working on a Ph.D.," said Dr. Ravindra Vasavada, director of graduate studies for the Pharmacy School. "The goal of the program is to entice the best students into our school by giving them the opportunity to go higher in advanced education in shorter period of time."

The five-year program is designed for those students who have a bachelor's degree and know that they want a career in research or teaching in the pharmacy field. "The student who graduates with a dual-degree can enter into a teaching or research career sooner than can students who take the traditional route to a Pharm.D. and then Ph.D.," Vasavada said.

Students must apply and be accepted to both degree programs. Already, about fifteen applications for the dual-degree program are expected this year. "Two students entered into the program in the fall of 1993 and up to five students will be accepted into the program this fall," Fries said. "Highly qualified students are choosing UOP because of this rare dual-degree opportunity."

Qualified students may choose among several areas of concentration and are eligible for teaching assistantship awards after the second year of their program. Contact Dean David Fries, Graduate School, UOP, Stockton, CA, 95211, for more information.

The HEALTHY CHOICE — UOP dorm reserved for clean living

Jessie Ballantyne Hall holds the typical sights and sounds of a college dorm.

A florescent-colored poster shouts out upcoming events at the University of the Pacific. A U-2 song screams from a boom box. A student flops on the bed in sweats and socks, economics book in hand.

It's Jessie Ballantyne's smells — or rather the lack of rank, after-party smells — that distinguishes the residence hall from other dorms.

Those are the type of smells that make Michele Dillon's nose wrinkle in disgust at the mere thought of mixing Chesterfields and Budweiser at a social. She's not a prude, Dillon quickly asserts. She just isn't inclined to share her living space with smokers and drinkers. So much so that she, like her 75 hallmates, signed a contract pledging not to light up or drink anywhere inside Jessie Ballantyne.

"I knew that this was one of the best places on campus for me," said the 18-year-old freshman from Modesto. "I don't like being around smoking people or dealing with loud, drunk people. I like the air around me to be nice and clean."

Jessie Ballantyne is UOP's Healthy Lifestyle hall, or as some prefer, the Wellness House. According to the housing contract — a must-sign for all residents — the Wellness House "emphasizes the complete development of each resident including the educational, physical, emotional and spiritual development."

Anyone who wants to live in Jessie Ballantyne has to be serious about staying healthy. As such, the contract continues, residents agree to "abide by all policies in an environment free of alcohol, drugs and smoking."

It's a social contract that residents guard with vigilance. Last spring, when someone lit up a cigarette, residents three flights down immediately picked up the scent and began hunting for the perpetrator. The guilty party turned out to be a visiting parent.

"It's not too hard to smell a cigarette when no one in your house smokes," said resident director Sue Noble. "The vigilance comes out of the students' being aware of their environment. They seem to be more environmentally conscious."

Refugees of wellness are popping up at campuses all over the country, said Judith Chambers, UOP's vice president of student life, in large part because they complement university substance abuse prevention programs.

Such programs were developed to address the growing concern over the sometimes-fatal abuse of alcohol and drugs on college campuses, particularly among freshmen.

"I think drinking on campuses in general is down," said Jim Falcone, director of residential life and housing at UOP. About half of the University's 4,100 undergraduates live on campus.

"More students want to take care of themselves. It's a national trend that people want to be healthier."

Chambers agreed that students are choosing a healthier, more responsible lifestyle. "I know we can't eliminate alcohol on campus, but we can affect behavior, and that's the job of our awareness programs. Students are finding out for themselves that drunkenness is not rewarded anymore. It's not a behavior that is admired."

Jessie Ballantyne's program, in its third year, promotes positive behavior from all angles. Informal seminars held at the hall focus on the perils of life in the 90's: AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases, date rape and hepatitis. "We can't talk about alcohol and drug abuse as isolated issues," Chambers said. "We try to deal with all behaviors that can get [students] into trouble."

Bishops Scholar students are bright stars at UOP

University of the Pacific, founded by Methodist missionaries in 1851 as California's first chartered institution of higher education, today maintains its original ties to the Methodist Church. This legacy of nearly 150 years continues with the University's Bishops Scholarship Program, exclusively designed three years ago for young men and women who are actively involved in churches within the California-Nevada Conference. The program was recently expanded to add Cal Pacific Conference and the Desert Southwest Conference.

This past fall semester 22 new students began their studies under the Bishops Scholarship Program. These students are awarded a $2,500 scholarship that is renewable annually. The scholarship is not dependent upon financial need alone, but is instead based on active church membership and the academic and community service record of each individual student.

"There are 930 churches in California, Nevada, Arizona and Hawaii, with congregations totaling 270,000 people, who know UOP as the only Methodist-related university in the region," said UOP President Bill L. Atchley. "Having these exceptional young people on campus reminds us of our Methodist heritage and reassures us that this partnership will continue in perpetuity."

Some of the new Bishops Scholars discussed their goals and their reasons for choosing Pacific:

ELIZABETH CRAWFORD, from

Strathmore, a communication and liberal arts major: "I believe University of the Pacific offers the best environment and opportunity for the advancement of my education."

NATHAN GONZALES, from Clovis, undeclared: "I chose UOP because the University has an excellent reputation for education and for its teaching program."

MARC McPHEE, from Sylmar, undeclared: "UOP seems to provide the academic quality and caring Methodist ideals I have searched for in its small classroom setting and beautiful campus."

KRISTIN PETERSON, from Kingsburg, a pre-pharmacy major: "Life at UOP will give me a chance to grow and become my own person with exciting new experiences."

DOUGLAS PORTER, from Redlands, an engineering major: "I look forward to participating in the cooperative engineering program at UOP, in which I will gain practical work experience."

TIFFANY ROBBE, from Santa Rosa, an international studies major: "At University of the Pacific I expect to grow both spiritually and academically."

CAROLYN JEAN SHELTON, from Fresno, undeclared: "I feel that UOP is the best option for me. I don't know exactly what I want to do [after college], but I do know I want to do something that makes a difference in the world."

JENNIFER VIOLET, from San Mateo, undeclared: "When I begin my studies at University of the Pacific I want to explore careers in child psychology and early elementary education. I am looking forward to the personal and caring environment that the University offers."

JENNIFER WELLS, from Santa Rosa, an international relations major: "I am very excited to get to UOP and I plan to immerse myself wholeheartedly in college life."

The names, hometowns and majors of the other Bishops Scholars who began at UOP last fall include:

JOSHUA BAIRD, San Jose, undeclared; JUSTIN CARLSON, Arcata, computer engineering; ROBYN CHAN, Sacramento, pharmacy; REBECCA EMIG, Big Bear City, undeclared; LAURIE McKINNIE, Elk Grove, undeclared; SHELBY MAMIZUKA, Kahuku, HI, undeclared; TREVOR MURRAY, Auburn, undeclared; KIRSTEN PETERSON, Napa, international relations-economics, business minor; NATASHA GODINEZ, Linden, psychology; SCOTT JENKINS, Linden, undeclared; TERRI MARTINEZ, Madera, political science; and MARK MEEHEIS, Lodi, undeclared.

If you are a member of a Methodist Church in the California-Nevada, Cal-Pacific or Desert-Southwest Conferences and/or you know of a student who could be a potential Bishops Scholar, please contact the Rev. Darrell Thomas, director of Church Relations and Alumni Student Recruitment, Anderson Hall, University of the Pacific, 3601 Pacific Ave., Stockton, CA 95211; or call (209) 946-3262.

Hawaii resident nominated for Scholarship at UOP

Shelby Mamizuka of Kahuku, Hawaii, a 1993 graduate of Kamehameha High School in Kapalama Heights, was nominated for the University's Bishops Scholarship Program by Kahuku United Methodist Church and has been attending UOP since last fall.

Mamizuka had been a member of that congregation for the last five years. As a cellist and guitarist, Mamizuka played in her school orchestra and with the Honolulu Youth Symphony. She also belonged to her school's Young Astronaut's Club, the Video and Production Club, the Japanese Language Club and was a community volunteer. Mamizuka performed music at Kahuku United Methodist Church and served as a substitute Sunday School teacher.

The 18-year-old Mamizuka, who is exploring both academic and career options, has not yet declared a major, but she says, "I hope to fulfill the expectations of the Scholarship Committee of University of the Pacific to the best of my abilities."

"The academic community of UOP will benefit from the inclusion of Shelby and other quality young men and women who have been nurtured through the Methodist tradition," said the Rev. Darrell Thomas, director of Church Relations at UOP and program administrator. "At the same time, these students will benefit from the 'uncommon education' that is the tradition of the University."

Discover the splendor of England's past during August trip

We invite you to join other UOP alumni, parents and friends for a special tour, August 6-14, 1994, that will take you into some of the best known and some of the lesser known places and institutions of England.

Come with us on a trip back in time. We'll visit Chaucer's Tabard Inn, where the pilgrims gathered to begin their journey to Canterbury, and then make our own pilgrimage to Stratford. Like the young Shakespeare, we'll walk to Anne Hathaway's cottage and stroll the streets of the village.

We'll go to the theater in London and in Stratford, and gain a new understanding of the world of Dickens and of English royalty. We'll learn about the dark side as well as the brilliant side of England's social and literary history and see where impoverished workers lived and where debtors were locked up with little chance of release.

Lunch at the Wig & Pen Club will be followed by a tour of the Inner and Middle Temple and an optional visit to the Old Bailey. We will give special emphasis to the legal history that has been so important in the life and literature of England and may answer such burning questions as, "Why is Bleak House so bleak?" and "Why did Chaucer have such irony about the Man of Law?"

We'll stay in first-rate hotels and travel in our own comfortable tour bus, provided by V.I.P. Travel, which specializes in travel programs for small colleges and universities. At each of the tour stops we'll be met by local guides, who will take us to locations of social, artistic and historical interest. Examples of such stops are Sudeley Castle, where we'll see works by Rubens, Van Dyck and Turner and Ragley Hall, where we'll study "The Temptation." It may sound busy, but there will be plenty of free time for personal shopping and sight-seeing. Please accept our invitation to join us for this August plunge into English culture and history. The cost of the trip is $3,363.00, which includes air fare from Los Angeles or San Francisco. Call the Alumni Office at (209) 946-2391 for more information.

—Dr. John Smith

Tour leader will be UOP English Department Chair and Professor John Smith, who has studied and taught Shakespeare, the English Renaissance and British literature since the 1960s. After his graduate work at Kansas and Wisconsin and a teaching tour at Wyoming, he came to UOP in 1970. He taught at Raymond College until 1978, when he joined the English Department. With a special interest in Shakespeare as a writer for theatre, Smith has lectured on Shakespeare and his contemporaries.

UOP dorm... continued from page 3

On the spiritual side, the University invites Methodist ministers to spend a week of time living at Jessie Ballantyne to "interact with students and discuss issues facing them," Noble said.

As a result of all the focus on wellness, the hall tends to be quieter, more serious, and perhaps more studious than others, she said. "I would see us as a role model because we can have fun without alcohol and drugs."

On occasion, residents find themselves fending off a goody-goody stereotype.

"A lot of people around campus have the misconception that we all get up at 6 a.m. and go jogging and do exercise drills," said Arron White, a 20-year-old junior from Sonora. "But we still go to parties, and some even choose to drink. It's just in the hall that we don't do those things."

Gina Angelo, who like Michele Dillon, graduated from Downey High School, said she had no complaints about the dorm she lived in during her freshmen year at the University of California at Davis. When she transferred to UOP this year, she chose Jessie Ballantyne in part "because it was one less thing to worry about."

"You don't have to worry about getting a roommate who doesn't smoke and who shares pretty much the same values," she said. "Everyone respects each other for that."

The healthy lifestyle dorm is not for everyone, Noble points out. Students who break the rules by smoking or bringing alcohol into the hall go on probation; after three offenses, they're asked to leave.

In three years, just one student has left for breaking the rules, but only after she decided it wasn't working out for her, Noble said. The student, a smoker trying to kick the habit, thought she might have an easier time of it in Jessie Ballantyne. Instead, she found ingenious ways of getting around the rules, like smoking while leaning out of her room window.

"Of course everyone knew what she was doing," Noble said. "The pressure was there for her to stop until she realized that this wasn't quite the place she should be."

Multiculturalism: Education for the 21st century

"In order to reduce prejudice, eradicate stereotypes and promote cultural pluralism on university campuses, we must implement multiculturalism."

So believes UOP English Assistant Professor Heather Mayne, who conducted research on multiculturalism during her faculty development leave at Stanford University last fall (sponsored by The Program For Faculty Renewal).

"It's difficult for students to learn in an environment if they don't feel valued," she added. "You value people's culture, hence you value them."

Mayne stressed the need for universities across the country to implement multiculturalism in the curriculum and services they offer to their students. As part of her research, she has compiled a 135-page bibliography of abstracts that describe how other institutions have dealt with multiculturalism. She also participated with 250 other scholars in a conference sponsored by the

— UOP English Professor Heather Mayne

University of Chicago that focused on how to meet the challenge of increasingly diverse student populations.

Mayne said that only when educational institutions begin to address multiculturalism, will colleges and universities begin to meet the needs of their respective communities.

"To view life through a single cultural frame is obsolete. Multicultural education, defined as 'education involving two or more ethnic groups,' is designed to help participants clarify their own ethnic identity and to appreciate that of others," she explained.

"It should reduce prejudice and stereotyping, and promote cultural pluralism and equal participation. It will gradually enhance the student's ability to become engaged in the contemporary intellectual enterprise."

She pointed out that more and more students will need to have the ability to and the capacity for engagement with multiple perspectives. "This concept is relevant not only to students, but to all citizens who live in a multicultural society," Mayne said. "So it is important for all of us to become well-versed in a variety of world views."

In order to achieve these goals, Mayne makes several recommendations:

- Sensitize students, faculty, administrators and staff to diversity issues through workshops, seminars and other such events

- Modify curriculum to include the contributions of all groups
- Hire a more diverse pool of faculty and staff
- Expose incoming freshmen to cultural diversity issues
- Create a Multicultural Coordinator position to oversee an Office of Multicultural Affairs, which would coordinate programming across the campus.

Mayne, who was recently named chairperson of UOP's Cultural Diversity Committee, as part of the implementation of UOP's Strategic Plan, said she thinks UOP is on the right road to the recognition of multiculturalism on its campuses.

"UOP's Community Involvement Program, headed by Sally Rivera; Celebrate Diversity Week, spearheaded at the Anderson Y Center by UOP students and Fran Abbott; Black History Month activities, coordinated by Mamie Darlington, chair of the Black Studies Department; the integration of cultural diversity as a major topic in the Mentor II Section of UOP's General Education Program; as well as workshops on diversity issues in the classroom — these are all examples that UOP is showing a commitment to cultural diversity," she said.

Mayne recently presented a workshop to the Mentor II faculty, titled "Confronting Race, Gender and Conflict In The Contemporary Classroom," which she designed and presented last fall to Stanford University faculty.

"I would like to see a Coordinator of Multicultural Affairs appointed at UOP, a person who would pull together others already doing programming or training in this area, and then we can focus our efforts on what still needs to be done," she concluded.

Summer fun planned at Feather River

Plan for Pacific Family Camp

Pacific Family Camp, an ideal place for a family summer vacation, takes place at the Feather River Inn in the beautiful Sierra Nevada mountains. Feather River Inn is a 100-acre paradise that features rustic chalet-style cabins nestled in fragrant woods, outstanding buffet meals, a gym, heated pool and tennis court, trout-stocked fishing ponds and its own golf course.

This year's adult activities include sports, arts and crafts, hiking and nature walks. Clinics and tournaments in golf, volleyball and horse-shoes are offered. There are watercolor, stained glass and pottery classes for the discovery or further development of artistic skills. Pacific Family Camp also has an on-site naturalist and hiking leader who will lead everything from short nature walks to an all-day excursion to the surrounding mountain peaks. There are activities for teens and toddlers as well. All children's programs are staffed by enthusiastic and caring current UOP students and professional educators who are carefully selected for each specific age group.

The 1994 Pacific Family Camp is as follows: Week 1, July 3-9; Week 2, July 10-16; Week 3, July 17-23; Week 4, July 24-30; Week 5, July 31-August 6.

Camp rates are reasonably priced for a family budget.

For further information on this year's Pacific Family Camp, call (916) 836-2623.

Explore the Magic of Summer Quest Camp

Discover Summer Quest, one of the finest youth summer camps in Northern California for ages 8-17.

For 16 years, Summer Quest has had a unique blend of traditional camp activities and modern learning opportunities, all in the beautiful, natural setting of historic the Feather River Inn, located in the High Sierras, 60 miles northwest of Lake Tahoe.

This exceptional program offers a quality learning experience. The camp's directors, teachers, counselors and nurse are carefully screened, trained and supervised; and their skills and love of children ensure that each camper is treated with respect and encouraged to be the best that he or she can be.

Each morning, campers take classes in fine arts, biology, journalism, history, or natural science. There also is a special leadership program for campers 12 and older. In the afternoon, campers participate in outdoor recreational activities. After supper, talent shows, a carnival, and of course, the evening campfire bring campers, counselors and instructors together for fun and friendship.

Camp fees are $425 per week ($400 for each additional camper from the same family). A 10 percent discount will be given to UOP alumni, faculty, staff and children of current University students.

To register for the 1994 Sessions—June 19-25 and June 26 - July 2—contract the Office of Lifelong Learning at (209) 946-2424.

Noted poet Li-Young to appear at UOP in April

Noted poet Li-Young Lee, grandson of the first president of People's Republic of China and son of Mao Tse-tung's personal physician, will appear at UOP as a Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Writing Fellow in resident during the weeks of April 17 and April 24.

Lee will participate in writing workshops, give readings, work with individual students and faculty members and will also work with groups in the Stockton community, according to UOP English Professor John Smith, campus coordinator for the Writing Fellows program.

Lee attended State University of New York-Brockport, the University of Arizona and the University of Pittsburgh.

"I really value plain speech because I think the life of poetry is in a people's spoken language," writes Lee, who has taught at the University of Oregon, the Iowa Writers' Workshop, Northwestern University, Purdue and the University of Texas. "...I think immigrants have beautiful stories to tell. But the problem is to make art out of it."

Lee's Untitled Memoirs book is forthcoming. His other works include The City In Which I Love (1990), the winner of the Lamont Poetry Selection for that year, and Rose (1986), which won the Delmore Schwartz Poetry Award.

He has also won the PEN/Josephine Miles Award, the Whiting Writers' Award, the Illinois Poet Laureate Award, the Robert Ferguson Memorial Award and the Academy of American Poets Prize. He has also held Guggenheim and NEA Fellowships.

The Writing Fellows program is made possible by the Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund and administered by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

The purpose of the program is to stimulate greater appreciation of the written word through interaction with the best of contemporary writers. This is the largest national program bringing writers to campuses and their communities, and will involve 60 colleges over a four-year period.

The Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund is committed to strengthening the growth and appreciation of American culture in the 20th century. The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to excellence in education.

Pacific softball season looks bright

The Pacific Tigers Women Softball Team is a team on the rise.

With the team's top-notch offense, defense and battery and the Tigers' experience, versatility and depth, Pacific just may surprise the Big West.

"We feel that we can finish in the top half of the conference," said Tiger Coach Brian Kolze, who may have failed in a bid for a league championship in just his first season last year, but a late season sweep of Long Beach State did result in a fifth-place finish—Pacific's best since 1988. "And, if we perform to our ability and finish in the top, the postseason is not out of the question."

This season the Tigers expect to improve with the return of their entire pitching staff from last season. Lea Lopez has a chance to rewrite the pitching record books, as she is among the school's leaders in every pitching category going into her final campaign. Last season she sported an impressive 1.89 ERA and held opposing batters to a .225 batting average. Brandi Phillips and Kim Marsh also return to the mound for another season. Both of these pitchers saw a lot of playing time last season and hope to get even more. "Because of their experience, all three pitchers are well established already," Kolze added.

Kris McDowell and Mieko Nagata start together for the third straight season in the outfield. Both have a big role in Pacific's reach for the top. Last season McDowell slumped to .207 after two seasons above the .250 mark, but her bat is not her only asset; her leadership in center field and her speed and spark also are felt by the opposition. Nagata is much the same type of player as McDowell and she takes left field for the third straight year. Returning players Michele Baker and Nyrene

Clark, along with newcomers Jenifer Peck and Beth Corriea complete the outfield. All are very gifted with speed and good defensive abilities.

Senior captain Alicia Buettner returns to solidify the Tiger battery at catcher. She returns for her final season as one of the standout catchers in the Big West Conference. Last season she posted an impressive 55 assists while only committing seven errors, and offensively she led the team in sacrifices.

Senior Auddrena Mauga and junior Anne Bishop anchor the Tiger infield. Mauga, who saw limited action due to injuries last season, brings both offensive and defensive experience to the Tiger lineup; last season she hit .217 with seven RBI and one triple in 36 games. Bishop, who will finally get her chance to play the infield full time, hopes to lead the team in every offensive category. She was the Tigers' most potent offensive threat in '93, leading the team with a .398 slugging percentage, 46 hits, four home runs, 22 RBI, and 66 total bases. Bishop was also the team runner-up with a .277 batting average and a .341 on-base percentage.

Rounding out the infield are an array of newcomers. Tristan Austin will most likely handle the duties at second base. She comes to Pacific via Napa High School where she earned first team all-state honors from Cal-Hi Sports. Melissa Miller is posted at the third base position and Shelley Sato should also see some time on the left side of the infield for the Tigers.

Simoni Field-- One of West Coast's Finest

University of the Pacific had played its women's "home" softball games at various off-campus sites for nearly 20 years, until UOP developed the idea of an on-campus facility that would spark growth and excitement within the program.

Adjacent to A. A. Stagg Memorial Stadium and Chris Kjeldsen Pool, the new Bill Simoni Stadium cozily seats 350 in orange pro-style chair-back seats, and already has been regarded as one of the finest of its kind on the West Coast. The field is bounded by beautiful red brick and ivy surrounding the adjacent facilities, which provides a Wrigley Field-like atmosphere. The second phase of construction completed the scoreboard, press box and concession area. The final phase calls for the addition of lights.

Now in his second year as softball coach, Brian Kolze noted that the new field brings more enthusiasm to the players. "Its proximity to the center of campus has brought new faces to the stands," he said. "It also is helping in our efforts to recruit top, young prospects from throughout the area and nation."

Tiger baseball still roaring through Big West

Quincey Noble, head coach of Pacific's baseball team, is optimistic about his chances for a league title this year.

"Although we only return five starters this year, I still feel it will be an improvement over last year's team, due in large part to another good recruiting class," said Noble. "Generally, you have a year of adjustment with a bunch of new players coming in, but this year's recruits performed well at fall practice."

Noble is the third winningest coach in Pacific history, and needs just 46 wins to move ahead of John Picone. Last season's 28-25 record provided the most wins by a Tiger team since the 1981 team finished at 29-25.

Offensively, 1993 was a banner year for the Tigers, who set seven team records and 10 individual bests. Nearly every team record for hitting was broken, including hits (563), runs (351), home runs (38), RBI (316) and average (.309).

This year's team should be able to pick up where last year's club left off, with the return of seniors Chip Sell and Victor Sanchez.

Sell led the Big West with 83 hits last season, breaking the school single-season record in the process. With 211 career hits he also owns that school record and with just six more hits will break into the conference's top ten career list. In the outfield, Sell is the team's only returning starter. A three-year starter at Pacific, he has missed only one game with 155 career games played. This year he moves to center field with the graduation of four-year starter Eddie Mylett.

Sanchez finished third on the team with a .360 average while he drove in 40 base runners. He adds power to this year's lineup after a summer that saw him lead his Stan Musial team to a national tournament appearance. Sanchez was tied for second on the team with 17 doubles and was third with five home runs last season. He moves to catcher this season with the graduation of three-year starter Rob Barber. Sanchez started just four games for the Tigers at catcher last year, but played there at Delta JC and all summer. He had a 15-game hitting streak toward the beginning of last year and finished with a nine-game streak before an injury forced him into a pinch hitting role the last two weeks of the season.

Expected to start in the other two positions are junior college transfers

Senior shortstop Chris Amos led the team with 159 assists and 100 putouts.

Tiger baseball...

Scott Mitchell and Ron Lewis.

Mitchell was an All-America utility player as an outfielder and pitcher at Napa JC. Lewis, drafted by the Montreal Expos, was an All-Camino Norte Conference member and played in the California JC All-Star Classic. Sophomores Tim Schmierer, Mike Cohen and Jeff Leal could also see playing time.

The infield has more new faces with senior shortstop Chris Amos the only returning starter. Amos led the team with 159 assists and 100 putouts. He was one of only two returning players to start all 53 games, and had a .284 batting average.

The rest of the infield is filled out with JC transfers. At third, Curt Zimmerman should receive most of the playing time. Zimmerman was the MVP of the Coast Valley Conference and played third at the College of the Sequoias the last two years. Matt Nelson should see the majority of the playing time at second, along with junior Tommy Haase. Nelson was an All-State selection at Walla Walla (WA) JC the last two years and Haase started seven games for the Tigers last season before he broke his jaw at Fresno State and missed most of the season.

Randy Paulin and Mike Rios will split time at first base. Paulin was an All-Iowa and all-region selection as a catcher at Muscatine (IA) JC. He is Noble's backstop reserve.

Rios appeared in eight games as a pitcher and was drafted in the late rounds last year, but also had 53 at bats and two home runs. Junior Eric Stevenson and sophomore Kevin Biggs could also see playing time in the infield.

This year's pitching staff should be even stronger than last year with the return of senior starters Danny Miller, Christian Reinheimer and Rios. The team's 4.78 ERA last year was the first time Pacific had a team ERA under five, and was the lowest since the 1986 Tigers had a 4.54 ERA. Miller led the team with 12 starts and 81.0 innings pitched. He had the best strikeout-to-walk-ratio (51 strikeouts and 18 walks) and his 4.44 ERA was the best finish of his career. He also finished with the third lowest walk-per-nine-inning-ratio (2.00) in the Big West.

Reinheimer is the team's only returning left-handed starter. He was tied for fourth on the team with eight starts, and finished with a 5.86 ERA. Rios was a late round draft pick in the 1993 draft and was third among starters with a 4.45 ERA.

Adding depth to the Tiger staff is JC All-American Mitchell, JC transfer Kevin Sumter and sophomore lefty Matt Engelken. Sumter is an All-NorCal pitcher out of Modesto JC and Engelken appeared in ten games as a freshman last season. Also returning to the staff is senior Butch Cain who redshirted last season.

The Tigers also bring back the top two relievers from last season: senior Bill Beck and junior Dale Dolejsi. Beck led the team with a 2.63 ERA in 37.2 innings and was 3-1 on the season in 17 appearances. Dolejsi set a school record with six saves last year and was second on the team with a 3.59 ERA. His .238 opponent batting average was the lowest on the team and he led the staff with 24 appearances.

This season's schedule includes some of the most formidable teams in the nation. The always-tough Big West Conference includes baseball powerhouses Cal State Fullerton and Long Beach State. Both teams advanced to the '93 regional playoffs, with Long Beach State finishing third at the College World Series. Still, the Tigers were the only Big West team to take a series from Long Beach State last year.

Coach Noble noted, "As for scheduling, over the last three years we have continued to increase the number of Division I teams that we play."

Pacific has 32 home games this season, highlighted by a three game weekend series with Cal State Fullerton, April 22-24.

Chip Sell led the Big West with 83 hits last season, breaking the school single-season record in the process.

Alum seeks stardom on the hardwood

He's just returned from a road trip, and former UOP basketball player Dell Demps '92 is tired. Demps, a professional basketball player with the Yakima Sun Kings, said he spends more time on the road than he does at home.

"Living in a hotel isn't the greatest thing in the world," he admitted. "Most days, I wake up at five a.m., get on a plane and fly to a small town to play an evening game. I go to bed and the next day it's the same thing all over again. Traveling is the worst part. But, I like to play basketball, and it's my job."

The Yakima Sun Kings belong to the Continental Basketball Association, professional basketball's equivalent to minor-league baseball.

Unlike most minor-league baseball organizations that are affiliated with major league associations, however, CBA teams are independent from the National Basketball Association. Thus, players in the CBA have the opportunity to sign with any NBA team that may offer a contract. In fact, Demps has already spent time playing in the NBA.

"I played for a little while with the Golden State Warriors," he said. "Before that, I spent one season playing in the Philippines. Each team in the Philippine league is allowed to have one American on the roster, and some of the other Americans were former NBA players. . . the experience was invaluable."

Demps feels that college helped to prepare him for the 'ups' and 'downs' of being a professional athlete. "Coming out of a small school [like UOP], we always had to play hard. We never had a game given to us. I've carried that attitude over into the NBA and the CBA. . . I think that's why I've done so well."

Attitude, Demps quickly discovered, was the key to becoming comfortable with playing professionally. "You've got to overcome the awe of playing against guys that you've grown up watching. You can't say, 'Oh, wow, there's Charles Barkley!' and expect to survive."

Although a career for Demps in professional basketball seems promising, he has not neglected to plan for the rest of his future. The former SBPA student was a three-time winner of the coveted Big West Scholar-Athlete Award during his time at UOP, and was featured in the Summer 1992 Pacific Review as one of eight 'Stellar Seniors.'

"UOP's coaching staff stressed academics and insisted on academic planning. I'm really proud of having my bachelor's degree . . . not everyone in the CBA or NBA can say the same," Demps said.

With the off-season quickly approaching, Demps hopes to return to Pacific to begin work on his MBA. "UOP feels like home to me," he said. "Everyone remembers you and looks out for each other. I'm looking forward to returning."

For now, Demps returns to traveling and playing basketball. "It's tough," he said, "but it's not all bad. On the bright side, I get my room cleaned every day!"

In fact, attendance has increased remarkably, especially on the weekends and Athletic Director Lee agrees that the new field has brought increased exposure to women's athletics at the University of the Pacific. "Our softball program is on the rise and this facility will enable us to host NCAA softball events in the future. It is a positive example of UOP's growing commitment to women's athletics," Lee said.

The field also is used by other campus organizations for intramural events and other activities. For information on the schedule of softball games, call the Athletic department at 946-2472.

Bannister, Owen, Taylor:

It took the vision and leadership of three Methodist ministers—Dr. Edward Bannister, Rev. Isaac Owen and Rev. William Taylor—to establish California Wesleyan College in July, 1851, California's first chartered institution of higher education. Bannister, Owen and Taylor were officially recognized on Founders Day, March 10, 1994, for establishing California

Wesleyan College in San Jose and for their contributions to the institution that we now know as University of the Pacific. The Founders Day's events were kicked-off with the dedication of portraits of UOP's founding fathers.

Of the three founders, Dr. Bannister possessed the academic credentials. His expertise in administrative process lent to the development of the fundamental structure of the University. He was most instrumental in recruiting faculty and forming the school's curriculum.

Because he was able to enlist the major constituencies involved with the project,

Owen proved to be the most effective fund-raiser, raising the first $1,000 during a time when it was considered to be a fortune. He raised a total of $27,500 by the time the school was chartered. It had always been Owen's dream to promote higher education on the West Coast, even though he had limited schooling himself. "The founding of schools and colleges was almost a passion [for Owen]," wrote UOP alumni Rockwell Hunt. A Californian historian who authored the first complete history of the University.

As a missionary evangelist, Taylor's focus was not only on spreading the gospel, but in the development

Court of Sponsors honors UOP donors

The individuals, foundations, churches and corporations published here appear on the Court of Sponsors, which honors and pays tribute to their generous support of University of the Pacific and its students. Inclusion into the Court of Sponsors occurs with a minimum $25,000 endowment, the income of which is designated for scholarships, program enhancement, faculty development, library funds and similar University endeavors. These donors continue the work of the original founders in helping students experience the unusual advantages of a UOP education. Future generations of visitors to the Court of Sponsors, which was dedicated on Founders Day, March 10, 1994, will see the names of those who have made significant contributions toward the endowment and in so doing have helped the University achieve distinction. Future donors will be honored similarly.

UOP Founders

of the mind through education. Later known as the "Bishop of Africa," he arrived in California by sailing around Cape Horn. Taylor was the most charismatic of the founding trio. According to reports, he used overturned whisky barrels as pulpits when he gave fiery, oratorical sermons in the streets of San Francisco. With his enthusiasm, Taylor was able to mobilize the church community to raise funds for the founding of the University. Their contributions not forgotten, Bannister, Owen and Taylor were the pioneers that helped to bring higher education and religion to California and built UOP on those principles.

They will be recognized by future and past UOP students for many generations.

It was a day for the Founder's descendants

Descendants of Dr. Edward Bannister, Rev. Isaac Owen and Rev. William Taylor, three Methodist ministers who established California Wesleyan College in July, 1851 – California's first chartered institution of higher education – were present for the March 10, 1994 Founders Day ceremony.

Among them were members of the Bannister Family, descendants John Gorton of San Anselmo and Robert Lenz of San Leandro; from the Owen Family, descendants James Welch of San Jose, Geraldine Stallard and her daughter Anne Stallard of Los Altos and Donald Kidder from Vacaville; from the Taylor Family, descendants Ed Chambers of Walnut Creek, Jean Koskinen of Mountain Ranch, her son Stanley Koskinen of Salinas and daughter Janice Gregory of Fresno.

Darrell Thomas, director of Church Relations and Alumni Student Recruitment and co-chair of the 1994 Founders Day Committee, said the University is indebted to Carolyn Storm, a lay genealogist from Alameda. "She was the key player in finding the descendants of Bishop Taylor and without her untiring efforts, it is very doubtful that we would have been able to secure their names and contact them."

Diversity on the Pacific Alumni Association Board

(Editor's Note: Kris Anderson, Dr. Randall Hayashi, Everett Leon-Guerrero, Stanley Lichtenstein, Robin Nelson, Dr. Dianne Philibosian and Judge Nancy Sweet, elected as new Board Members of the Pacific Alumni Association last fall, share with fellow alums what they have done since graduating from UOP, what they are doing now and their goals as PAA Board Members.)

Judge Nancy Sweet

After KRIS ANDERSON graduated from UOP's School of Business and Public Administration in 1987, she served five years as a commercial lines underwriter for Chubb & Son Inc. in Concord. She then joined the Accounting Offices of Robert Y. Anderson, CPA, her husband's Walnut Creek accounting firm.

"Life is work-oriented right now," Anderson said, who is juggling time studying for her CPA license, working-out at a health club, traveling and remaining active at Concord United Methodist Church.

"My goal while serving on the Alumni Board is to foster a continuum of school support that carries on beyond graduation into young alumni activities," said Anderson, co-chair of PAA's Young Alumni Committee.

RANDALL HAYASHI, D.D.S., majored in biology and graduated from UOP in 1985. "Through the course of my education I knew that I wanted to be in the health profession, and dentistry seemed to be the field," Hayashi said.

He made plans to attend UOP's Dental School and came upon Marlena Yokaitis in the process. "The dental school orientation was on the Stockton campus," Hayashi explained. "We met, became friends and eventually fell in love."

Now Hayashi's practice is in Modesto and Yokaitis' is in Turlock. "We are each other's dentist," Hayashi said, when asked where they go for dental work.

"An inherent challenge I have as a dentist is being a service provider and a business manager, too," said Hayashi, whose Modesto practice employs 10 people. "It's like having two full-time jobs." Hayashi, 30, said he enjoys working with people and providing a needed service.

Hayashi said his goal as a Pacific Alumni Association Board member is to increase the Association's visibility among other alums as well as on campus. "Awareness about the Pacific Alumni Association from alums will result in their support and involvement," he said.

After EVERETT LEON-GUERRERO graduated from UOP's School of Engineering, he worked for almost two years at Thompson-Hysell, a civil engineering firm in Modesto.

Leon-Guerrero left the firm in July, 1991. Refusing an offer by another firm, Leon-Guerrero took a hiatus from his career. He and his wife, Dr. Jennifer Leon-Guerrero, who has a dental practice in Modesto, felt that one of them should stay home and raise their son, Nicholas.

Being Mr. Mom for Leon-Guerrero is busy and challenging. Active in his son's childcare, Leon-Guerrero serves as chairman of the parent advisory committee of Kiaros Child Development Center. He also has exposed Nicholas to, among some things, sledding, train rides, a tour of a jellybean factory and the zoo. "We just hang out a lot together," Leon-Guerrero said of his 3 1/2-year-old son. Leon-Guerrero plans to re-enter the workforce when Nicholas and his younger sibling — who will be born sometime in April — reach school age.

Leon-Guerrero, who has been active in the Stanislaus Pacific Club, said his goals for the Pacific Alumni Association are to improve the PAA's Young Alumni Committee and to bridge the gap so that more young alumni can become more involved.

STANLEY LICHTENSTEIN, co-chair of UOP's East Bay Alumni Club, majored in broadcasting and graduated from COP in 1949. He spent 25 years in radio and TV in the San Francisco area. After receiving a master's degree from San Francisco State University (SFSU), he started a new career, serving as chair and instructor in the Mass Communications Department of Chabot College in Hayward. Lichtenstein retired after 19 years, but still teaches part time at Chabot, SFSU, the University of San Francisco and California State University, Hayward. Currently he is involved in several non-profit activities, including the City of Alameda Broadcast Cable Commission and Judah Magnes Museum, Berkeley.

Lichtenstein, married for 37 years, lives with his spouse, Diane, in Alameda. The Lichtenstein's raised four sons. Gary, 35, is an educator at Denver University; Moshe, 33, is a franchise broker in Detroit; twin brother Benjamin is in the Ph.D. program at Boston College; and Scott, 31, works for the European Commission in Brussels, Belgium. "We have three super grandsons," Stan said of Moshe's kids.

Lichtenstein said this is his second time on the Alumni Board. "I am proud to be a part of this excellent organization," he said. "My goal is to spread the Pacific word and assist the Board in getting more alumni involved for UOP."

Since ROBIN NELSON graduated from COP in 1957 with a bachelor of arts degree in physical education, she has taught two years at a Stockton junior high school and another 12 years at Ohlone Junior College in Fremont. The mother of two (Steven, 33 and Robert, 32), "now plays a lot of golf." Throughout the years she has volunteered for several community organizations, including the Cub Scouts, serving as president of the American Association of University Women in Fremont and serving as chairperson of the Toyon Branch of Oakland's Children's Hospital.

"I would like to use my talents to help the University as much as I can," said Nelson, who is serving on PAA's Admission Committee. "My goal is to help identify and assist recruiting prospective students to attend UOP."

Nelson, and her husband, Vance — a retired Fremont high school principal who graduated from COP in 1957, later receiving his Ph.D. in education from Utah State University — said they enjoy getting involved with the Pacific family. The Nelson's will also help coordinate an Elderhostel at the Feather River Inn next May.

Dr. DIANNE PHILIBOSIAN, is associate dean of the School of Communication, Health and Human Services at California State University, Northridge, as well as project director of the Warner Center Institute for Family Development. She has been a professor and administrator at CSUN since 1973.

She received her bachelor's degree in drama and French from UOP in 1967 and earned her M.S. and Ph.D. in early childhood education from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, where she served as the Director of the Head Start Leadership Development Program for the south 62 counties of Illinois during the early '70s.

Active in the child care community, Dr. Philibosian serves as a governor's appointee to the State of California Child Development Program Advisory Committee and as an appointee to the City of Los Angeles Child Care Advisory Board. She led the effort to create CSUN's off-campus laboratory child care center. The U.S. Department of Education's Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education has supported her work in creating a model child care curriculum at the Warner Center Children's Corner with a three year grant providing for nationwide dissemination of the model curriculum. Her work has spread not only to the Midwest and East Coast, but to Japan and Mexico as well.

Whether graduating from UOP five years ago or 25 years ago, Philibosian said UOP alums are bound together by a common experience. "Our alumni activities provide us with the opportunity for perpetuating the uniqueness of the UOP experience for future students through both social and cultural activities as well as contributing to University advancement."

Sacramento Superior Court Judge NANCY SWEET has been nominated to represent McGeorge School of Law on the Pacific Alumni Association Board. Judge Sweet, a 1974 graduate of McGeorge, served as a research attorney for the 5th District Court of Appeals in Fresno handling mainly criminal appeals before joining the attorney general's office as deputy attorney general under Gov. Deukmejian.

In 1984 she left the Department of Justice to lobby for the Department of Housing and Community Development. Judge Sweet was also chief counsel for the California State Lottery from 1985 to 1988 and was appointed Sacramento Municipal Court Judge by Gov. Deukmejian in June, 1989. She was appointed Sacramento Superior Court Judge by Gov. Wilson in 1992. As a Board Member of McGeorge School of Law Alumni Association and a new Board Member for the Pacific Alumni Association, Judge Sweet said she has a dual role.

"My whole mission is to act as a bridge between both boards and keep each other informed," Judge Sweet said. Continuing fund-raising efforts, assisting students while attending McGeorge and awarding scholarships are some of the activities McGeorge's Alumni Association are conducting. "We awarded 15 scholarships in 1993," she said. "The goal now is to maintain what we have done and increase it in 1994."

Calling All Entrepreneurs

Have you started a company, managed a rapidly growing enterprise or initiated a new venture within a corporation?

The Pacific Review, in partnership with the School of Business and Public Administration (SBPA) as part of SBPA's new entrepreneurial focus, is soliciting your assistance in answering these questions. The intent is to publish a comprehensive list of alumni who have started their own companies in a future Pacific Review.

When and how was your business established? Is it a corporate venture, partnership or sole proprietorship? What kind of goods or services do you provide? How many individuals do you employ and what are your annual sales?

The data collected will create a vehicle whereby UOP's entrepreneurial alums and friends can network and remain current with new developments in entrepreneurship.

Don't be left out in the listing of UOP's Entrepreneurs. Please fill out the adjacent questionnaire and forward it to: Dr. Michael Morris, Fletcher Jones Professor of Entrepreneurship, SBPA, University of the Pacific, Stockton, CA 95211; or fax to (209) 946-2586.

Donald Swift, COP '46, is still participating in senior olympics and winning a few medals. He is a retired Presbyterian pastor. He and his wife, Virginia, live in Gahanna, Ohio.

James O'Grady, COP '47, has served as a judge in Santa Clara Municipal Court since his appointment by Gov. Ronald Reagan, July 1971. He and his wife, Rosalia, live in Palo Alto.

UOP Alumnae Named Payless Drug Stores' Pharmacist of the Year

Payless Drug Store has chosen Barbara Turner as the winner of its annual 1993 Pharmacist of the Year award.

Turner, who was selected from among the chain's more than 2,000 pharmacists for her outstanding service to the community and to the field of pharmacy, began her career with Payless Drug Stores in 1988 after graduating from the University of the Pacific with a doctor of pharmacy degree. She is a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association and the California Pharmacists Association and is the immediate past president of the Sacramento Valley Pharmacists Association.

Turner is very optimistic about the future of pharmacy. "Tools such as drug information expertise, patient medication profiles and active counseling all play a role in this new arena called pharmaceutical care, which will soon be the standard by which all pharmacists practice," she said. "As I have become more involved in pharmacy, I have found that I receive more than I give from a truly exciting profession."

In honor of her dedication to the pharmacy profession, Payless will contribute a $2,500 scholarship grant to the University of the Pacific School of Pharmacy in Turner's name.

Turner is the pharmacy manager at the Payless Drug in Cameron Park, Calif. Payless Drug Stores, based in Wilsonville, Ore., currently operates 572 stores in 12 Western states.

Patrons of Pacific Profile: Arnold C. Scott

Alumnus Arnold C. Scott grew up on a ranch outside Petaluma, where his parents came after their immigration from Denmark and Norway. Scott graduated from COP in 1939 with a degree in sociology and worked as a parole administrator for the California Youth Authority until his retirement. He then returned to the family ranch to raise cattle.

At Pacific, Scott played freshman football until he suffered a knee injury. His rehabilitation by walking and running led to his involvement with the University's track team as a long distance runner. His interest in sports and physical fitness continued through-out his life: in the 1980s he held a record for long distance running in the 65 to 69-year old division, and he was a skier to the age of 74.

Over the years, Arnold Scott has maintained both his ties to Pacific and his involvement in helping young people. He has been a member of the Patrons of Pacific since 1986 and in this way has provided scholarships for deserving UOP students.

One such student is Tom Clark '94, who has corresponded regularly with Scott. Once, when visiting the ranch, Clark discovered that his Patron had lost most of his possessions in a fire 20 years earlier—including his COP diploma. Tom arranged for the Registrar's Office to replicate the diploma as a surprise for his new friend, and presented it to Scott this past fall.

In 1992, Clark transferred to the School of Engineering. He is from Oakley, and would like to be a mechanical engineer at Sandia National Laboratories where he is currently employed. Some of his recent accomplishments include being president of

Arnold S. Scott, '39

ASME (American Society of Mechanical Engineering), lead project engineer for the 1994 Human Powered Vehicle, Tau Beta Pi award recipient and being a Patrons Scholar.

"I greatly admire Mr. Scott for his generosity and financial support. I'm proud to have been a part of UOP and I, too, look forward to helping support a student in the future."

(Arnold Scott's support is also helping Omudhome Ogburn, a senior in the School of Pharmacy.)

Members of the Patrons of Pacific contribute $1,000 or more each year for scholarships and academic needs at UOP. These loyal, thoughtful donors come from various backgrounds and age ranges, and are inspiring and interesting people. Through these Patrons Profiles, you have an opportunity to get to know some of the Patrons and the Patrons Scholars they help sponsor.

Alum appointed KUOP station manager

UOP Communication Professor Donald Duns, former dean of University College and Lifelong Learning and a 1958 UOP graduate, became station manager at KUOP on January 1.

"Don brings some real strengths to KUOP," said Dennis Easter, program director of the University's public radio station. "His knowledge of the University, the community and KUOP's market will aid in the continued growth and development of the station."

Duns was a top debater during his college years here. He holds his master's and Ph.D. degrees from Illinois' Northwestern University and has been a UOP faculty member since 1961.

Duns helped establish California Public Radio and was on its first board of directors; CPR now has more than 20 member stations in the state.

During his career at UOP, Duns served as chair of the Communication Department, coordinator for faculty development and associate dean at College of the Pacific, UOP's liberal arts college.

In 1984 he became the first dean of University College and Lifelong Learning, an undergraduate division of UOP that provides academic programs and support to adult-learners 25 years or older. This past fall semester, Duns taught public speaking and argumentation courses.

"I'm really pleased to have been selected as station manager and to be returning to KUOP," said Duns, who was instrumental in KUOP receiving certification from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and membership with National Public Radio in the early 1970s. "I believe that KUOP can play a significant role in the community and I'm committed in making that happen."

He added that he intends to double KUOP's fund-raising efforts, increase membership and improve underwriting.

Alumnus honored in several Halls of Fame

For most people, being inducted into a Hall of Fame would be the highlight of any career, athletic or not. But for University of the Pacific alumni board member Bob Gaughran '57, one 'hall' wasn't large enough to hold his level of fame.

As a tribute to his success as an athlete, coach, administrator, author and mentor, Gaughran was inducted as a charter member into the United States Community College Water Polo Hall of Fame last May. The following month he received an honor most water polo players only dream of—induction into the United States Water Polo Hall of Fame. "It's a wonderful honor to be recognized by your peers," Gaughran said.

Gaughran attended Stockton Community College 1953-54 and was named All Conference, All-Northern California and MVP-Northern California JC Water Polo during that year. After he established the community college scoring record of 150 goals in 17 games, Gaughran set the National JC record in the 200 yard backstroke and was named All-American in nine swimming events.

Gaughran's outstanding JC career paved the way for him to become a three-time All-American as a member of Pacific's water polo team (1954-1957) and he was named MVP for his three seasons with the Tigers, both as a swimmer and as a water polo player. During those three years, Gaughran led the nation in scoring and graduated from UOP with a career scoring record of 481 goals. "We were all scholar-athletes back then. . . we had a great time, a great team. An amazing number of people have gone on to make more money than me, but they've never sent me any of it!" he joked.

In 1985, Gaughran became the first water polo player to be inducted into UOP's own Athletic Hall of Fame.

In addition to being an outstanding collegiate player, Gaughran was selected as an alternate to the U.S. Olympic team in 1956 and again in 1960. If not for the method used at the time to choose the Olympic players—the national champions were allowed to place seven players on the Olympic team, and the alternates were chosen from other teams who made the finals—surely Gaughran would have an Olympic experience to add to his long list of accomplishments.

After graduation Gaughran was named head coach for Menlo-Atherton High School's water polo and swim teams. During Gaughran's tenure as coach his teams earned an impressive overall record of 145 wins with just 19 losses. "High school kids are an exciting age group to coach. They'll try to do anything that you ask of them . . . they simply love the participation," Gaughran said.

His water polo teams participated in every California Interscholastic Federation (CIF) championship from 1959 to 1964; they won in 1959, 1960 and 1962, and placed second in 1961, 1963 and 1964. Gaughran's swim teams held the title of league champions consecutively during 1960-1963, again in 1965, and were the CIF champions in 1962. "Two of my swimmers went on to join the Olympic team; one of them won a gold medal right out of high school," he recalled.

Coaching did not end Gaughran's own water polo career, though. He spent 10 years as a member of San Francisco Olympic Club's water polo team; and during his Olympic Club career he played in 10 National Championships, won two, and helped lead the team to eight Northern California team championships.

Gaughran traveled to Southern California in 1965 to become the head water polo coach at Rancho Santiago College, a position he still holds. "I've been here 29 years," he said. "It's a real community college team . . . I have all different types of players. In fact, I have a former Olympic player on my team right now."

In 1981, his JC team was the Southern California Invitational Champion; in 1985, Conference Champion; and in 1983 and 1985, his teams were Southern California Water Polo Champions.

Water polo has provided many international opportunities for Gaughran and, in a sense, he has served as a U.S. Ambassador for both water polo and swimming. In 1971 he was the assistant coach to the U.S. National Water Polo team—the first such team to play inside Hungary and the former USSR. He headed a water polo delegation at the World Championships, held in Cali, Columbia, in 1975. Additionally, he was both manager and coach for USA international competitions eight times.

But Gaughran is far more than an outstanding player and successful coach to the water polo world. As an administrator, Gaughran served as chairman of the U.S. Olympic Water

Bob Gaughran '57, inducted as a charter member into the United Community College Water Polo Hall of Fame in May 1993.

Polo Committee and as a member of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee. He was the venue director for the 1983 FINA Cup and the 1984 Olympic Water Polo competitions, and spent time as chairman of the AAU Water Polo Committee and as the Director of Athletics at Rancho Santiago College. He also has organized and directed numerous swimming and water polo clinics.

As an author, Gaughran has contributed The Technique of Water Polo, co-authored by Art Lambert, in 1969 and The History of Water Polo in 1970. Many of his articles have appeared in Swimming World,

Swimming Techniques and Water Polo Illustrated.

But perhaps the most significant impact Gaughran has made has been on the lives of the many teammates, players and colleagues who have been fortunate enough to work with him.

Gaughran has made, and continues to make, sports history. "I've been running sports seminars on the national level. Someday I'll retire and do that full time," he said. However, he's not "throwing in the towel" on water polo yet . . . after all, champions never stop being winners.

GILBERT W. WHITE, RETIRED UOP PHYSICS PROFESSOR

Gilbert W. White, son of longtime UOP faculty members Mr. and Mrs. G. Warren White, and a UOP faculty member himself, died suddenly on Tuesday, January 4. He was 61.

White was a member of a pioneer Stockton family. His great-grandfather was attracted by the Gold Rush and sailed around the horn in the 1850s to settle in the local area. White's father, Warren White, was a mathematics professor for UOP on the San Jose campus, and helped move the school to Stockton in 1924. He served for more than 50 years as a professor and retired as chairman of the mathematics department. The Pershing Avenue entrance gate to the University is named in his honor. Gilbert's mother, Rudy Zahn White, was a well-known local artist, and also taught art at Pacific.

More than 50 years ago, doctors advised Gilbert he would not live to become an adult because of a congenital heart defect. Friends and associates said the positive manner in which he adjusted his life-style to accommodate his physical handicap while continually maintaining an optimistic outlook was an inspiration to them.

White, who graduated from the University of the Pacific in 1955, took graduate courses at Columbia University and the University of Wisconsin. He taught physics at Pacific before his health forced him to give up the profession. He also played violin with the Stockton Symphony Orchestra. For the past 15 years, he has been associated with the Vedanta Society in Carmichael.

White is survived by his sister, Patricia Anne White Sprague, of La Jolla, California, and two cousins and two nephews. His grandfather, George White, was president of the University of Southern California (USC) in the late 1890s.

Memorial donations may be made to the G. Warren and Rudy Zahn White scholarship fund at Pacific.

MARVIN CHURCH, COP '43

UOP alumnus Marvin Church, San Mateo County clerk-recorder from 1966 to 1987, died on Friday, December 10, 1993 after a long illness. He was 72 years old.

As county clerk-recorder, Church earned a reputation for efficiency, and was known for his election night "snap tally," the earliest election returns in the State. The 1979 county grand jury praised his department as "efficient, professional and responsive."

Born in Stockton on July 18, 1921, as a second-generation Californian, Church earned his bachelor's degree in business administration at COP and was licensed as a public accountant. He became a senior corporate auditor for Lockheed Missiles and Space Co. and audited record systems for Pan American World Airways in the South Pacific and Asia.

Church's political career began in 1958 when he was elected to the Millbrae City Council. He was re-elected in 1962 and served two terms as mayor. He later served as chairman of the San Mateo County Mayor's Council, president of the Peninsula division of the League of California Cities and chairman of the North County Council of Cities.

In 1966, Church was elected county clerk-recorder, and he served five terms.

After retiring in 1987, Church authored a book on his family history, titled: "An American Family Spanning Nearly Three Centuries." He donated a copy of the book to the UOP library a month before he died.

Church is survived by his wife of 49 years, Lorene Grondona Church '45, a daughter, Diane Church Allen of Seattle, a son, Mark M. Church of Millbrae, and two grandchildren, Jonathan and Michael Allen.

DEAN EMERITUS ROWLAND

Ivan W. Rowland, dean of the then newly organized UOP School of Pharmacy in 1956 until his retirement in 1979, died on March 11 after an extended illness. He was 83.

Graduating with honors with his bachelor of science degree in Pharmacy in 1932, Dean Rowland entered graduate school and completed his master of science in pharmaceutical chemistry in 1947 from the University of Colorado and received his Ph.D. in bacteriology from the University of Washington in 1954. He received an appointment as professor of pharmaceutical chemistry in the college of pharmacy at Idaho State University.

His reputation as an outstanding educator grew. Shortly after receiving his Ph.D., and upon the retirement of Dean Emmons Roscoe, he was appointed Dean of the College of Pharmacy at Idaho State University in 1954. Recognizing his outstanding leadership and talent, UOP President Robert Burns convinced Dean Rowland to accept the Deanship of the newly organized University of the Pacific School of Pharmacy in 1956. He accepted the challenge.

Dean Rowland guided the School of Pharmacy from its beginnings to a reputation as one of the nation's most innovative and outstanding institutions. Under his leadership, the construction of a new multimillion dollar School of Pharmacy complex was completed in 1969 and dedicated in April, 1971. Following his retirement, he continued to assist in fund raising efforts for the School until 1992.

Dean Emeritus Rowland was preceded in death on November, 16, 1993, by his wife, Helen.

Remembrances may be made to the Ivan W. Rowland and Helen Rowland Memorial Scholarships c/o the UOP School of Pharmacy.

STANLEY G. VOLBRECHT, RETIRED UOP GEOLOGY & GEOGRAPHY PROFESSOR

Stanley G. Volbrecht, professor emeritus and former chair in the Department of Geology and Geography, died on Saturday, March 12, after a long illness.

Professor Volbrecht was an alumnus of the College of the Pacific (class of 1953) and received his master of science from Stanford University in 1961. He taught at Stockton College and later joined the faculty of Pacific where he taught for 28 years. He served as chair of the Department of Geology and Geography from 1965 until 1979.

Professor Volbrecht was known among students and colleagues alike for his dedication to teaching. He was always available for his students, and had a reputation for being absolutely fair in his dealings with them. On his retirement in 1989, the Department established the Stanley G. Volbrecht Scholarship Fund for geology majors. Memorials may be directed to the Scholarship Fund or to the American Lung Association.

UOP honors teacher-scholar

Dr. Paul Arthur Schilpp, College of the Pacific faculty member from 1923 to 1935 who died this past September at the age of 96, was a renowned figure in 20th century philosophy. As a celebration of his life and his career, UOP's Philosophy Department will display a selection of his books in UOP's William Knox Holt Memorial Library this Spring. The display will contain a representative collection of Schilpp's writings, including the three books he published while at Pacific and two volumes of essays which were collected and published in his honor. The display will also feature several volumes from the 21 volume Library of Living Philosophers, a project conceived, created and edited by Schilpp and that is still being published by Open Court Publishing Co.

Among dozens of honors received throughout his career were the Gold Medal of Phi Beta Kappa, the Bertrand Russell Society award and honorary degrees from Kent State University, Southern Illinois University and Springfield College in Massachusetts. Schilpp, a member of the faculty which moved the College of the Pacific to the new campus in Stockton, represents a proud moment in Pacific's history and epitomizes a tradition which we still embrace: the scholar-teacher who enriches the lives of his students, the profession and the community.

In tribute of Professor Emeritus Arlen J. Hansen

Winter Solstice. There's something mystical, something pagan and earthy, something decidedly unreligious and unsentimental about this particular day. It was an appropriate day to gather to scatter Arlen's ashes.

We were ten: Lynn, Arlen's wife; Kip, his son; another son, Jim, his spouse Katie, and their baby, Veronica; Dee Briggs (a longtime friend); Charles Clerc (a colleague from UOP); Jeff Bartlett (a former student); Mary Talarico (a friend from the Foreign Service); and I, his daughter-in-law.

Except for Mary who lives in Paris, we all came from California, arriving on different days and traveling different routes, but finally together to pay tribute to an amazing man. Only Arlen could exert this kind of pull on people, making them do extraordinary things almost without thinking.

We met at 2:00 p.m. at Cemetaire Pére Lachaise. After getting a map, we began our tour. We stopped to visit Oscar Wilde, Edith Piaf, Amedeo Modigliani, Gertrude Stein and Alice B. Toklas, Guillaume Apollinaire, Richard Wright, Isadora Duncan, Marcel Proust. At each gravesite, we took a handful of ashes and tossed them in the air; we told each other stories we'd heard lots of times before: about Modigliani's pregnant mistress who escaped her brothers' watchful eyes and threw herself out of her hotel window in grief over Modi's death; about the poet Guillaume Apollinaire who supposedly died on Armistice Day hearing the taunts "A bas Guillaume" ("Down with the Kaiser Wilhelm") and thinking they were for him; about Isadora Duncan and that damned scarf.

Without having to say it, we all knew where we had heard these stories: over countless meals with Arlen in Paris, in Aachen, in Barcelona, in San Francisco and in Stockton. And we kept on telling the stories, walking through the cemetery, enjoying the first sight of sun we had seen since we arrived in Paris. (If this were a film, Arlen would have called the sudden appearance of the sun contrived; I prefer to think of it as magical.)

After scattering all the ashes, we went back to the flat to regroup. Over glasses of wine, Lynn read from letters sent by people who attended our ceremony "in spirit." We toasted Arlen's daughter Laura and her husband Joe in California, his mother and brother in Iowa, and friends Eddie Weihe in Seattle, the Coovers in Israel, John Seaman in Stockton. This was the teariest part of the evening for most of us. Maybe it was the wine or maybe it was the emotion. Somehow it felt okay to cry together.

The evening ended with a dinner at Les Relais de Venise, better known as "L'Entrecôte." After dinner, we all agreed how right the evening felt. We were laughing, crying, telling stories, and being silent; it was as if the evening had been scripted by Arlen himself. And of course, it was — that is, we had planned a memorial he would like to attend. There's no doubt in my mind that he was there.

The week before we left for Paris, Kip and I were talking to our two daughters, Kelly and Sonie, about our upcoming vacation. They knew that we were going on a special trip and that we were taking "Papa's" ashes with us. Suddenly, Kelly asked us a question, "Where do we go when we die?" Before I had time to think about an answer, Sonie responded matter-of-factly, "Paris." I think she may be right.

— Tess Hansen

(Editor's note: Tess Hansen, an instructor in the English Department at Foothill College in Los Altos Hills, is the daughter-in-law of Arlen J. Hansen, professor emeritus of English, who died after a long illness on August 12, 1993.)

Spitzer, Yamaha Piano Corporation places pianos with UOP's Conservatory

Dr. Carl Nosse, Dean, UOP's Conservatory of Music, listens appreciatively to Lilly Schlachta, a senior piano performance major who won the Conservatory's Commencement Competition, as she rehearses on a Yamaha disklavier piano. Spitzer's Miracle Music Co. of Stockton, in cooperation with the Yamaha Piano Corporation, has placed 18 clavichord pianos, 7 grand pianos, 3 studio upright pianos, 3 disklaviers, and a teacher's console with total value of about $287,000, with UOP's Conservatory of Music. "On behalf of the Conservatory, its students and faculty, I express abundant gratitude to Spitzer's Miracle Music and the Yamaha Piano Corporation," said Nosse, who developed and negotiated the loan-program arrangement with David Dupree, keyboard salesman at Spitzer Music. Schlachta, who is from Castro Valley, California, will perform the first movement of Robert Schumann's Concerto in A Minor with the University Symphony Orchestra on Saturday, May 21, 7:30 p.m., at Faye Spanos Concert Hall.
