

John Muir Correspondence (PDFs)

---

1871-06-30

Letter from Jeanne C. Carr to John Muir, [1871] Jun 30.

Jeanne C. Carr

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/muir-correspondence>

---

Recommended Citation

Carr, Jeanne C., "Letter from Jeanne C. Carr to John Muir, [1871] Jun 30." (1871). John Muir Correspondence (PDFs). 1382.

<https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/muir-correspondence/1382>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Scholarly Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in John Muir Correspondence (PDFs) by an authorized administrator of Scholarly Commons. For more information, please contact mgibney@pacific.edu.

Oakland, June 30th [1871]. ?

My dear John,

In our lower world <sup>[Henry]</sup> Mr. Edwards, who brings you this note, is accounted one of Nature's truest and most devoted disciples. You will take pleasure in introducing him to your heavenly bugs and butterflies, and the winged dragons that hover over those hot breathing springs "in the beyond". I do not know how long he proposes to sojourn there, but make the most of the time, for he has the keys to the Kingdom.

And I am always

Your friend,

Jeanne C. Carr.

That little bug who inhabits the "slew" between Hutchings and the mill (and which we once needed a skiff to pass over) is probably waiting for Mr. Edwards. Found in grass roots.

J.C. C.