For Mrs. Harriman is going to move to her country place, while I'll remain in New York until after the Yale affair & perhaps for another month working on the Yosemite book if the weather does not get too hot. If it does I'll off to the sea & finish the book next winter. I'm feeling fine in this grand airy house on the side of Central Park & I've done some good work. Haven't heard a word from Mrs. Sellers, & but little from the Hookers. Ever devotedly Your loving father

Darling Helen

I got your letter of the 10th this morning.

Get away to a cool mountain & camp out under the pines with the baby while teething but near a house or hotel for convenience. Don't however sleep in a dusty stuffy room even at a mountain hotel, for that would be worse than the dry desert however hot - and see that you get nourishing food for yourself. Watch the baby's gums. Have them lanced if necessary
