CAMPUS — IN — BRIEF

By B. M. C.

Last edition. And last chance we'll get to spread before you our personal opinions, prejudices, and bits of what one of our faculty kindly called "misinformation".

So not to disappoint said member of said faculty, we heard that a member of the faculty said that there were two preachers in the Senior class that the administration would be glad to see leave. If we're correct in our surmise we would say said two Seniors had as an outstanding characteristic opinions of their own and were not afraid to say them. Maybe the feeling's mutual.

We've criticized the faculty and administration a lot this year and perhaps we've been too harsh. We realize the hardship most of them are going through to remain here. We do wish, however, that they would sometimes give us credit for a little grey matter, and try and remember it is the wise man who rules with, but not over a people.

Before leaving we wish to join in singing the praises of Edgar. So we give to Edgar the slap on the back and the grip of congratulation for consistent, consecutive, constructive criticism of campus characters.

The Seniors turn practical this year and present to the alma mater a bit of concrete. It's to be a snowy white slab of wide width stretching from the Ad Building to the curb opposite the Barber Shop. A beautiful little plaque will call it to your memory as you thoughtlessly tread its surface on your hurried way to class. Nice, children, isn't it?

One of the outstanding members of this class of '34 whom we have wanted to comment on for a long time, is the editor of this year's Naranjado — Evert Peterson. Pete has come to be known as the hardest worker, the squarest shooter, and as possessor of the drollest sense of humor on the campus. He is the last of the era of real fraternity men. His strong personal opinions and his frank expression of them is one of his outstanding characteristics. It will be a long time before another of the calibre of Pete hits this campus.

Then there's this racket of Seniors not having to take finals. The idea of it is very excellent. Theoretically it assures a Senior's passing, if he does any sort of work, and also it leaves the Senior free during his last week. Rot and twiddle twish. In the old days it may have meant something but right now it means no more than the paragraph in the catalogue in regard to the discouragement of the use of tobacco on the campus. So don't envy the Senior too much, he still has to take 'em—some time or other.

We recommend . . . cigarette ads for the Weekly . . . also for football programs . . . beer in the cub house . . . No swimming pool 'til someone donates a new gym . . . then put it in as part of the gym . . . less rumor and more truth . . . more efficiency combined with sympathy . . . bigger and better classes like the class of '34.

So as Ling Po sayeth—"May the wisdom of Confucious guide you, and forget not that in all things it is much better to be the head of a mouse than the tail of a lion". We say goodby.

'34 NARANJADO DUE FRIDAY AT FOUR O'CLOCK

Features Of The Yearbook Will Be Disclosed First Time Tomorrow

Beauty Contest Winners To Be Big Surprise Of The Naranjado

The 1934 edition of the Naranjado will be ready for distribution tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock, according to Manager Lenhart. They can be had at the window of the comptroller's office any time after that.

The features of the book have been kept secret during the months of its preparation, and even today only those who have worked on it know its content. It is hoped that it will be a surprise to those who receive them.

This much is known, the book will feature a beauty contest which was conducted by Howard Bailey. The young ladies elected were chosen from the various social groups about the campus. Then they were sent to New York City to Jefferson Machamer for judging. Out of the bevy of maids submitted to him Mr. Machamer chose five. However, you will have to wait to satisfy your curiosity as to who they are, for no one but Mr. Bailey and the staff who have worked on the Naranjado knows who the five chosen by the New York City critic are, and these staff members will not tell.

The other thing known is that this year's book will be in the informal vein. Senior's pictures were taken without cap and gown; class officers and house officials were taken in informal poses; the lighter touch is definitely developed.

The book this year has an unusually efficient staff. Headed by Editor Pete Peterson, who has had four year's experience, and Bunny Leonhart, who worked up through the ranks, the group of students has taken a real, active interest in bringing forth something new and decidedly different. The art work was efficiently and cleverly done under Miss Betty Coffman, art editor.

The Naranjado this year consists of five books. Individuals in charge of the same are, Marjorie Hommon, college editor; Louise Buckner, assistant. Elsie Mae Graves, organization editor; George Challis, assistant. Franklin Wilbur, activities editor; Jeanette Morse, assistant. Owsley B. Hammond, athletic director; Robert Randall, assistant. Howard Bailey, feature editor; Jean Webster and Dale Ryse, assistants. Miriam Salter was stenographer.

The staff has worked hard and is presenting the book with the feeling that it is as well done as any in the past and better than most.

STUDENTS WIN HONOR

The students of the College of the Pacific have brought honor to their school. Helen Smith and Alice Compton have been chosen to be students of the school of librarianship in Berkeley. There is a two year course offered. The first year is for a librarian certificate and the second for the master's degree. The school takes fifty students and each section of the state is allowed a certain number. There are quite a large number of applicants from this section of the state, therefore it is a signal honor to be chosen. The choice is made by the scholarship of the individual. A B average is required. Sydney B. Mitchell is the head of the school.

SOCIALISTS AT PICNIC

Approximately fifteen members of the Young People's Socialist League attended a picnic on Memorial Day which was held a few miles from Manteca on the San Joaquin River. The majority of the party was made up of Pacific students who have joined the local group and by Professor Harold Jacoby and his wife.

An informal meeting was held during the course of the picnic, at which it was decided that the regular discussion meetings which have been held on every Tuesday night throughout this last semester, will be continued through the summer months, as several members of the group plan to spend the summer here in town.

EDITOR

Evert Peterson, who has done an excellent job on this year's Naranjado.

Jacoby And Matheny Represent Pacific At Conference

Mel Matheny and Roger Jacoby, president and president-elect of the Associated Students, were Pacific's representatives to the annual Pacific Coast Student Body President's Convention. The conference was held last week-end, May 24, 25, and 26, at San Diego, home of San Diego State University.

The representatives came from fifteen schools, as follows: Pacific, California, U.S.C., U.C.L.A., Stanford, University of Arizona, Temple State (Arizona), Occidental, San Diego State, Fresno, San Jose, University of Washington, Washington State, University of Oregon, Willamette, and College of Puget Sound. The conference registration was Thursday morning, May 24. An afternoon discussion on Student Government and an evening discussion on the Honor System and Awards was held.

On Friday the morning discussion dealt with Athletics and at one o'clock Student Publications. The afternoon was devoted to aquaplaning and a boaride around San Diego Bay and vicinity.

After a morning of conferences on Saturday in San Diego the group drove to Agua Caliente where the afternoon was spent in swimming and golfing. In the evening a Dinner Dance was held at Salon de Fiesta in Agua Caliente.

The final meeting was held Sunday morning at ten. At this meeting it was decided to hold next year's convention at Temple State in Arizona.

SPARTAN GOVERNMENT

Having been barely carried by a small majority, the new constitution of the Associated Students of San Jose State college, which was passed last Thursday, will go into effect in the Fall quarter of 1934. The new constitution will possess many new features not in the present one.

Under the new system the Executive Board will consist of seven members elected at large. From these a president, vice-president, and a secretary will be elected. At the present time the three most capable students are usually nominated as candidates for president, and the two losers are lost to the college as far as service is concerned.

SENIOR EDITION

This last issue of the Pacific Weekly of the year 1933-34 is dedicated to the Senior Class. In so far as possible Seniors have done the actual writing.

Elsie Mae Graves, last semester's editor, acted as Society Editor. Hod Bailey, Class President, became a columnist once again, and one of his articles appears on the Feature page. Yancey Boone Smith closed his career as a college journalist with the last column of Backstage.

Brad Crittenden, another past Editor and Sports Editor, and Bob Hammond wrote the lead stories on the Sport page.

These Seniors, especially, deserve mention as aids in this special edition of the paper.

The holiday yesterday made it impossible to get the paper out at the regular time.

Outdoor Theatre Will Be Scene Of Medea

Medea, which will be presented on the evening of June 9 in the Outdoor Theatre is the typical play of a dramatist who dared to be an innovator. Where the other Greek dramatists create heroic figures, Euripides presents human weakness. Other tragic writers would probably not have treated this story of unrestrained violence at all, though the Medea myth is old in Greek folklore. Certainly they would not have put into the mouth of Medea words in defense of her conduct, as Euripides does.

As is the case with most Greek drama, the story is age old, yet very modern. There is pictured for us the revenge which a wronged wife takes upon her husband—not a Greek wife, but a barbaric woman. Medea is no ordinary criminal in her cold blooded acts, but a Colchian princess in the grip of strong emotions.

She is thwarted—a woman, whom the passion of jealous love has led astray, whose nature has been twisted by the stress of life. Jason's willingness to desert her for a prettier face and greater power is a story repeated through the centuries. The passages in which she upbraids Jason and he feebly defends himself resemble verbal denunciations of a modern family.

Never does Euripides let us lose our sympathy for Medea. Though Jason's outrage kindles in her a mad fury we nevertheless pity her weakness. Love to her has been the whole world—to him a passing incident in a selfish life. Particularly in the speeches where she defends her rights as a woman and where she laments the need of killing her children do we feel a kinship with her.

Yet at the close of the drama Jason, too, elicits sympathy, standing bereft of everything, taunted by the vengeful woman whom he has learned to hate. Though Medea had been fiercely faithful, making great sacrifices for Jason's sake, the fact remains that her great sacrifices do not justify the killing of the innocent.

The play is splendidly tragic. It rouses pity for the protagonists, and a sense of awe in the presence of the wrecked lives from yielding to very human passions, in the case of both Jason and Medea.—G. M. S.

Mr. Friedberger, who donated the trophy for the contest, has been a keen follower of the debating and speech activities of the college and in providing a trophy for such competition, he wished to further the development of the interest of the students in oratorical endeavor.

Stellar Athletes Of Past Seasons Are To Graduate

Headed by three of the finest athletes ever to enter Pacific, this year's Senior class takes with it many men who have worked and fought to bring to the college fame on the gridiron, track, and the hardwood. Men in the class have contributed to the school fully as much in fame, victory, and sportsmanship as have those who served as an inspiration to them.

First among those of the class of '34 is Tom Wilson. A big chap, Wilson tops six feet by over two inches and weighs close to one hundred and ninety pounds. On entering as a Frosh from Napa High School he at once manifested himself as one passer in a million.

Under the tutelage of Coach "Swede" Righter he became a hard driving, passing, and kicking back, until in his last season he was the backbone of the backfield. Around Wilson and Hamilton was built the Passing Show of the "Swede's" and the flanker attack of Mr. Stagg. A mighty fine athlete and a mighty fine lad, Tommy Wilson will go down in Pacific's hall of fame for his marvelous passing ability, his capacity for hard work, and for being a regular fellow. He also played basketball and tennis, making his letter in the former.

Then come two lads whose names have been linked together since Freshman days — Hamilton and Goold. Coming from down Patterson way the former of the two is a cheery, pleasant-faced chap who tips the beam at one seventy-five and is around five nine in height. His teammate, Goold, a Stockton boy, is a bit taller, being five eleven, but weighs about the same. The first thing these two did upon entering Pacific was to send the mighty Tarzans of Stockton High down to defeat.

In this game Hamilton gave an exhibition of one of the abilities for which he was to become famous — he successfully dropkicked from far out toward the center of the field, the ball being held by Goold. And it was during this season that the players showed the thing that was to bring honor and fame to Goold, an undying, almost unnatural confidence in his ability to run the outfit. For he was the one man during his college career in whom the men had absolute, sustained confidence. A quiet, steady, heady player who played always for his team he served for two years as honorary captain.

Hamilton developed into a real triple threat man. He carried the ball, was an excellent passer, and was without peer in coffin corner and placement kicking. Both he and Goold played basketball as well and earned names for themselves in this id.

Next, a big chap from Los Gatos deserves attention. Harold "Eastie" Easterbrook, the only three letter man in the Senior class and the only three letter man in school. Weighing around two hundred and topping six feet by three inches, he earned letters in football, track, and basketball. Possessing unusual coordination the big fellow sustained injuries during his Junior year that greatly handicapped him. Nevertheless, he has contributed more in the line of sportsmanship and proper attitude than most men who go out for intercollegiate sport.

Hench and Paul Wilson are a pair of ends that deserve recognition. Both these boys were scrappers from start to finish. Hench was the smaller of the two, but he made up in spirit what he lacked in size. Wilson was another of the fighting type. He could be depended on to fight until he was out.

San Jose Squad Enters Western Meet

SAN Jose, May 30. Two of the best athletes that San Jose State has turned out in a decade will make their bids for recognition at Berkeley June 9 when the cream of Coast tracksters gather for the Far Western Championships.

Little Lou Salvato, the "unknown" who almost beat Kiesel at the Fresno Relays will enter the 100 and possibly the 220, while Doug Taylor, broad jumper, is the second Spartan entry.

Taylor was the victim of a tough break at Fresno, for Coach Erwin Blesh overlooked the time for qualifying trials, and as a result Taylor was rushed from his hotel room to the track just in time to take his jumps. Having no chance to warm up before leaping, Taylor was forced to jump "cold" and as a result failed.

ed to qualify by $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch. Taylor will probably be overlooked by the dopsters in the coming meet because of his failure to show at Fresno, but he must be considered a real threat. The Spartan greyhound has consistently leaped over 24 feet this season, his best mark being 24 ft. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. In a dual meet with Fresno, As Kiesel will not compete at the Championships, Salvato is the logical favorite in the century dash, although he must be relegated to second spot if California's frosh ace, George Anderson, runs.

Floyd Wilson of Fresno State and Bob Clarke of California will be Taylor's chief threats for honors in the broadjump. Taylor has defeated Wilson twice this season, but only by a small margin each time.

Both Salvato and Taylor plan to enter the N. C. A. A. at Los Angeles June 22, providing they make a good showing at the earlier meet in Berkeley. They have already sent their entries, but haven't as yet received assurance that their expenses will be paid.

WHAT'S GOING ON?

The end is near! Week by week we've watched Pacific gain prominence in athletics. New spirit has been evident in the teams and in the student body at large. The Staggs and Apitz have done much to help the Tiger on its way.

We can remember Wilson's long passes and several sensational moments in the football games of last fall; Hamilton kicking to "coffin corner" and making beautiful place kicks; long gains from the famous flanger formation.

Basketball — and the dazzling exhibitions of the Tiger bucket shooters. Bod Hamilton, always fighting; Bainbridge, stolid and sure; Truick and Thompson, clever and fast.

Interclass — still fresh on our memory — with the various sports — basketball probably the most interesting yet a large crowd out to see the swimming meet. A big program was undertaken this year and conducted successfully under the management of Jim Corson and the committee in charge.

Class Day — one of the brightest spots on the calendar. Boxing, tennis, swimming and all the rest, and better than anything else a wholehearted support from the students. Undoubtedly the event was a success and will not be forgotten soon.

FRANCIS TO COACH, TEACH NEXT YEAR

Announcement has been made this week that Ralph Francis, at present graduate manager, will be a full-fledged member of the Physical Education Department next year. Francis will continue his duties of graduate manager and in addition will teach sports and tennis and also be one of the assistant football coaches. During basketball season he will assist with the coaching of the frosh hoopers.

The sad blow of the year was Tom Wilson being declared ineligible. Tommy will be with us next year to help coach frosh football and basketball — that's a break anyway.

Looking forward to next year, we see prospects of an excellent grid season. New material of high calibre has been attracted to Pacific and the outlook is very bright. A good schedule of games and a good bunch of players.

Basketball is just as bright a contemplation. Many of this year's squad will be back and there are several freshmen and junior college transfers who have shown up well.

All in all it's been a mighty dandy year and we're sorry to see it close. Yet we are planning already for a more successful year ahead.

Pacific Frosh Finish With Good Record

The class of '37 can well be proud of the representatives she has put into the limelight of Pacific athletics this year. The lads not only met the largest number of opponents of any frosh team to date, but also won a goodly share of victories. The youngsters did not do so well in interclass sports, although they relegated the Juniors to the cellar. The yearlings took fourths in basketball and touch football, third in tennis, seconds in ping pong and swimming, and first in the horse shoe tournament. For the Frosh honor roll we nominate: Football: Baer, Oleota, Trezise, Henley, Cecchini, Noack; Basketball: Parsons, Baer, Henley, Trezise, Noack; Swimming: Reiman and Olmsted; golf: "Hole in One" Jack Noack; Horseshoes: Jean Martin; Tennis: Trezise and Cortez.

Review Of Year Indicates A New Hope At Pacific

The New Deal in Pacific sports during the past year has been a tremendous success. Pacific has attained recognition throughout the nation as the college which accomplishes what it sets out to achieve. Coach Stagg was catch No. 1. Coach Apitz was catch No. 2, and the 1934 football schedule is catch No. 3.

The 1933 football season was a grand one from the start to the finish. A fairly impressive won and lost score doesn't tell the half of it. Pacific's season can be summed up in two games — Pacific 3, California Ramblers 0 and Pacific 0, St. Mary's 7. Those are the games that will never be forgotten. Besides these two games, there are two men who will never be forgotten. Perhaps I should say three. They are Captain Bud Goold, team general for four years; Tom Wilson, than whom there never was a better forward-passer; and Elton Hamilton, passer, kicker, and runner de luxe. It is almost unfair to pick out these stars for recognition, because the showing of every individual was of the highest calibre.

Next in our sport year came basketball. Everyone at the first of the season wondered to himself, "I wonder if this guy Apitz is any good as a basketball coach?" If anyone is in doubt as to the answer at the present time, I would suggest he ask any member of the varsity team. Although the material was small in stature, Coach Apitz moulded together a smooth-working combination which, with 100% co-operation on and off the floor, would have won the conference championship. As it was, the Bengals won second honors and split their series with the champions from San Jose State. A great team is sure for next season as only one regular, Hamilton, will be lost by graduation.

Spring football training replaced track in the athletic curriculum this year. Many new faces appeared, notably freshmen and junior college transfers. From their performances in spring training, much is being expected of them next fall.

The sports season was wound up by a successful and well-organized Class Day. Tennis and boxing were the main attractions — and undoubtedly as a result of its success this year Class Day will become an annual affair. The huge interest in boxing as something new and different for Pacific, indicates that this sports has a bright future here. Jim Corson, as chairman, Phil Brubaker as head of the boxing activities.

Varsity-town has tackled the back . . . has ingeniously given us some unique originality in belted backs for Spring. They're worthy of your immediate attention if you crave something different!
