February 4, 1903.

Dear Mr. Muir:

You scare me by what you say in your letter of January 25th. Really, it would be absurd to publish a California Number of the Atlantic without a contribution from you in it. Of course I have no right to urge you in the matter and I dare say you are getting up as early in the morning and going to bed as late at night as is at all wise, but it does seem to us as if we must have that article. Pray give us every possible opportunity for it, and remember that there will be thousands of other people as much disappointed as we in case you do not write it.

Sincerely

Blair

John Muir, Esq.
