My dear Sir;

I heartily thank you for your courteous reply to my letter. On the strength of it I venture another question <sup>or two</sup> that I omitted in my former letter, viz (1) the relative size of the Folgefond glacier in Norway, and (2) I judge from your article that the Muir covers the largest area of any glacier in the world. Is this so?

I am also requested by the Director of Mines for the Province of Ontario to ask if you will furnish him through me with a list of any book or books on glaciers you may have written. If in print he would like a set to be sent here for which remittance will be at once made or they can be sent C O D. If you have published no works on that subject could you then refer us to your magazine articles on the subject?

Thanking you again in advance for an anticipated reply

I remain,

yours very truly

Frank Yeigh
