John Muir is still my special delight. I have read his "National Parks", his "Mountains of California" and his article on "Alaskan Glaciers" in Harriman's Expedition. I have read several selections from the two former works in the Friday Club which have been received so enthusiastically that several have purchased the books. I think his vocabulary and style the most charming. Sometimes a whole chapter will read like a poem. He is altogether the leading writer on his own special subjects - and I am a proud and happy old Dolly girl that I can boast that I met him and his family in the privacy of
