Ianna has been spending a week in Portage and has just got home - she wants you to write her a long letter - and so do the other girls - and so do I -

I found an old newspaper the other day, and I thought I would look over it - I saw a paragraph in it that I thought might interest you - about Michigan College - it was printed four years ago - so there might be some difference now -

I enclose it for your perusal - Keep your letters to Portage City expecting you will write soon

I conclude from your affectionate Mother

Dear Dand

It seems a very long time since I had a letter from you - I hope you enjoy good health - We are all about our usual way -

Mary is going to the water cure near Madison for a while - I hope she will receive that benefit - she expects - she has given up house keeping and she sends Anna to Mrs Mead and Jessie to me - I expect her here today -

I rather think your purse has not grown much heavier this winter unless your wages have been increased - as your expenses are so great - Well never mind -

I should think you were a good deal surprised to see John at Buffalo so unexpected I feel very sorry that he has met with such trials and losses and so many disappointments - he wrote me from Indianapolis that he had got a situation there - I hope he will meet with a good home while he remains there.

We are only taking one passenger this year instead of forty - and that one is sent to Scotland - that is the reason why you don't get any - but I will sometimes send you a British one -

Mary has begun a sketch of the house for you she expects to have it ready for you when you come home - the log house is put up near the log stable - and the log stable is now a house and they are both inhabited it does seem strange to see two families living so near our well -

I am happy to know by your last letter that you enjoy religion more than you ever did before - for without it we cannot be really happy any where I hope your relish for spiritual things will increase - a good hope of heaven through grace will carry us through and above the trials and cares of this world - do you still attend the prayer-meetings - our meetings are much the same as when you were here -

David Galloway has made up his mind to begin farming again he has been looking at several - last week he bought Mudge Tiffany's farm but Mudge backed out -
