Dear Mr. Johnson

I am not sure if I have ever told you how much disappointed I was at missing Mr. John Main. As soon as I got his card at the Ho. of Com.
rooms I went out to look for him, but he had vanished, and the card bore no address so I could not write to him.
I had heartily wished to see him. The means provided for finding members at the Ho. of C. are so bad that I wish my friends & yours coming to see me there would always put their London address on their card. P.S. comes to Mr. Main my regret.

Yours sincerely
J. Bryce

Dear Mr. Johnson:

I am not sure if I have ever told you how much disappointed I was at missing Mr. John Muir. As soon as I got his card at the House of Commons I went out to look for him, but he had vanished, and the card bore no address so I could not write to him. I had greatly wished to see him. The means provided for finding members at the H. of C. are so bad that I wish any friends of yours coming to see me there would always put their London address on their card.

Please convey to Mr. Muir my regret.

Yours sincerely,

J[ames] Bryce.
