NINETEENTH

COMMENCEMENT

OF THE

niversity of the Pacific,

ON

Thursday, June 8, '76.

COLLEGE CHAPEL.

CLASS SONG.

Just in life's beautiful morning,
Just in its Springtime so fair ;
Waiting to welcome its pleasures,
Or strong all its burdens to bear ;
Eager to gather life's harvest,
Golden and ripe now at hand,
Dreaming bright dreams of the future,
An earnest and true-hearted band.
But over the gladness,
Falls there a gloom—
Thought full of sadness,
That parting must be so soon ;
Scenes loved so fondly,
(Sweet was the spell.)
Hearts that we cherished
To all must we say farewell.

CHORUS—Farewell, Farewell,
And must we say farewell ;
To scenes we've loved so fondly,
Oh, must we say farewell.

Joyous together we've wandered,
Through the long years that have fled ;
Part we to-day with a heart-sigh,
For the sweet hours that are dead,
And as we turn to the future,
Hopes cannot silence our fears,
Vain all our efforts to fathom
The secrets of on-coming years
Fame may be weaving,
Garlands for some ;
Others be grieving
For hopes that have bloomed and gone,
And as we sever,
Who can foretell
Whether forever
We breathe that sad word farewell.

CHORUS—Farewell, farewell,
How can we say farewell ;
To scenes we've loved so fondly,
How can we say farewell.
