Determinate Sentencing in California: The New Numbers Game

Page 23, footnote 138, should read: "Anyone who personally or vicariously possesses a firearm during the felony is liable for a one-year enhancement;"

Page 32, footnote 202, should read: "The definition of serious bodily injury in Section 243 sounds very much like that of great bodily injury in Section 12022.7 in SB 42."

Page 32, footnote 205, should read: "Petty theft with a prior conviction for petty theft, grand theft, burglary or robbery remains punishable as a felony. . . . In another example, Penal Code Section 647a still punishes child molesting as a felony only if the defendant has previously been convicted of violating either Section 647a or Section 288."

Page 45, 29th line, should read: "Excepted from the enhancement are: great bodily injury inflicted on accomplices; . . ."

Page 48, 31st line, should read: ". . . (2) the defendant *serv*ed a 'prior separate prison term';"

Page 51, 31st line, should read: "The list of violent felonies was expanded to include crimes enhanced under Penal Code Section 12022.5."

Page 54, 33rd line, should read: "If, however, two or more felonies are committed while the inmate is in prison or while on escape from prison . . ."

Page 55, 32nd line, should read: "Finally, AB 476 provided that one-third of any enhancement imposed (except under Section 12022.6) could be added . . ."
