

John Muir Correspondence (PDFs)

1872-09-24

Letter from [Jeanne C. Carr] to John Muir, [1872] Sep 24.

Jeanne C. Carr

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/muir-correspondence>

Recommended Citation

Carr, Jeanne C., "Letter from [Jeanne C. Carr] to John Muir, [1872] Sep 24." (1872). John Muir Correspondence (PDFs). 1479.

<https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/muir-correspondence/1479>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Scholarly Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in John Muir Correspondence (PDFs) by an authorized administrator of Scholarly Commons. For more information, please contact mgibney@pacific.edu.

[1872]

Oakland Sept 24.

My dear John.

Yours of the 18th and one of older date are before me, I sent to Agassiz the one you enclosed, either that or something from the paper (My Tribune clippings) excited him to say with great warmth that "Muir was studying to quater Salmon & with greater results than any one else had done". Le Conte told me he spoke of you work with enthusiasm.

Perhaps you saw the poetic welcome to him from the Bulletin. I suppose Mrs A. cuts & clips the news which belongs to you and gives it to you assorted when you descend to such things.

I have not given Charlie

I one of your messages. ~~Just~~ he has not been to see me & had no chance - he does not like to have me call on him at his father's and I don't write to any one if I can possibly avoid it. Then ⁴⁷⁵
he is engaged to read or recite one of his own poems at Harry Edwards benefit Thursday evening and he ought to do his best for Harry Edwards and his wife have been the true and the true to Charlie. Then one cannot say that you will not hasten down
I have one talk with Agayyir who prolongs his stay, and in case he feels himself bettering may do so until you come. Let Charlie's visit pass for this fall.
He is miserably morbid & the mind would not be likely to yield to your ministrations. He is a real lover at last, and I think 50617