Dear Brother & Sister

A week ago today - Willis expressed a box for you containing pictures I hope they will reach you uninjured The lily
picture was dusty
but I was not able to wash it off - as I was not sitting up yet - If it is washed with a bit of silk and soft tepid water the dust

will disappear and the silk will leave no lint — John

I am anxious to know your criticism on Father's face — for I have done the best I could —

We are all
as well as usual

I am gaining in strength steadily
but slowly — Our little daughter is doing finely — We have not yet found

a name for her — Mr
does not seem to be an easy matter

Perhaps you might suggest one that would be liked.

I shall look for a letter from you ere very long.

Affectionately,
Sister Assang.

Dear Brother and Sister:

A week ago to-day Willis expressed a box for you containing pictures. I hope they will reach you uninjured. The lily picture was dusty, but I was not able to wash it off, as I was not sitting up yet. If it is washed with a bit of silk and soft tepid water the dust will disappear and the silk will leave no lint.

John, I am anxious to know your criticism on Father's face, for I have done the best I could.

We are all as well as usual. I am gaining in strength steadily but slowly. Our little daughter is doing finely. We have not yet found a name for her -- it does not seem to be an easy matter. Perhaps you might suggest one that would be liked. I shall look for a letter from you ere very long.

Affectionately,

Sister Mary [Muir Hand]
