Darlings I'm going to my paleontology this morning as usual but this week or next will I suppose have to be the last Berkeley work for the season Saturday I mean to go to Stanford to see what Say & Lepp books are in the library there.

Yesterday after writing you the rain began once more to pour in torrents & I had to wipe & mop the precious garret floor. Tom came after that chambermaid job was done & looked at partitions chimneys etc. He is going to the city today. Tell me Helen what you want me to bring for you Keep Wanda as long as possible & be very very careful of your health & everything when she leaves you Of course I'll come flying as soon as the Tom trouble is over Ever lovingly your father Tom Mann
