My Dear Mr Muir.

As perhaps you are aware, from time to time I have published, or rather sold in England, small editions of your books which have been issued by the Century Co. and other firms; for instance the volume entitled "The Mountains of California". My object in writing now is that in looking back through some old correspondence with a Mr. J. B. Miller of Dunbar, I notice a remark that you came from Scotland and as, I understand it, you are a native of Dunbar. I wonder if this is correct? The old gentleman died some dozen or more years ago and I am merely relying on my memory of that letter. My object also arises from the fact that I have in preparation for publication a volume on the Miller family, who were printers, publishers, authors and booksellers at the beginning of the last Century, indeed there are two or three generations of them and it occurred to me that if you knew Dunbar, you might perhaps be able to give me some information in regard to this family. I need hardly say it would be a pleasure to hear from you in any case as in past years I have been your publisher.

Faithfully yours,
Wm. H. Morrison
