Trusts; fiduciary standard of care

NEV. REV. STAT. § 164.050 (amended).
AB 357 (Committee on Judiciary); 1989 STAT. Ch. 71

Under existing law, the fiduciary of a trust must exercise the standard of care of a prudent person when making investment decisions.1 The fiduciary must make these decisions in light of the potential income from the investment and the security of the capital.2 Chapter 71 requires that the fiduciary base an investment decision on the nature and potential of the investment, the characteristics of the whole portfolio, and the economic situation and goals of the beneficiary.3
