Wednesday night

Dear Hermit,

When are you coming down? We can't wait
much longer!

Plasterers and what not still hover blackly on the horizon, but we are quite enough settled to make you comfortable
— now that Phoebus
so brightly shineth —

I should have dared wring you while

to work, and we'll let you alone. We go to Camel we about three weeks.

Always your

it was yet cool enough for fires. For tragic as that truth is, and ever will be, we have no fire-place upstairs!
You shall find where one can be shot up the side of the house and some day it may grow
there with a pine tree in front of it. Jean hungers for a glimpse of her Uncle John, and her parents? Well, you come and see. Bring your
