A Capella Choir Seeks Funds, Will Serenade World's Fair

By DANINE COZZENS

The prize-winning Mardi Gras booth with the space needle motif announced the fact that the University of the Pacific A Cappella Choir has been extended an invitation to represent the University and the Stockton community at the World's Fair in Seattle. They also have been asked to sing at the world-famous Butchard Gardens in Victoria, British Columbia, opening their 1962 Summer Artist Season.

According to Dave Wilson, the A Cappella Choir Manager, the choir is attempting to raise the necessary $3000 for the trip by accepting contributions from persons interested in the choir and the university. "The success of our recent western states junket has enabled us to accept this unique invitation. However, the cry of money is still echoing in our ears." All students interested in supporting the choir may send contributions through the Conservatory Office.

The Choir's next appearance, under the direction of Dean J. Russell Bodley, will be Sunday evening, May 20th, at 8:15 p.m. in the Conservatory. They will present the numbers that won them such acclaim on tour, and end with "The Lord Bless You and Keep You," traditionally joined by any former choir members present.

KAREN BEATTIE of Tri Delta is named first Blue Key Sweetheart. She will reign during the next school year.

Pres. Stark Introduces New Blue Key Traditions

As the major aim of his term of office as president of Blue Key, Jim Stark has dedicated himself to increasing Pacific's knowledge of the merits of his group. One step in this direction has been the selection of Karen Beattie from a group of outstanding candidates as Blue Key Sweetheart.

Karen, a sophomore from Delta Delta Delta was selected because of her combination of beauty, academic accomplishment, and leadership ability. She will be official hostess at all Blue Key events.

Another progressive step which Stark has instituted is the Blue Key Blazer. The light blue blazers have had the effect of creating more interest about this honorary fraternity around campus.

As stated before, Blue Key is a men's honorary fraternity which bases membership on activities on campus, demonstrated leadership ability and a minimum grade point of 3.0.

While serving as hosts at many events, the members of Blue Key also devote much time to other projects. One such project was the Scholarship fund which helped John Kigunda, an exchange student from Kenya, through Pacific. Another activity is the selection of the Sophomore Man of the Year.

If interested in the blazers, you may see them the 17th and 24th of this month at the Honors and Awards Convocations.

North Hall To Be Phi Delta Chi House

Phi Delta Chi, a fraternity for pharmacy students which has only been on the campus since 1956, will have a fraternity house next year. Willis Corkern and Richard Greenwood, members of Phi Delta Chi, stated that North Hall will be remodeled into their house.

The fraternity has as its purpose the fostering of pharmacy and the providing of social education for the students. It has 66 members and 17 pledges. Ivan Roland, university instructor, is a past grand president of National Phi Delta Chi.

Activities of the fraternity include participating in the annual open house of labs and equipment. Two thousand interested people were shown through this year. Members of Phi Delta Chi play in the Tranquillizers, a Dixie Land Band, which won a first place at the band frolic.

Spurs Are Tapped; Serve Pacific Campus

By JOHN STAGG HANSON

You wander into Convocation. Ushering and taking roll are the Spurs. You are buzzed at nine-thirty Sunday night. Downstairs selling snacks are the Spurs. You sign your John Hancock on a student ballot. A Spur asks you to kindly "drop it in here." You see a group of orphans or mentally retarded children at a ball game or school function. The Spurs are taking care of them. It's Valentine's Day, and you get a telegram from your girl (or guy). No, it's a Spur-o-gram.

The aforementioned are but a few of the services provided by the nationwide sophomore women's honor society known as the Spurs, an always active but too-little-appreciated campus organization that does good deeds of all shapes and sizes. The Spurs' immediate purpose on campus, as stated by member Ginny Kerber, is "to promote unity among women students," but the effects of this red-hot little (sixteen members) club are felt far beyond the realm of women students.

For example, through their do-not selling efforts, the Spurs have raised enough money to help support a small, mentally retarded Mexican boy whose parents were previously unable to buy his school lunches. At Christmas, they sponsored a drive to dress dolls for presents for children in a nearby orphanage. On Methodist Student Day, the girls led campus tours for visiting participants.

They've substituted as time-keepers at debate tournaments. They ushered at the Christmas Pageant, the Messiah, and other school programs. They served at the Strawberry Breakfast. And so on and so forth.

NIXON LAUDS UOP AND LE BARON AT ANNUAL ALUMNI BANQUET

By JOHN GREGORY

Former Vice-President Richard Nixon, making a brief appearance on campus last weekend, praised the University of the Pacific for being one of the small colleges that "has made a unique contribution to education." The Republican gubernatorial candidate addressed 375 guests at a banquet held in Covell to highlight last Saturday's annual Pacific Alumni Day.

Nixon cited all-time Pacific and Washington Redskin quarterback Eddie Le Baron as an example of the students that are molded at Pacific. "Eddie may have come here with high ideals and intelligence," he said, "but he acquired more of both here because that's the kind of school this is."

Le Baron was presented the Outstanding Alumnus Award of the Year, while former publicity director Arthur R. Farey received the Distinguished Service Award. Eight students, two from each class, were given Outstanding Service Awards. The new alumni officers were also announced, to complete the honors presented at the banquet.

Nixon, who refused to "talk politics" with reporters while on campus, said that Pacific is similar to his alma mater, Whittier College. "Education at small colleges receives the inspiration of diversity and experimentation that big state schools cannot match," he commented. "Colleges like Pacific are essential to America's well being and must be preserved."

Le Baron supported the praise that Nixon had to offer. "I have seen many Pacific grads across the country," he said, "all of them are proud of their heritage and all of them positive that the small college has much to offer. Never will you find a place with a finer esprit de corps."

The former football great who now practices law was honored by President Robert Burns; Brigadier General Herman Nickerson, Jr., fiscal director of the Marine Corps; Larry Siemering, former Pacific football coach; and by Reverend Fred Busher, national director of the Amos Alonzo Stagg Foundation. General Nickerson was Le Baron's commanding general during the Korean War.

Nixon hoped that Le Baron will eventually enter politics. "He has the quality of mind, the judgment, and the leadership ability for success," he stated. Nixon added that he had never seen a finer quarterback and team leader than the former Pacific football great.

The outstanding students that were honored were Seniors Carla

Officers Elected For Pacific Alumni Ass'n

Jerry Kirsten, a graduate with the class of 1949 from the University of the Pacific, was selected president of the Board of Directors of the Pacific Alumni Association Saturday during 1962 Alumni Day activities on the Stockton campus. Kirsten, a certified public accountant in Lodi, was chairman for the Alumni Awards banquet. He succeeds Henderson McGee of Sacramento.

Other elected officers for the Association are Mona Bell Cortez of Stockton, vice-president; Janet Lancaster of Modesto, secretary; and Bernie Piersa, Stockton certified public accountant, treasurer.

Named to the board of directors are Dr. William Cunningham, Sacramento; George Moscone, San Francisco; Cornelius "Bud" Sullivan, Boyd Thompson, and Joan Ulrich, all of Stockton; and Marcus Williams, Salinas.

TV Studio Dedicated

Dedication ceremonies for the new $40,000 television installation on the University of the Pacific campus were televised "live" from the campus studio Thursday afternoon during its open house.

"With the great emphasis on art as well as the fine arts at the University, we plan to move ahead with vigor," said Dr. Robert E. Burns, president at Pacific. "We have so much talent on this campus, it wouldn't be impossible to produce good television shows 24 hours a day," he added.

Other special guests introduced by Dr. John Dennis, director of broadcasting at Pacific, were John C. Crabbe, formerly director of broadcasting at the University and now general manager of Channel 6 and Hugh Granberry, General Electric district sales manager from Redwood City.

PAM GAMBLE, Pacific freshman, was crowned Miss Monterey County last Saturday night.

UOP BEAUTY WINS MONTEREY TITLE

Last Saturday night, UOP freshman Pam Gamble, competing against seven other girls, was crowned Miss Monterey County of 1962.

Miss Pamela Jean Gamble, a native of Carmel Valley, is a drama major, and it was her talent in the field of performing arts which greatly aided her chances for winning the contest. In the talent competition, Pam presented a dramatic reading. She also competed in swim suit and formal gown.

Pam will travel to Santa Cruz this June to compete in the Miss California Pageant, the next big step on the way to the Miss America title.

Is Dead Week Really Dead?

In a few short weeks finals will descend upon the Pacific campus. For most students, this means little or no sleep for the week and a half of finals. In many cases, sleepless nights could be alleviated by a better use of study hours during the semester. These late hours could also be stopped by the effective use of a Dead Week.

Now, Pacific does have a Dead Week. This is the name that the Administration and Faculty have chosen for that two-day period before finals start. We feel this is quite forward-thinking of the Administration. The unions are battling for a four-day week and, already, Pacific has a two-day week.

During this "lull" in the school year, professors are not to give out new material, give tests, or have assignments due. Ideally, there should be no classes at all for those two days. Pacific's Dead Week must refer to the students' condition after finals for most professors continue lecturing on new material; some give new assignments, due during Dead Week and many give tests during this "hallowed" time of year.

We propose giving the students those two days for studying. It would allow students time to catch up, re-copy notes, hold seminars, and get organized before finals. If students use this two-day period wisely, and we think they will, finals will be less of a mental and physical strain.

We are not asking for much, only a two-day Dead Week. (Note: At Princeton, Dead Week is three weeks.) If the Administration and faculty do not want a Dead Week or do not think it would work, then let's take it off the calendar. It's rather ridiculous in light of the circumstances.

Campaigning Or Mudslinging?

By the time you read this editorial the campus elections will be almost over, yet something has occurred which should not go unnoticed. As we stated last week, this year's student body elections should be very competitive because so many people are running for the important offices on Senate. We expected a hard-fought campaign, but we did not expect the mudslinging and lying that has occurred during the last week.

Rumors were started concerning one of the presidential candidates. According to our sources, "someone who should know" (note the quotes) contended that the candidate, who had served on this year's senate, had missed so many meetings that his membership was in danger. We checked into this and found it entirely untrue. Another candidate has been supporting issues that he previously was very much against. We can only assume that this was a vote-getting device. How well it worked will be known in a few hours.

College politics are too small to resort to such low tactics. No office is so important that a candidate should lie or spread stories to gain a position in student government. The college years are the most idealistic ones in a person's life. If the potential leaders of our university resort to such tactics now, what will they do in their later years? This may sound over-dramatic, but we are truly concerned. We will be even more concerned if these persons get into office. If they do, they had better stick to their campaign promises or we will see to it that the campus hears about it.

EXECUTIVE FOOTNOTE

Are We Too Narrow To Recognize And Respond To International Demands?

Two significant and undeniable facts have thrust themselves with considerable impact upon the students here at Pacific. Fact number one: by virtue of the way our society and civilization is constructed, each of us is an integral part of at least three communities: the community of students at Pacific, the community of American citizens, and the community of international citizens. Try as we may, we cannot revoke our membership in any one of these communities.

Fact number two: with rare exceptions, we have failed to meet the demands of each of these communities, and in particular, the community of students at Pacific. As members of this community in name only, we have too often turned our energies and interests solely toward some small part of the campus community, such as the fraternity or sorority, or the "Y," or the chapel. In so doing, the larger—and more important—campus community, the community to which we should first turn since we are first of all students, is neglected, divided, and lacking in responsibility.

I am convinced this is no small problem, but I am also confident that many avenues are open to resolve it. As one such step toward greater participation and interest in all three communities, I would like to suggest the following proposition: that the students at Pacific develop an intensive twofold program with their student counterparts in other countries of the world.

What might this program entail? For one thing, by virtue of the need now existing on our campus, it would mean the development of a greater responsibility by the students for the international community.

Pacific Hosts Chico In Final Tennis Match

Coach Mel Moretti's University of the Pacific tennis squad closes out a rather dismal campaign at home tomorrow afternoon at 1:00 p.m. Opposition will be provided by a strong Chico State squad which dumped Pacific, 7-0, in the northern city last weekend.

The Tigers, who have yet to win a match this season, will be relying on their strong one-two punch of Frank Francois and John Thomas to upset the Staters tomorrow.

Backed up by a supporting cast of Al Makkleson, Mike Cusanivh, Chuck Bender and Bill Turner, the Tigers will try to take five of the nine (six singles and three doubles) matches necessary to post the victory.

Despite the losing season, Moretti feels confident about the 1963 campaign since most of his headliners, having benefited from a year of experience, will return and should give the Tigers a representative squad.

Linksmen Fourth In WCAC Tourney, End Season Today At Swenson Park

The University of the Pacific golf team, which placed fourth in Monday's West Coast Athletic Conference Tournament in Richmond, plays its last scheduled match of the season this afternoon at 1 p.m. on Stockton's Swenson Park course. The Tigers face Santa Clara University and the University of British Columbia in a three-way match that will decide the success of their season. The linksmen now have four wins, four losses, and one tie in dual competition.

Coach Van Sweet's team has been consistently paced by Ernie Segale, who has turned in a 73 score on the Swenson course. Bart Gross and Frank Bearden have followed close behind with 74's.

In Monday's W.C.A.C. tournament at the Richmond Golf and Country Club, Pacific placed behind San Jose State, University of San Francisco, and St. Mary's. The Tigers finished ahead of Santa Clara and Loyola. Segale and Bearden tied for medalist honors, with Gross and Al Fagundes following. The members of the team felt that they did not play up to par. One of them said, "All four of us did not reach our peaks at Richmond; maybe next year."

On May third the Tigers traveled to Los Gatos and lost to Santa Clara, 21-6. Fagundes' 77 gave Pacific three and one-half points while Sterling Getty earned two and one-half points. Santa Clara's Bill Beasley took overall medalist honors with a 74. Bearden fired an 80, Mike Crawford an 86, Dave DeLong an 82, and Lowell Miller an 88 for Pacific.

Volleyballers Play Sunday

Six students will represent Pacific at the annual Northern California College Intermural Playday this Sunday afternoon at Foothill Junior College in Los Altos.

Ann Ganzer, Sue Harden, Marilyn Proctor, Jim Bush, Rick Nemetz, and Mike Smith will compete for the coed volleyball championship against teams from Cal, Stanford, and San Jose.

SAN JOSE SPLITS PAIR WITH TIGERS

The Pacific baseball nine split a double header last Saturday with highly-rated San Jose State, 6-5 and 0-1, in thrilling extra-inning contests held on Billy Hebert Field. The performances gave the Tigers four victories and eight defeats in West Coast Athletic Conference play, clinching a third place finish for the locals in the standings.

Prior to this Tuesday's final game, Pacific owned a season record of six wins and nineteen losses. Bob Mazzuca's clan played Stanford in Palo Alto on Monday.

The Tigers won the opener against San Jose in the tenth inning, 6-5, on Jack Hollery's double and Eric Jacobs' deep single, which sent Hollery home with the winning run. Relief hurler Ivar Kent, who replaced Don Stagnaro, picked up the win. Hollery paced the locals with three hits at the plate. Pacific topped the Spartans in statistics, collecting six runs on twelve hits and one error, compared to San Jose's five runs and seven hits and three errors.

The tide turned in the second game when the Spartans won on a triple and a sacrifice fly in the ninth, 1-0. Valiant Pacific pitcher Bob Marconi threw a beautiful four-hitter and fanned nine, but the Tigers could not back him with enough consistent hits to win the game.

INTRAMURAL TRACK MEET COMPLETED

Pacific's intramural track and field meet was held last Tuesday and Wednesday at the Stockton College track. Official results, however, were not available at this writing.

On Tuesday the trials and finals of the 100 yard dash highlighted the meet's activities. Also, the 120 yard high hurdles, 440 yard dash, mile, and 880 yard relay running events were held. In field events, the shot and discus were thrown while contenders competed in the pole vault.

On Wednesday the 220 yard dash, 220 yard low hurdles, 880 yard run, and the two mile were run. In the field, the broad jump, javelin, and the high jump were held.

In figuring the team and individual titles, contenders were limited to three events, plus the relay. The first four finishers in each event received 5, 3, 2, or 1 points, depending upon their respective finish. The winning relay team received 10 points while the runner-up and third place finishers got 6 and 4 points.

with the impression that the Spurs might be surnamed the "Twinkle Scouts," it might be added here that they occasionally hold more "stimulating" functions, id est, picnics, twist parties, and other less sterile activities which, they maintain, are also in the interest of "promoting unity."

Last night was "tap night" at the Women's Day Banquet, and among the fortunate girls with 3.0-or-above averages to be tapped for active duty by this year's outgoing Spurs, five of the seventeen are sorority members.

Next year's Spurs, as chosen last night, include: Judy Bartell, Cenus Brunetta, Melinda Cardoza, Ruth Grams, Peggy Grotenhies, Amy Lee Hannon, Susan Herriman, Mariruth Jones, Cynthia Lord, Charlotte Maxwell, Kathiann Miller, Judy Monson, Rita Prezler, Jane Riffle, Jan Smith, Pamela Tennant, and Susan Wigh.

tional students on campus. This responsibility might include the following: (1) an effective Brother-Sister program; (2) an attempt to place the international students in needed employment; (3) an attempt to bring them into such activities as student government; and (4) such a program might well include the full sponsorship of an international student the students of Pacific.

In another equally important way we can build firm relationships with our student counterparts by us going to them. I would like to suggest these two ideas: (1) that we adopt a "Sister" university in another country with which we can have an exchange of ideas and culture by such media as tape exchanges, newspapers, and shortwave radios; (2) that we organize on this campus what has come to be called the "Student Ambassador Program."

It is a program in which some thirty to fifty Pacific students would go as a group to Africa or Europe to visit their counterparts, and in return a group of students from Africa or Europe would come to the United States. Such a "Student Ambassador Program" is possible because of special group flight privileges granted by the C.A.A. and by the coordinating work of what is called the People-To-People Program.

In such a direct, simple, and yet spectacular manner we can take on a greater responsibility in the community of students at Pacific and in the community of international citizens. The opportunity is present; we need only respond to its demands.
