

John Muir Correspondence (PDFs)

1913-12-17

Letter from Eleanor Pomeroy to John Muir, 1913 Dec 17.

Eleanor Pomeroy

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/muir-correspondence>

Recommended Citation

Pomeroy, Eleanor, "Letter from Eleanor Pomeroy to John Muir, 1913 Dec 17." (1913). John Muir Correspondence (PDFs). 4189.

<https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/muir-correspondence/4189>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Scholarly Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in John Muir Correspondence (PDFs) by an authorized administrator of Scholarly Commons. For more information, please contact mgibney@pacific.edu.

75 West Rutland square,
Boston, Massachusetts.
December 17, 1913

My dear Lover-of-Nature:

May I thank you most heartily for your kind message concerning your playground and prayground ? I appreciate it deeply, especially at this season when the harmony of things is peculiarly close. In your California flowers bloom; here in Massachusetts branches are bare but the message that they bring to me is as divine as are your flowers that I love so well....

I want to tell you how much I have enjoyed the story of your boyhood and youth; it is here on my desk --a borrowed copy---and only last eveing I came to the story of the little frozen squirrel with his peck of wheat; also, the swimming episode which I doubly appreciated because I, too, was told to consider the frogs and how they swam...

I send you my heartiest greetings of the Christmas season. May yours be a very beautiful one. May the new year bring a wealth of beauty, also.

This is the greeting of a girl-a year-out-of-college girl who has struck the writer's trail and whá is gathering all the joy of the march.

Respectfully and faithfully,

Eleanor Power

05634