Dear Mr. Muir:

With this holiday greeting, I should like to explain to you what I afterward felt was an ungracious acknowledgement of your suggestion that I be one of several Sierra Club members to accompany your party to South America. That such a trip with you would have been the rarest treat of my life, I

perhaps too readily assumed that you would understand. My unresponsive attitude was due to the fact that the trip was absolutely out of my reach because of financial inability.
A silly pride instinctively prevented my telling you so at the time - But courtesy and appreciation demanded a frankness, which, though so late, I am now sending you.

I will send this to Martinez, though not sure you are yet back from your trip.

Im grateful for your kindness,

Your friend,

Mary Frances Kellogg

Dear Mr. Muir:

With this holiday greeting, I should like to explain to you what I afterward felt was an ungracious acknowledgment of your suggestion that I be one of several Sierra Club members to accompany your party to South America. That such a trip with you would have been the rarest treat of my life, I perhaps too readily assumed that you would understand. My unresponsive attitude was due to the fact that the trip was absolutely out of my reach because of financial inability. A silly pride instinctively prevented my telling you so at the time -- But courtesy and appreciation demanded a frankness, which, though so late, I am now sending you.

I will send this to Martinez, though not sure you are yet back from your trip. In gratitude for your kindness,

Your friend,
